For Elisabeth Williams

A Strike, Lace Curtains And A Dream Come True

By JANE MORRISSEY

As a little girl in Poland, Elisabeth Williams dreamed she would someday work in her father's fine food store. She fondly remembers being perched on a huge sack of cinnamon observing her father chatting with his customers.

But then came World War II and her dream was put on the back burner.

After emigrating to West Germany and on to Canada she finally landed in the U.S., 18 years old and knowing hardly a word of English.

Still, she made her way, married, settled in Wollaston and raised a daughter.

Still the dream remained a dream.

Her dream began to flicker of reality when in 1981 she took a vacation to Germany from her job as a medical staff registrar at University Hospital.

Because of the air traffic controller's strike, her flight was rearranged and she was forced to layover in Dublin Ireland for a day.

To pass the time, she explored the city. As she strolled the streets, she was entranced by beautiful lace curtains in every window.

"It was serendipity," she said. "There was not a naked window anywhere. Humble houses and mansions alike all broadcast a friendly welcome with their lovely windows."

Remembering her bare windows at home, she had curtains cut to dress them. "It was so easy," she said, "not like here where you find curtains in plastic packages and can never find a salesperson to help you with the size."

After returning to her home at 11 Chick St. in Wollaston, she was swamped with compliments on her new curtains.

Having forgotten to buy curtains for a few windows, she set out to complete her collection. To her disappointment, she couldn't find anything as similar or nice anywhere.

She deliberated with her husband and made up her mind that selling curtains was how her merchant dream would come true.

After a year of research, a return trip to Ireland and a letter from the Lord Mayor of Dublin, she arranged to purchase curtain lace abroad, cleared her first shipment with U.S. Customs and marketed it as Dublin-style lace curtains. Her curtain styles range from very modern to Edwardian and most are white.

To cut costs, she fixed up a shed in the rear of her home to work out of rather than setting up a conventional store.

She calls her company "Sheer Perfection" and markets her curtains all over the Boston area through home, group and church benefit sales.

One call to Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, and one sale got the ball rolling. Since then, she said, word of

Her marketing arrangement works well for both herself and the women who buy her curtains. For her, the congenial atmosphere of a church sale is similar to the atmosphere of her father's store; and the organizations are given a helping hand toward their causes.

She doesn't regret leaving her job at the hospital

although she admits she knew little about running a business when she began.

"But," she says, "I know what's pretty. I know what's priced right, and I know what women like."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

"There are many kinds of courage. It is not only courage in the face of illness which inspires us, but also courage in the face of failure... Take for example Thomas A. Edison, whose moral character was revealed not so much in his successes but in the way he faced his failures. His formal education was limited to the public schools. At the age of twelve he was working as a newsboy on a trail between Port Huron and Detroit. An experience during these years brought on deafness. He told the story in these words: 'My train was standing by the platform at Smith's Creek station. I was trying to climb into the freight car with both arms full of newspapers when the conductor lifted me by my ears. I felt something snap inside my head. My deafness started from that time and has continuously progressed.' But rather than plying himself, Edison said: 'My deafness has not been a handicap but a help to me. From the very start, after the earache pain ceased, deafness probably drove me to reading.'"

Failure after failure faced him, but his patience and courage led to the principal secret of his method - not to be discouraged by all the wrong ways he followed but to try some other way.

This famous man set a wonderful example for all of us. Don't you agree?

Why planning your funeral at age 55 makes good sense.

Age 55 is a good time in your life to plan out the rest of your life. With your children married and more of your big responsibilities behind you, it's time you give some thought to your own financial needs—and how they'll change in the next twenty years or so.

Pre-planning your funeral, for example, should be just as much a part of your financial planning as life insurance. It's an expense that has to be dealt with sooner or later. And sooner is better because it could cost you less and will also serve to relieve your family of added financial stress should the unexpected occur.

For more information on pre-arrangement or pre-financing, write for our free booklet, "No Greater Kindness For Those You Love." If you have any questions, give us a call or stop by.

'Human Need' Topic At Squantum Church

"Human Need: How Much Can You Do?" was the title of the pastor's sermon at both services at the First Church of Squantum Sunday morning.

The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the story of Christ feeding the five thousand. He asked the members of the congregation, as part of their Lenten discipline, to consider what they were doing to help the hungry, the homeless, the hurting and the sick.

The Youth Choir sang Hal Hopson's arrangement of the early American folk tune, "O Come and Mourn", for the anthem at the first service. They were joined by the Chancel Choir for the same anthem at the second service. Susan Scott was soloist both times.

Guitarists Steven Williams, Andrew Ogilvie and Mary Ruth Scott provided accompaniment for the hymns at the earlier guitar service. Blythe Bumpus and Kim Olsen were ushers. Ruth Swenson was in charge of refreshments.

At the second service, Margot and John Herbert were greeters, Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott were ushers. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Hazel Mayne and Mary Scott.

The Lenten series on Christian Discipleship is continuing Wednesday evenings. There is a supper at 6:30 p.m. The program begins at 7:30 p.m. Persons planning to come to the dinner are urged to call 328-4367 to make reservations.

There will be two worship services again Sunday morning: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m. Sunday School for children from nursery through the fourth grade is held during the later service. Older children and teenagers meet in youth groups scheduled throughout the week.

St. Patrick's Celebration At St. John's Church Sunday

The liturgy will be enhanced by the parish choir, an organist and a harp soloist who will sing and play the hymns and ballads of Ireland. The congregation will enjoy a sing-a-long before the service. There will be readings in the Gaelic language and the usual "wearin' o' the green". A reception will follow the liturgy in the parish hall - with Irish music, stepdancing and refreshments. Contributions of pre-sliced pastries and Irish bread will be appreciated.

St. John's liturgical music is under the direction of John Cice, choir leader, and Phyllis Ross, organist-pianist. The event is sponsored by the Spiritual Development Commission, Patricia Mullen, Chairwoman.

'One Great Hour Of Sharing' To Be Observed At Bethany

There will be two worship services Sunday, at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

Emphasis at both hours will be on Christian response to world wide human need, including emergency relief for victims of famine, drought, floods, earthquake and war; as well as the long range goals of self-development, providing tools, seeds, wells, and upgrading methods of agriculture and crop cultivation.

Bethany Church will be joining with thousands of United Church of Christ congregations throughout the United States that are observing "One Great Hour of Sharing" during Lent, seeking to raise $3 million for those world concerns.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon at both hours on the question, "Have You Eaten?" based on texts in II Kings 6:24-30 and Luke 9:10-17. Alice Greene will be the lay scripture reader at the chapel service. Associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will serve as liturgist at both services.

At the 10 a.m. service, the Rainbow Girls, parents and adult advisors of Wollaston Assembly, will be guests and attend the worship in a group. Elizabeth F. Morse, Worthy Advisor and a member of Bethany, will participate in the worship giving brief remarks and reading scriptures.

During the sanctuary service, the chancel choir under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will present the offertory anthem, "God Make My Life a Shining Light", by Austin C. Lovelace. The Children's Choir will also sing a composition arranged by R. Vaughan Williams, "The Wise Men Bring Their Learning".

The worship services will be broadcast by delayed tape over WJDA, 1300 kc at 11 a.m.

The Sunday School children will attend the opening portion of the 10 a.m. service in the sanctuary, and then go to their rooms for class sessions. Nursery care will be provided for babies and toddlers.

Following the 30-minute service, a light continental breakfast will be served in the parish house. Both the brief worship service and the breakfast are open to the public and people can leave for work and school by 7:45 a.m.

Parish Youth Mission At Sacred Heart

A parish youth mission on the theme, "S.O.S. - Some One Special" will be held Sunday to Tuesday, March 24 to 26, at 7:30 p.m. by Sacred Heart Parish, North Quincy.

Fr. Cornelius Heery, pastor, extends an invitation to young people of the parish to attend the mission which will take place in St. Joseph's Oratory.

"There are many young people who thirst for acceptance, who are having difficulties in their lives: be it alcohol, drugs, loneliness, depression or broken relationships," said Fr. Heery.

"There are many desires within us, the deepest is for God. The love of God is all powerful. Nothing can separate us from God's love."

"In spite of our problems, we never walk alone. God is with us in good times and bad. He desires to be that 'some-one-special' in your life."

Jean Cribbaude, a member of the campus ministry of Stonehill College, Easton, will be among the speakers.

She has served as a member of the Archdiocese's retreat team at Cenacle, and in that capacity she coordinates retreats and parish missions for the spiritual development of the Archdiocese of Boston.

Other speakers will be Fr. William Williams of St. Thomas More, Braintree, and Sr. Esther Pleska, C.S.J. of St. Agatha's, Milton.

Marriage '85: Blending traditional and the contemporary

The epitome of elegance

Many modern wedding customs originated in the Victorian era

For the bride and groom, their families and friends, their "big day" is one of celebration and joy. Whether the guest list is large or small, the event is sure to be remembered fondly by all participants and observers.

The mention of the word "wedding" conjures up thoughts of delicate lace, fragrant flowers, the exchange of rings and strains of "Here Comes the Bride."

Whether the bride walks down the aisle in an elaborate, long-trained gown or in more simple garb, it is certain that much deliberation has gone into deciding on the style for this special occasion. Today's couples choose to incorporate whatever elements of tradition they find meaningful.

Many of the customs associated with weddings came to the fore during the Victorian period. The tradition of the honeymoon was established, and it was during this time that wedding attendants were first identified as "maid of honor" and "best man."

A FROTH OF RUFFLES AND LACE creates a look of luxurious elegance in these gowns by Michele Piccione for Budget Bridals. The high-necked gown (left) features a molded basque bodice of eyelet trimmed with lace ruffles and a two-tiered chapel train. A matching hat in white or white/pink is the perfect accessory. The gown (right), with a five-tiered bouffant skirt, features an asymmetrical waistline closing trimmed with flowers, and a chapel train of chantilly type lace. Both gown and matching picture hat available in white.

At royal and society weddings, six or eight bridesmaids were necessary to help carry the elaborate train of the bride's dress. Even at less flamboyant weddings, the weight of the bride's clothes necessitated at least one attendant to help maneuver her gown, and of course she needed assistance with the pre-wedding dressing in order to accomplish the drastic corseting that was in vogue during the Victorian and Edwardian periods.

Then, as now, the maid of honor would help the bride with assembling the trousseau and planning the details of the wedding.

Bridesmaids are no longer needed to aid in the uncomfortable donning of the corset, and in most cases the bride's train trails gracefully behind her as she walks down the aisle.

Rather than serving as ladies in waiting, today's bridal attendants are chosen by the bride as special friends whom she wants to have standing with her on her momentous day.

The enormous floral arrangements which sometimes threatened to dwarf the Victorian bride have given way to smaller, more refined bouquets, with the bride usually carrying an arrangement of her favorite flowers.

While elements of Victorian wedding customs are still present in modern ceremonies, they have changed and been adapted over the course of the years. No longer is the phrase "love, honor and obey" automatically uttered by every bride.

Men are also becoming much more involved in making the wedding plans. Gone are the days when the bride and her family automatically took charge of all the arrangements and decisions. From helping to choose a china pattern to picking the wedding site, the groom can now be involved in all aspects of the pre-wedding planning.

No matter what the setting chosen by the bride and groom, the freedom to design a wedding day that fulfills their idea of a dream come true will result in a happy and memorable day.

Quality. It's as important in diamonds as in anything else you own.

There's more to a diamond than meets the eye. And to understand the differences between diamonds is to understand the 4Cs—Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat-weight. It's these 4Cs that determine the value of a diamond.

The differences between diamonds are subtle indeed. But to people of discriminating taste, it's quality that makes all the difference. Your jeweler is the expert where diamonds are concerned. And he can show you high-quality diamonds in all sizes. They simply look better and will enhance your jewelry, no matter what the design.

Quality. It's unmistakable. And it's as important in diamonds as in anything else you own.

Diamond engagement ring: A long-standing tradition

Getting engaged is one of the most exciting moments in any woman's life, and a main part of that excitement is the diamond engagement ring.

The tradition of giving a diamond to signify an engagement began back in 1477, when Maximilian of Austria gave Mary of Burgundy a gold ring set with diamonds.

This romantic tradition continues at the Petit Salon of Harry Winston, from the classic solitaire to a more contemporary style — or a custom-designed ring for the bride-to-be.

An example of a contemporary setting is one from the Petit Salon collection of Harry Winston. Two bands surround one with your choice of stone — the most popular is the diamond. The center ring snaps securely into place.

The most wonderful aspect of this ring is that additional center bands may be purchased with different stones — the ring can then be coordinated with additional accessories from the Petit Salon. A lovely gift for the long lasting relationship.

Jewelry gifts for the wedding party for that special day

For brides and grooms, wedding plans include the selection of gifts for each other, their families and their close friends, and jewelry is the number one gift item exchanged on this special day.

Jewelers of America (JA), the national association of retail jewelers across the country, would like to offer suggestions to the bride and groom on buying fine jewelry for the special people who are close to them.

Bridal couples often exchange gifts to commemorate their marriage, and the items they choose for each other are worn during the wedding.

The groom should take into consideration the style of his bride's wedding dress when choosing something "new" she can wear that day. For example, a strand of pearls with a scoop-neck wedding dress, a gold bracelet on a bare arm, diamond earrings, the discreetly elegant watch all complement a wedding dress.

Some gift suggestions for the bride:

- A strand of cultured pearls, choker or princess length (18");
 - Sapphire or ruby earrings;
 - Gold or diamond bracelet;
 - Locket;
 - Diamond stud earrings;
 - Gold and diamond thin watch.
- For the Groom:
- Cufflinks in gold with onyx are the most popular gift;
 - Pocket watch with gold chain;
 - Gold tie clasp;
 - Belt buckle;
 - Gold watch;
 - Gold cigarette lighter;
 - Money clip;
 - Gold and diamond tie pin;
 - Studs in gold or in onyx to match cufflinks.

The mother of the bride and the mother of the groom will be glowing with pride during the ceremony. For such a special occasion, many couples or adoring husbands will give them a remembrance they can wear that day:

- Double strand of cultured pearls with a diamond clasp;
 - Gold and diamond necklace and bracelet set;
 - Diamond and colored stone bracelet and earrings;
 - Large gold and colored stone ring;
 - Diamond pin.
- The fathers-in-law-to-be also deserve something special:
- Cufflinks;
 - Studs;
 - Gold and diamond ring;
 - Gold watch;
 - Collar pin.

For the maid of honor, some gifts include:

- Colored stone ring;
- Pearl bracelet.

Some suggestions for bridesmaids' gifts:

- Gold chain necklace or bracelet;
- Freshwater pearl necklace or bracelet;

For the groomsmen, some gifts include:

- Lapel pins in gold or silver;
- Colored stone earrings or pendant in bridesmaid's birthstone;

- Gold hoop earrings;
- Charms with wedding date;
- Watch in new vibrant color;
- Wall clock.

For the best man, couples can consider:

- Signet ring;
- Credit card case;
- Pocket watch.

For ushers, popular gift ideas are:

- Pen and pencil sets;
- Key chains;
- Cufflinks;
- Tie pins, or personalized tie tacks;
- Cigarette lighters;
- Collar bars;
- Gold chain or bracelet;
- Money clip;
- Mustache comb;
- Desk clock;
- Travel alarm.

To learn more about fine jewelry, couples can obtain Jewelers of America's brochures by writing to Jewelers of America, Department CS, 1271 Avenue of the Americas, New York, NY 10020.

Honeymooners' survival kit

Late in your wedding day you'll both drive off with tin cans clanking, while friends and relatives pelt your car with rice or bird seed for good luck. Alone at last!

Somehow the breakfast you both missed for pre-wedding jitters, and reception dinner missed for all the dancing and excitement of the day, begin to catch up with you. Now that the day's events have come to a close, you find yourselves hungry and relaxed for the first time all day.

Stopping at a restaurant would hardly seem magical, and even ordering room service at the hotel would be another unwanted interruption.

Ah, but you find a gaily decorated basket in your getaway car en route to the hotel. A note attached reads: "Food Is Love," and is signed by a thoughtful member of the wedding party who packed the surprise.

The basket is filled with all the essential treats for two famished honeymooners: Fresh French bread, cold lemon chicken, a wedge of cheese and luscious strawberries.

There is sparkling Perrier for pure thirst quenching, and Lindt bittersweet chocolate truffles for pure indulging. The final ambrosia is two slices of wedding cake and a split of champagne.

And tucked into the side of the basket is a small bunch of daisies, because daisies don't tell...

Caught in the act.

Advice on how to choose a wedding photographer

A professional photographer is trained to consider not only the technical aspects of your photographic needs, but is also people-oriented and knows how to photograph you with sensitivity to capture the mood and feeling of the day, without interfering with the solemnity of the ceremony or the fun of the reception.

Here are some suggestions to help you select the right photographer:

- Begin early — particularly if you are getting married in the popular months of June, July, August or December, the busiest seasons — in order to book your choice of photographers.
- "Interview" a variety of photographers. Look at samples of their work. Select a photographer whose style suits the images you'd like to capture.
- Arrange for a formal bridal portrait for the newspaper at the time of your final gown fitting.
- Don't change your hair style, or have it cut or frosted, just before taking your portrait — you want to look like you. Keep jewelry and other accessories to a minimum. Your makeup should not be excessive.

• Enlist a friend or relative to identify special friends and relatives for the photographer. At the reception, request photographs of your guests at various table groupings.

Wedding photographs do not have to be limited to your album; they have many creative uses. Here are a few suggestions:

- An album for your parents;
 - Personal thank-you notes with your photograph;
 - Christmas cards or gifts;
 - Decor for your home.
- Most professional photographers use quality Kodak film and paper and will provide you with photographic memories perfect for your wedding album, gift giving, home decor and other purposes.

New Baseball Coaches At Quincy, North

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy and North Quincy baseball teams both have new head coaches this season.

Several weeks ago Charlie Bunker resigned as North coach after 14 years and has been replaced by Tom Fitzgerald.

Now, Arthur (Bud) Mosher has stepped down as Quincy's coach after 12 seasons and Bob Sylvia, his assistant the past five years, has been appointed to succeed him.

Mosher had two Eastern Mass. tournament teams and in the late 1970s he had what was to have been his best team. However, due to an unfortunate incident, he was forced to drop five of his best players.

"I think this would have been my best team and I honestly felt it could have won the state championship," he said.

Several of his players went on to star in college and some of them signed pro contracts and played minor league ball.

Bud was assistant coach for six years, was an assistant football coach for 11 seasons and golf coach for a year.

Mosher was a three-letterman at Rockland, Me. High School (baseball, football and basketball) and played baseball for a year at the University of Maine. However, he gave up baseball to concentrate on football his last two years and was an outstanding end for the Black Bears.

He played football for the Brockton Pros in the mid-1960s and also played semipro baseball and basketball.

Sylvia, Quincy's hockey coach for 19 years, is coaching varsity baseball for the first time after five years as Mosher's assistant.

"I have coached in Little League and have been an umpire for several years, and I am looking forward to being Quincy's head coach," he said. "Bud did a fine job and I hope to continue where he left off."

Sylvia played baseball at Roslindale High and Boston University and was a standout in hockey at BU.

He will have the same assistants as he has in hockey, Bob Troup and George Peachey.

Hughes, Anne McGuigan, Maureen Donovan and Nancy Leonard. Back, Jean Marie Welby, Karen Runge, Eileen Warren, Capt. Ann Duggan, Geraldine Murphy, Stephanie Petrakos and Mary Alice Sullivan.

Meeting Thursday

Quincy, North Move To Leave Suburban League

A campaign is underway to get the Quincy and North Quincy athletic teams out of the Suburban League.

A second meeting of North Quincy coaches, parents and other interested persons will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 in the North cafeteria.

The North group has invited all Quincy coaches and parents to attend.

At the initial meeting of the North group last week, the coaches discussed their problems trying to compete in the Suburban League, in which Quincy and North are the smallest schools.

Parents also gave their opinions and School Committee member Steve Durkin, giving his support, said Quincy school officials should make a formal application to the Old Colony League and report back at the school committee's first meeting in May. He also suggested a committee of parents and others interested be organized to push the issue.

With a few exceptions, the North Quincy and Quincy teams are unable to compete against the other league schools, who have many more boys and girls.

Weymouth North and Weymouth South High schools were in the same boat as North and Quincy, finding it most difficult competing in the Suburban League and both moved into the Old Colony League, where they have been getting their share of wins. They are among the smallest schools in that league but are much more in their own class.

Several of the Old Colony League schools have larger enrollments than Quincy and North, but both schools would be far better off in that league.

In addition to the league issue, the North Quincy group is also taking up the issue of the North gym floor, which has been responsible for many painful injuries to basketball players, gymnasts and other athletes.

Tall Tony Lavelli scored 18 points and halted many North Quincy scoring efforts with his towering defense as the Somerville High School basketball team eliminated the Raiders 39-24 in the opening round of the Tech Tournament at Boston Garden.

Tom Meade, the North center, managed to lead his team's scorers with nine points despite being frustrated by Lavelli for most of the night. Ed Humphrey also played a steady floor game in a losing cause.

Charlie White popped in a two-pointer for North in the opening minutes of the third period to cut the Somerville lead to 17-15 but Somerville found the range and, with Lavelli hitting hook shots, extended the lead to 31-19 at the end of the first quarter.

One of the team's most aggressive players, Lauren set a school record for penalties with over 60. She was one of the tallest players on the team and "other players just bounce off me," she said. "If a penalty is called, the referees assume it was me. I could never get into the movies for 12 and under, either—even when I was 12."

She was not a scholarship athlete at UNH and Coach Russ McCurdy said "Lauren came here on her own. There was no preferential treatment and I didn't even meet her until after she had been accepted."

"UNH was always my first choice," the North Quincy star said. "I only applied to schools with hockey. When I found out that I probably couldn't get an athletic scholarship, I decided I'd just go to the best school."

Lauren improved every season and this year was one of the outstanding players in New England. In addition to scoring 35 points, she was the Lady Wildcats' best defenseman.

Koch Women Advance In Tourney

The Koch Club Women's Bowling League team, entered in the South Shore Women's Bowling Tourney, defeated John's Angels in the opening round, 1528-1448, at the East Weymouth Bowl-A-Way.

Winning the first string, 509-492, four of the five Koch team members topped the 100 mark to offset Michelle Low's 126 that kept the losers in contention.

In the second string, John's Angels went cold as the Koch ladies repeated their consistency, scoring a 513 and a 49 pin win as Maryellen Walsh rolled a 113, Debra Koch 110 and Barbara Murphy 108 led the Koch's while Michelle fired a 121 in vain for the losers.

The Kochs made it a sweep in the finals outscoring the Angels, 506 to 492 as Maryellen Walsh with a 130 and Barbara Murphy's 110 assured the win for the Quincy team.

Zurom's Paces Squantum, Montclair Downs Central

Dave Zurom's season-high 20 points led Squantum to a 73-41 victory over Merrimack in action in the Quincy Recreation Department's Senior Hoop League.

The victory keeps Squantum in a first place tie with idle Beechwood Knoll with four wins and one loss. Zuroms received support from Steve Dever, who followed closely with 19 points, while Mike Doherty had 14. Mike Hayes was the game's high scorer while pumping in 21 points for Merrimack. Chris Meyer had 12 mostly on offensive rebounds. Matt Gorman chipped in with 5. Squantum's John Panaro was the top rebounder for his club with Rob Keddy high for Merrimack.

Central center continues winless but not without a fight as it lost to once-beaten Montclair, 50-46. Angelo Kapetanakis had 16 followed by Ted Stevenson's 11 and Gary McNamara 10. Montclair had its usual balanced attack. Larry Taglieri 12, Don Green 11 and Ted McCarthy 8 sparked the Central upset bid. Dean Zoia, Montclair's coach, also praised Brian Flukes and Chris Gray for some tough defense, in the fourth quarter.

Central mentor Dan Coughlin was quick to praise the hustle of Billy Palmer and defense of Scott Sacchetti.

The standings: Squantum 4-1; Beechwood, 4-1; Montclair, 3-1; Point, 3-1; Merrimack, 1-3; Central, 0-4; Atherton, 0-4.

Karen Bridges Shines At Merrimack

Karen Bridges, of 177 Harriet Ave., Quincy, has just completed a fine season as a starting center for the Lady Warriors basketball team at Merrimack College.

Bridges, a sophomore, finished the season as the team's second high rebounder, pulling down 6.5 rebounds per contest. Karen finished sixth among Warrior scorers, setting 128 points for a 3.1 scoring average.

Karen's finest effort of the season came against Northeast-8 opponent St. Anselm on February 2. In that game she scored 16 points and hauled down 13 rebounds, both individual career highs.

In their inaugural season in the Northeast-8, the Lady Warriors finished with a 10-15 overall record and a 2-11 mark in conference play, good for 7th place. Merrimack was quickly eliminated in the first round of the Northeast-8 tournament, losing to eventual champion Bentley, 78-56.

The Lady Warriors ran off to a 6-3 start, which included first ever wins against Plymouth State (40-39), Emmanuel (69-56), Clark (57-50) and Eastern Nazarene (47-40). Coach Hochman recorded her first Northeast-8 win 11 games into the conference schedule, an 80-68 home victory against Assumption on February 13.

A first-team all-star of the Patriot Ledger, Karen was a three-year letter winner at North Quincy High School. In her senior year she led the team in rebounding (10 a game) and field goal percentage (53%). She also averaged 10.7 points a game in that year.

In her last high school game, Karen established a school record, scoring 31 points on 12-for-16 from the floor and 7-for-8 from the line.

Karen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bridges.

PRICING YOUR HOUSE RIGHT

QUESTION: What is the best way to put the proper selling price on a home?

ANSWER: The value of your house is not what you think it is - or what the buyer thinks. It is determined chiefly by the location, the neighborhood, and the current market. An overpriced house sitting on the market for months becomes almost impossible to sell. So first, you must get in line with the market. That means a realistic appraisal.

Nobody - but nobody - is more acutely aware of the current housing market than your local Realtor. Or you can hire a qualified independent appraiser. You may be pleasantly surprised to find out that you were intending to price your house for less than its fair market value.

NOBODY - BUT NOBODY is more aware of current home values than your local REALTOR.

Kaleidoscope Theatre During Special Needs Month

"An Evening with Kaleidoscope Theatre" will be presented Monday, March 25, at 7 p.m. at North Quincy High School.

Kaleidoscope Theatre of Providence, R.I., will perform two of its nationally acclaimed productions, "I'm Special - Your Special" and "Welcome Home".

The two one-act musicals, which deal with the mainstreaming of retarded citizens into public school systems and into society, are being presented as part of Special Needs Awareness Month.

For more information and tickets, contact Dr. Allan G. Osborne, Jr., Coordinator of Special Education for the Quincy Public Schools, at 786-8743.

The first presentation,

"I'm Special - You're Special", deals with the Brown family and the eldest son, David, who is to attend his sibling's school for the first time.

After a short intermission, "Welcome Home", which concerns the same family five years later when David wants to move into a community home and make a life for himself, will conclude the program.

Both productions have been feature presentations at two national conventions for the National Association for Retarded Citizens where they were met with standing ovations and the enthusiastic support of audience members from throughout the United States.

The public is encouraged to attend.

2 Classic Dramas To Be Presented At ENC

The Eastern Nazarene College Department of Communication Arts is preparing its spring production of two classic dramas, Everyman and Samson Agonistes by John Milton.

They will be presented together for three consecutive nights, Thursday March 21, Friday March 22, and Saturday March 23, at 7 p.m.

Produced by Ronda Windler and directed by Jim Byrne, the familiar but rarely-performed dramas complement each other in theme and message. Both will be presented using the original texts, but will be updated in terms of setting, symbols, and idioms.

Everyman, a medieval morality play/comedy, stars Joy Oliver, and Samson Agonistes, written in the classic Greek tragedy style, stars Jeff Frame as the tragic hero Samson.

As a part of the department's on-going educational theater program, the plays are also being presented in a matinee format for local school systems to attend at a reduced rate.

General Admission tickets are $3, and will be sold at the door. The performances will be held at the Cove Fine Arts Center at Eastern Nazarene College, 23 East Elm Ave., Wollaston.

QUINCY RESIDENT - Claire Rodriguez will portray Lizzie in Curtin Call Theatre's production of "The Rainmaker" which opens tonight (Thursday) and continues to Saturday at Thayer Academy, Braintree. At left is Curt Buckler of Framingham as Starbuck.

2 Residents In 'The Rainmaker'

Two Quincy residents are among the cast of Curtin Call Theatre's winter production of "The Rainmaker" tonight (Thursday) to Saturday at 8 p.m. at Thayer Academy, Braintree.

The local residents are Claire Rodriguez as Lizzie and Larry LeCours as H.C.

Tickets are available at the door and by calling 963-2436.

Cablesystems Rates Going Up On May 1

The cost of basic services on Quincy Cablesystems is going up about 20 per cent, effective May 1.

Subscribers were informed by letter that Supercable service is increasing from $7.95 to $9.95 a month, Focus from $5.50 to $6.50 and Lifeline from $1.95 to $2.50.

General Manager John J. King said Cablesystems made many improvements in the system during the past year and "as you are no doubt aware, such progress is not without costs."

King listed some of those improvements as increased staffing in engineering and technical repair, expanded phone capacity, added customers service staffing and expansion of computer software in billing.

Three new services were added to Supercable, he said, Financial News Network, Eternal Word Television Network and the American Channel.

"Of course," he said, "a key new premium service offering has been New England News Network."

Two new channels are about to be added, to Supercable, he said, Video Hits 1 and WVJV Channel 66, the newest Boston UHF channel.

AMNESTY DECLARED!

THEFT OF CABLE IS AGAINST MASSACHUSETTS STATE LAW. We at Quincy Cablesystems have become increasingly concerned that a growing number of customers have altered their converter box(s) in order to receive premium services they are not paying for. New technological devices are now available to us that make detection of theft possible without entering the home and the evidence is admissible in a court of law.

Some of you might not have realized the seriousness of this crime and in an effort to eliminate cable theft and prosecution of violators, we are declaring a fair amnesty period during the month of March.

If you are receiving unauthorized cable service or suspect that your converter box has been altered in any way, bring it in to our office (81 School St., Quincy) and we will exchange that converter to receive whatever level of service you want to pay for — NO QUESTIONS ASKED!

After April 1st, you may be subject to prosecution under the law, so we urge you to act now. If you have any questions, please call 471-9143.

March 15-30

WE ALL KNOW STEALING IS A CRIME.

WHAT MAKES STEALING CABLE SERVICES ANY DIFFERENT?

NOTHING.

WEEK OF: MARCH 14

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
Mystery is the theme of the week. You may learn something new about an old friend. A detour on the weekend can have positive results. Avoid snap decisions.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
Travel for business is a possibility, and renewed friendship is a probability. Creative writing can be enjoyed for fun or profit. Financial judgment may be fuzzy.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
A reluctant friend becomes surprisingly enthusiastic about your latest grand idea. If arranging a party, it's crucial that the guest list is carefully planned.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22
For health's sake, think about signing up for a recreation program. New acquaintance may be demanding of your time. Old friend supports your latest controversial idea.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
You are too offbeat for your current companions, but your advanced ideas will soon pay off. Plans can be broken at the last moment. Romantic commitment may be delayed.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Emotions take charge now - you're acting more from the heart than from the mind. Compromise is the keyword in family matters. Educational expansion is highlighted through the week.

LEO - July 23-August 22
You're ready to fight for a cause - and such a cause emerges after the weekend. Stubborn streak surfaces. Loved one is becoming more understanding of present situation.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
In business, look for the obvious and express your ideas with clarity. Subtlety is not the current approach. Romancewise, however, make your moves based on sharp intuition.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Thursday and Friday are unexpectedly lucky in areas of friendship and romance. Financial favor is returned at long last. Friends are crying on both your shoulders.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
An unpleasant surprise may have a cheerful ending, and an optimistic outlook is all-important. Recent financial moves benefit from a review. Volunteer assignment has some fringe benefits.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
Friend may involve you in a personal problem; be cautious about a conflict-of-interest situation. Social life perks up. Sarcastic colleague mellows and may actually become an ally.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
Temperers are fired easily - your family's, and your own. The key is to maintain a warm sense of humor. Arranging parties is a present strength. In romance, the light touch is crucial.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You change your moods, your plans, your ideas. That's part of your charm and your fascination, but it's hard for others to keep up with you - and sometimes to understand you. Next twelve months accent personal - and perhaps financial - expansion.

BORN THIS WEEK

Bankruptcy Counsel Approved For Duane Case

The City Council's Finance Committee Monday night approved the hiring of a special bankruptcy counsel to look after the city's interests in Chapter 11 proceedings involving the John J. Duane Corp.

Duane, which has filed for bankruptcy and is seeking to reorganize, owes the city $835,000 in back taxes and interest dating back to 1976.

Asst. City Solicitor Jay MacRitchie said he has handled such bankruptcy cases in the past when only small claims were at stake.

"I would have to spend my entire time on this," he said. "This case calls for a specialist in bankruptcy law."

MacRitchie said Duane lists $2 million in liabilities and $420,000 in assets, half its debt to the city.

Labor Negotiator's Bid For Funds Draws Fire

Labor Negotiator David Grunebaum appeared before the City Council's Finance Committee Monday night seeking more money to finish out the fiscal year.

Some councillors were mildly critical of his handling of current contract negotiations with city employees, some of whose contracts expired last June 30.

Other councillors indicated they thought it might be better if labor negotiations were handled by a fulltime city employee as they were prior to February, 1982.

The committee wound up endorsing Grunebaum's bid for $10,000 to be added to a previous $25,000 with Councillors Joanne Condon and James A. Sheets voting against it.

City Solicitor Dean Nicastro said the $10,000 would bring funding for the negotiator to $35,000, which was the figure he asked for in his original budget.

There is $3,139.57 remaining in the account for fiscal 1985, he said, and he figures billings will run about $3,000 a month for the remaining four months of the year.

Councillor Condon indicated she felt that Grunebaum was not really doing a good job in the post for which he was contracted in 1982, replacing Asst. Solicitor Joseph McParland.

Condon noted that most city contracts expired last June 30 "and I don't see many other communities waiting this long to settle."

"A lot of communities are settling for more than we are offering," she said, "yet they are under the same constraints that we are. Why?"

"It appears that the problem is not so much the cost factor as the commitment that the city has to give raises to its employees."

Councillor Michael Cheney suggested that the city might be better off with a fulltime negotiator who has an office in the city and is available at a moment's notice.

Grunebaum, a Boston lawyer, is a contract employee.

A fulltime negotiator on the scene, said Cheney, "would be responsive to the mayor and to the city employees and could settle contracts without dragging them out."

McParland, who was fired as fulltime labor negotiator in February, 1982, was paid $23,500 a year and his duties also included negotiating with hospital unions. Grunebaum does not.

Nicastro said a comparable salary today would be $27,500 with a couple of thousand dollars in fringe benefits.

Cheney Speaker At H.N. Council Meeting

The Houghs Neck Community Council will hold an open meeting Tuesday, March 19 at 8 p.m. in the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193

Sea St.

Guest speaker will be Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney who will discuss local issues and problems.

1989 Forecast:

Pension Costs May Bring City Layoffs, Service Cuts

By TOM HENSHAW

"It's a serious long range problem," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

And the range is getting shorter all the time.

"This year it won't impact the budget too much," said McCauley, "but next year and the years to come it will have a very serious impact."

It could mean cuts in city services as early as fiscal 1987, curtailed pay raises for city employees in fiscal 1988, layoffs of city employees in 1989.

The problem is that the city has $106 million in unfunded pension obligations to city employees and the state is moving lethargically to straighten the problem out all over the state.

In fiscal 1986, which starts July 1, Quincy is obligated to pay $9.8 million in retirement benefits.

The following year it will be over $10 million and by fiscal 1990, the figure is calculated to reach $15.9 million, all of which will have to come out of the city budget.

On Monday, the City Council moved to permit the city to take $1.4 million from the surplus earnings in the city's retirement fund to help pay for the pensions for fiscal 1986.

That means McCauley will only have to ask the taxpayers for $8.4 million for the budgeted retirement account.

But, under a new state law, only two-thirds of the surplus earnings can be used in fiscal 1987, one-third in fiscal 1988 and none at all in fiscal 1990.

This was mandated by the state in order to build up a retirement reserve fund to the point where it is self-supporting by the turn of the century.

Surplus earnings are defined as the difference between what the fund earns on its 10 percent investment and what it would earn if placed in a savings bank at 5.5 percent.

Quincy's pension fund, the principle of which totals $37 million, produced $1,720,000 in surplus earnings this year. The Retirement Board voted to put $320,000 in the retirement reserve and give the rest to the city to reduce the retirement budget.

Next year only two-thirds can be used and, by 1990 none at all.

"Even if we would use the surpluses in the future," said McCauley, "the amount of money available will not rise as rapidly as the amount of money needed to pay pensions."

While the city's expenditures for pensions will rise, its ability to raise money to pay them is severely restricted by Proposition 2½.

"I have seen a report that says by 1990, about 90 percent of all the additional monies that can be generated under 2½ will go to pensions," said the Mayor.

"It's kind of scary." "It's going to be a major problem five years from now," said City Auditor Robert Foy.

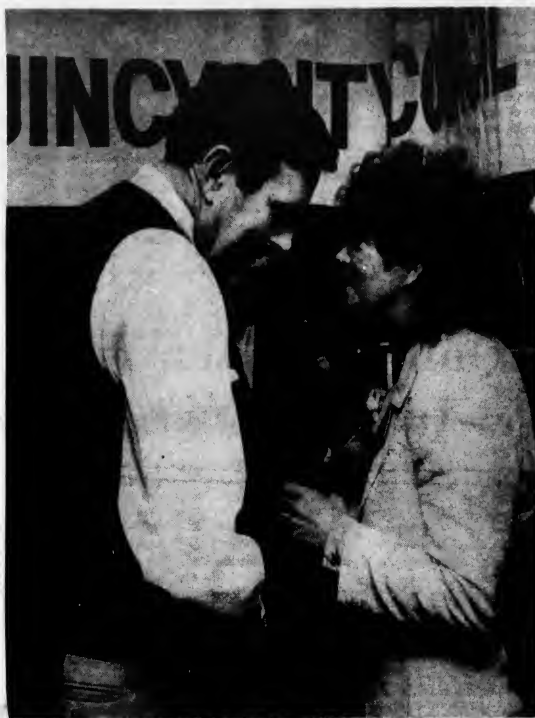

"The state must find some way to help the cities and towns. They can't help themselves under Proposition 2½. But I don't see the legislature doing much about it."

Last Monday, however, the state made an initial move toward straightening out the mess.

It was disclosed that Administration and Finance Secretary Frank T. Keefe is drafting a plan under which the state would take over the unfunded pension obligation of the cities and towns, which totals $11 billion across the state.

Under the plan, the state would place $51.5 billion in new revenues into the pension systems in gradually increasing amounts over the next 40 years until the pension system is funded by the year 2025.

And that's none too soon for cities like Quincy.

Sheets Criticizes Labor Negotiations

City Council President James A. Sheets is critical of the manner in which the McCauley Administration conducts labor negotiations with city employees.

"I'm not happy with the way they involve the city in litigation," he said. "There is a tendency to try to resolve too many issues legally in this city."

That is why, he said, he was one of two councillors to vote Monday night against an appropriation of $10,000 to pay Labor Negotiator David Grunebaum for the rest of the year.

"The only way I have to register my disagreement is to vote against an appropriation in the future unless I see a change in attitude."

Sheets cited the case of Tom Blasi, the 22-year employee of the Veterans Services Department who was laid off for three years before finally winning reinstatement.

Compensation for Blasi has not yet been decided, said Sheets, but it could cost the city between $70,000 and $90,000.

"Grunebaum said that the city tried for a year to settle with Blasi through negotiations," he said, "but nothing happened until we lost the first round in Civil Service."

"Then they tried to settle out of court. That's ridiculous."

"I have no quarrel with the quality of service that Mr. Grunebaum is giving the city but I question the methods that are used by the administration."

"I realize it is easier to litigate an issue because it takes the decision-making away from those who are elected to decide and gives it to a judge."

Councillor Joanne Condon also voted against the $10,000 appropriation, which would bring Grunebaum's pay for the year to $35,000, the amount originally requested in the budget.

Grunebaum is not a city employee but is contracted to handle labor negotiations for the city.

Lydon Puts Hold On Hospital Bond

Plans to build a new and larger Quincy City Hospital were put on hold for at least two weeks in the City Council Monday night.

Councillor John J. Lydon Jr. objected to the introduction of Mayor Francis X. McCauley's $75 million borrowing petition, which means it cannot be discussed until the April 1 meeting. Lydon cited unsolved problems with the hospital's neighbors and concerns with the financing of the project as reasons for his objection.

"I find," he said, "that an integral part of the financial package—the FHA financing and insurance—are not in place."

"I'd also like to know how $60 million as gone to $75 million without any details of the financing."

McCauley's lengthy home rule petition asks the state legislature for permission to borrow up to $75 million outside the city's debt limit to build the hospital.

Man, 78, Burned In Fire, Lodging License Revoked

A 78-year-old man suffered burns on the left hand and face as an early Tuesday morning fire swept a rooming house at 1-3 McGrath Highway, Quincy Center.

A few hours later, the License Board voted to revoke the lodging house license held by Mrs. Hikmet Abraham for public safety and public health reasons.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the License Board, called the rooming house "a disgrace" and Fire Chief Edward Barry said Mrs. Abraham "appeared to be in violation of her license."

The injured man, Patrick

Connors, a roomer in the house, was treated and released from Quincy City Hospital. No one else reported injuries.

Fire Capt. Patrick Clair, the acting deputy on the scene, estimated damage at $35,000.

Clair said it was not determined how many lodgers were in the house at the time of the fire but there were 18 rooms and "it looked like all of them were occupied."

Chief Barry said he believed the lodging house was licensed for 12 lodgers and he was told that there were 18 in the house Tuesday morning.

Barry said there was supposed to be a master fire alarm box connection at the house but there was none.

"The conditions almost defied description," he told his colleagues on the License Board. "The lodgers were living under conditions they should not have been living under."

"Anyone who operated a lodging house under those conditions should not have a license in Quincy. Her license was violated to an unbelievable degree with regard to the fire, Building and Wiring Departments."

"The house is not habitable."

Capt. Clair said the fire apparently started with a portable heater coming in contact with a combustible material in Patrick Connors' room.

He said Connors was burned fighting the flames before the firefighters arrived.

Clair said the blaze destroyed two rooms--a sleeping room and a common kitchen--in the old 2 and 1/2 story wooden house that was once an estate.

Clerk Gillis said the Board is not required to hold a hearing before revoking a license for public health reasons but the Board voted to have Mrs. Abraham appear at next Tuesday's meeting.

UNEXPECTEDLY HEAVY snowfall, up to five inches in some sections of the city, made the footing treacherous for pedestrians in downtown Quincy Monday morning.

Quincy Chosen To Take Part In State Energy Program

Quincy is one of 10 Massachusetts communities chosen to participate in a unique new state energy conservation program called the Innovative Financing Demonstration Program.

It is a financing mechanism that allows a city or town to install energy conservation and alternative energy measures in buildings without paying an upfront capital cost.

The program also guarantees energy savings to the city.

Under the program, the State Energy Office will arrange for an energy service company to provide energy efficiency measures to the qualified local buildings and will finance the improvements.

Most energy service companies receive payments based on the level of energy savings obtained from the work on the buildings.

In Quincy, the energy conservation measures will be implemented on City Hall, the Department of Public Works buildings, the Highway Department building and the Health Center.

"This program will allow Quincy to save energy and tax dollars at no risk to the community," said Sen. Paul D. Harold and Michael W. Morrissey.

"The contract stipulates that the local government will make payments to the energy service company only on the basis of the energy that is saved."

State Energy Secretary Sharon M. Pollard said she expects to have a contract between Quincy and the energy service company signed by next summer.

Payments to the company will start when the energy conservation measures start to produce energy savings.

$20,000 Appropriated For Tree Planting

The City Council Monday night appropriated $20,000 to plant trees in areas of the city that are ineligible for federal funds for that purpose.

"Federal Community Development Block Grant money is available for target areas," said Councilor Stephen J. McGrath. "Other areas are short-changed in their many requests for trees."

Richard J. Koch, executive director of Park and Forestry told the Council that the $20,000 will purchase about 200 sturdy Norway Maple and Crim-son King trees.

He said that in the past 10 years some 2,400 trees have been removed in the city and 1,600 of them replaced in the federally funded target areas.

"I have a long list of outstanding requests for trees outside the target areas," he said.

Gunman Gets $2,000 In Gas Station Holdup

A man wearing a fatigue jacket, dungarees and work boots and carrying a .32 calibre handgun held up the Old Colony Gas station at 9 Franklin St. Monday and fled with $2,000 in cash.

Attendant James B. Cioffi, 21, of Braintree told police the man came into the station shortly before 11 p.m. while he was preparing receipts for a bank deposit, pointed a gun at him and demanded money. Cioffi said he put the money in a bank bag and the man left with it in an undetermined direction.

The gunman was described as about 27 years old, six feet tall, 175 pounds, with brown or auburn hair.

McCauley Hesitates To Sign Condon's $2.5 M GD Petition

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said Tuesday he is in no rush to sign a home rule petition asking the state for a gift of $2.5 million to settle a tax overlay deficit with General Dynamics.

The petition offered by Councillor Joanne Condon was passed by the Council Monday night but another one proposed by McCauley was left in the Finance Committee.

"Before I sign (Condon's petition)," said McCauley, "I want to talk to the Quincy legislators again and get a feel for what the Legislature would do."

"We already have one home rule petition in the Legislature a big one. What would they do if we sent them two? I want to hold off and get a line on things."

Last week McCauley signed another Condon home rule petition asking the state for an interest-free loan of $17.7 with which to pay off the city's tax indebtedness to General Dynamics.

The Mayor called it "a good proposal no matter who made it."

This time, however, Condon's overlay petition was in completing with one of McCauley's asking the state for permission to settle the overlay in 11 years with city money.

"There is a question in my mind whether the state is going to make an outright grant of $2.5 million," he said. "Maybe my home rule petition is more in line."

The Council decided to leave McCauley's petition in committee at the urging of Councillor Michael Cheney, who wanted to consult with the legislative delegation first.

"This pointed out that General Dynamics could ask for an abatement certificate and, under the court order, the city would have to give it and take the $2.5 million out of the fiscal 1986 budget.

Councillor Richard J. Koch Jr. moved that the McCauley petition ought to pass and the motion was seconded by Councillor Patricia Toland.

Then, after listening to the other councillors, Toland removed her second "so that the petition can stay in committee." Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro then seconded Koch's motion.

After some more debate, DeCristofaro removed his second and Koch "reluctantly" removed his motion.

Koch set Monday, April 1, at 6:45 p.m. for a meeting of the Finance Committee to which the city's legislators were invited to explain the petition's chances.

He added that the legislators should be sent individual invitations to attend the meeting.

MEMORIAL to World War II veterans from South Quincy is shown in this drawing of the proposed granite monument designed to contain the names of more than 900 men and women who served.

Over 900 South Quincy Veterans Names Sought For New Memorial

The names of more than 900 South Quincy men and women who served in the U.S. Armed Forces during World War II are being sought for inclusion on a granite memorial planned for Liberty Park at Liberty and Trafford Sts.

The names originally appeared on a wooden memorial that was set up at the spot in 1945 but disappeared when the memorial deteriorated in the early 1960s.

"We're trying to track the list down but I can't seem to find it," said Gino Sacchetti of Braintree, an ex-SeaBee who still thinks of South Quincy as his hometown.

Sacchetti issued an appeal this week to anyone who might have a list of the names that appeared on the old memorial to send the information to him at 4 Edwards Rd., Braintree

"If we can't find the list or any information on it then we will have the families contact us and try to make up a new list of our own," said Sacchetti.

The problem is that Sacchetti and his group of World War II veterans would like to dedicate the new memorial sometime in June and there is very little time left.

Board Continues Request For Vietnamese Restaurant License

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to March 26 a request for a common victualer license for the Flavors of Vietnam, 37 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

The request, from Tan Xuan Doan of Allston, is for the former site of The Pastry Connection.

According to the application, the restaurant would offer Vietnamese food seven days a week, 7 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Some bakery items such as croissants and donuts may also be offered.

Doan has operated restaurants in Allston and Cambridge according to the application.

The board continued the matter to allow time for an inspection by the Joint Inspection Team.

Members also requested that Brendan Gallagher, or another representative of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association, attend the meeting.

Tax Bills In Mail This Week

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said Tuesday he expects tax bills for the second half of fiscal 1985 to be in the mail this week, possibly as early as yesterday (Wednesday).

The due date is May 1.

"This is the earliest we've had tax bills out since I've been in office," said McCauley. "I am asking Quincy taxpayers to pay them as soon as possible."

The bills are prepared on the basis of $21.03 per $1,000 valuation for residential property and $30.86 for commercial, industrial and personal property.

'Dirty Books' Hearing March 27

The Planning Board will hold a public hearing Wednesday, March 27, at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chambers on a zoning ordinance that would severely restrict the location of adult book stores and movies in Quincy.

The Board will also hear plans for the construction of a new office building in Batterymarch Park off Willard St., West Quincy by Claremont Batterymarch Associates and the National Fire Protection Association.

Hearing on a planned unit development (PUD) permit will be at 7:30 p.m.

and hearing on the subdivision plan will be at 7:45 p.m.

Budget Goes To Council April 1

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said Tuesday he plans to submit the city budget for fiscal 1986 to the City Council at its Monday, April 1 meeting.

He declined to disclose the amount.

"I am submitting the budget a week early," he said, "because we already have the cherry sheet receipts and charges and I expect the new water and sewer charges next week."

The City Council has 45 days from the date of submission (or May 15), in which to act on the budget.

The deadline set by the state for submission to the Council is April 8. But to wait until that time, the Mayor said, would have made a special Council meeting necessary.

Eliminate Unsuitable Waste Materials From Nut Island

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
An educational plan was introduced to the M.D.C., C.A.C. and E.P.A. on Jan.
21, 1982 relating to the elimination of any and all disposable waste (other than natural body excretion) from being deposited in toilets.

Such as: Pampers (only the top two layers with body waste); items used for feminine hygiene should be disposed of in the trash or burned; garbage or other foreign matter.

The M.D.C. pumping station at Nut Island is bursting at the seams. It is an obsolete facility overburdened by the usage of too many cities (23) and the volume of about 193 million persons. If the above unsuitable waste materials were eliminated, there would be an estimated 30 per cent reduction in the sewer load that is straining the digestors at the plant beyond their capacity.

Please Help us as well as yourselves to cleaner beaches, waterways, and the deterring of offensive odors.

SOME BENEFITS OF AGE

QUESTION: What are the advantages of purchasing an older home?

ANSWER: If you want more house for your dollar, you have good cause to look over older houses. For one thing, there are more old houses than new ones.
For every new house that will go up this year, there are some 45 existing homes already on the market.

Many older homes offer more abundant space - a special attraction if you have a large family, but a limited budget.
Most old homes are in well-established, well-developed neighborhoods. There will be no waiting for streets to be paved, sewers to be connected or schools to be built. All that is going to grace the neighborhood is already there.

Pasquerella: 75% Sure

Don't look now, but is that a mayoral preliminary election on the Quincy political horizon?

Hank Pasquerella, former president of the Quincy Education Association, is getting closer and closer to stepping in as the third candidate which would force a preliminary run-off.

"I'm 75 per cent sure I will go," Pasquerella says. "But I still want to give myself a little more time before making a final decision."

Pasquerella, who is a member of the teachers negotiating team, has not been happy with the way contract talks have been going with the School Committee.

In a recent letter to QEA members Pasquerella accused the School Committee and Mayor Francis McCauley of conducting the negotiations in a "rude and paragonomous manner" and said if they persisted he would run for mayor.

He's a lot closer to the mayoral ring now than when he wrote that blistering letter.

"If I ran," he says, "I know I would be the underdog. I don't mind being the underdog. I don't want to be the fool."

What he means by that is that he wants to look at everything in a realistic manner before finally making up his mind.

And, one reality he must face is: money.
Mayor McCauley has said he plans to spend about $50,000 — the same amount he spent in his first run against Daniel Raymond four years ago.

Challenger Joanne Condon, observers think, will have to come up with between $75,000 and $100,000 to wage an effective campaign.

"I don't know where I could raise that kind of money," says Pasquerella quite frankly.

Pasquerella believes there should be a preliminary election and that may be the final convincer for him to get in the race.

"A preliminary election certainly would be a good thing for the people of Quincy," he says. "It gives them three choices rather than two."

"And it's good for the candidates. By having a preliminary election, they can find out early how they really stand. If they wait until November, it's too late to correct problems a preliminary election might show."

And, leaning more and more toward becoming the third candidate that would force a preliminary election, he says:

"Frank McCauley and Joanne Condon aren't that far apart in their thinking. I might have something to say that they don't."

THERE WERE PLENTY of shamrocks and bars at the annual City Council St. Patrick's Day celebration at Kelly's Pub & Grub.

Mayor Frank McCauley and challenger Joanne Condon had the opportunity to both zing one another and sing-along together at the shindig hosted by Ward 3 Councillor John Lydon.

At one point, Condon was seen whispering something close to McCauley's ear. It was the closest the two have been since she announced her candidacy for mayor.

McCauley referred to Condon as the "People's Candidate" (her slogan) and said she was off to the fastest mayoral campaign since Daniel Raymond whom he defeated four years ago. He also wanted to know if it is true that she would name Ralph Maher Public Works Commissioner . . . Condon has been saying a mayor needs a heart so McCauley announced he was going to Houston in May for a heart transplant. He said the donor was "a social worker who died in a demonstration protesting cuts in food stamps" . . . Condon responded that she had no plans for a transplant and didn't need one. "We have a heart," she said. "There is no need for a new one" . . . "I'm running for mayor," she added. "I'm not running against Frank McCauley."

Lydon, who is as exciting an emcee as Ed Sullivan ever was, introduced Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney as "the sludge king" for his fight against a new treatment plant on Nut Island . . . Lydon, who is an undertaker, exhumed an old chestnut when he noted Councillor Joseph LaRaia likes to read the obituaries but he had to tell him that people don't die in alphabetical order . . . LaRaia said the only reason he was present was that he thought Kelly's Pub & Grub was a Sons of Italy Hall . . .

The press wasn't spared from the barbs either. Councillor Patricia Toland, speaking after the Patriot Ledger's Phil Dinan got off a few alleged "funny" lines observed: "I'm impressed. I didn't think he had any talent" . . . She also noted that this is the time of the year when yours truly calls up everyone he can think of and tells them they would be a great candidate "just so he can get a lot of ads" . . . Lydon wondered if The Quincy Sun changes its name to St. John's Gazette what would happen to Tom Henshaw.

Despite all the Irish names present - including Arthur Foley with his green helicopter hat - the event really didn't get rolling until Frank Ching, consulting engineer, showed up and started singing The Black Velvet Band. He really saved the day.

Nomination for the world's worst chorus: Mary Lee
Dunn, Phil Dinan, Muriel McKenzie and Ray McEarchern of the Patriot Ledger and The Sun's John Noonan and Bob Gohl. (They claim it was Lydon who led them off key.)

Academically Talented Students Delve Into Local Heritage

Students in the Quincy Public Schools Elementary Laboratory Center (ELC) have undertaken historical research in the field of Local Heritage at the Quincy Historical Society.

Through a cooperative effort between members of the Historical Society and Quincy Public Schools' personnel, academically talented fifth grade students who participate in the ELC program have been provided with an enrichment opportunity which has allowed them to conduct in-depth research into topics.

The topics include Achievements, contributions and leadership qualities of John, Abigail and John Quincy Adams; Significance of the granite industry to the economic life and cultural matrix of the City of Quincy; and importance of the Granite Railway to the economic and social life of Quincy citizens.

Also, historical and cultural significance of the First Parish Church; and historical background, student population, curriculum and instruction techniques at the Adams Academy and during the early years at the Woodward School for Girls.

STUDENTS such as Erin Maness, David Ziolkowski, Greg Buck and Mark Evans are among members of the Quincy Public Schools Elementary Laboratory Center undertaking historical research into local heritage.

In completing research on the topic of their choice, teacher Dr. Diane E. Willard has required students to make use of note-taking, outlining and reporting skills, and to apply these study skills in working with both primary and secondary resources.

In addition, students will analyze their material, synthesize the information which they have uncovered and draw original conclusions based upon their findings.

Since early October, Mrs. Doris Oberg, president, and the members of the Quincy Historical Society have been preparing learning packets for use by ELC students on topics of research related to Quincy Heritage.

In March, students will make a second trip to the Quincy Historical Society to continue their research.

3 Winners In Animal League Contest

Three winners have been selected in the Quincy Animal League's essay contest on the theme, "How Can We Stop the Abuse and Neglect of Animals?"

In the high school category, the winner was Jennifer Fay, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kevin Fay of Chickatawbut Road, and a ninth grade student at Quincy High School.

Richard Keddy, 13, a Broad Meadows eighth grader was the middle school winner. Richard is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Keddy, Jr., of Narragansett Road.

Among elementary entrants, the winner was Michael Manning, 9, a fourth grade student at the Parker School. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Manning of Colby Road.

Each winner received a $100 U.S. Savings Bond, a Golden Paw Award Certificate and a League lapel button.

Awards were presented by league president John H. McDuff, Jr., who stated, "We are pleased by the degree of humane concern and compassion expressed in all the essays we received."

"These youngsters are the future of our group, and their attitude speaks well for the continued growth of the animal rights movement in this area."

"The essays stressed the need for proper pet care, neutering, spaying, leash law enforcement, and strong opposition to hunting, trapping and research experimentation. All of which matters are of high priority to our League."

QUINCY ANIMAL LEAGUE recently presented $100 U.S. Savings Bonds, Golden Paw Award Certificates and league lapel buttons to winners in an essay contest on the theme, "How Can We Stop the Abuse and Neglect of Animals?" City Threatens Law Suit Over Harbor Pollution

The Boston City Council rejected a loan order for the construction of a sewage treatment plant on Calf Pasture and Quincy City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. said the city may take federal court action to force the facility to be built.

March 21-27,
35 Years
Ago This Week

The Calf Pasture plant would treat Boston sewage flowing into Quincy Bay through Moon Island, which would be the only serious source of pollution of Quincy waters once the MDC's new facility at Nut Island is completed.

"I will ask the city solicitor to study Public Law 845, passed in the 80th Congress, the so-called water pollution control act," said Deegan. "I will also ask the health commissioner to give me the background on the local pollution problem."

"If Boston's acts are polluting Quincy waters and menacing Quincy's health and if the federal act applies, I will ask the city solicitor to proceed with the necessary steps to invoke it. I understand this law is very rigid."

"It looks like Quincy will have to take Boston into court and I think the sooner the better," said Rep. Avery W. Gilkerson, who had proposed similar action several years ago.

HOUSING APPROVED

The City Council voted unanimously to give the Housing Authority a green light to proceed with construction of 180 low rental housing units, the first federally subsidized housing in Quincy for non-veterans.

Executive Director Frank C. Hendry said if the Council did not act without delay the housing authority would abandon the federal plan, which pays the city 10 per cent of rents, and adopt a state plan, which would pay the city only 5 per cent.

Hendry said the construction costs of the project would be around $1,480 a room and rents would be held to $40 or less per month.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

What propels one young girl to become a social worker and spurs another young girl from a typing pool to become a private secretary? What drives one young man to a prestigious job in a company, while another young man may just desire to "loaf"?

Whatever the motivation, we all - or most of us - yearn for success. What we are doing now and what effect it will have on our future is important to us. Striving for recognition and eagerly reaching for distinction is what keeps us from settling into the rut of mediocrity. Without motivation we would stagnate.

Motivation should supply the push we need to accomplish certain things and reach certain goals. But when it starts SHOVING - watch out. Motivation based on greed, egotism and envy can lead up a dark alley... Be sure that in striving to achieve a particular rung on the success ladder, you don't knock other people off. Even if you make it, would it be very satisfying to know that you got there by stepping on another human being? There's room for everyone at the top and, frankly, who wants to be up there all alone?

approved a motion to provide the $1,000 to initiate the fund at its quarterly breakfast meeting at the Sons of Italy Hall with 75 members and guests in attendance.

Guest speakers for the morning were June Sutcliffe, Supervisor of Therapeutic Activities at Long Island Hospital, and Sr. Deborah Chausse, C.S.J., Director of Volunteers of the Long Island Shelter.

Miss Sutcliffe thanked the Quincy City Club for help of patients who were recipients of gifts donated during the past 10 years.

Miss Sutcliffe said the gifts, including T.V., stereos, shades, golf cart and parades on the grounds, have improved the quality of life for the patients.

Sr. Deborah explained the plight of the homeless and the change in the identity of those people designated as such versus those in the past. The homeless today because of the numerous changes in society and economics has resulted in many younger and more homeless than in the past, she said.

Earlier in the morning, members and friends attended a Memorial Mass for Mr. Morrissey and the deceased members of the Quincy City Club at Sacred Heart Church. The Reverend Cornelius J. Heery, was celebrant.

Mrs. Lucinda Morrissey, wife of the deceased, and daughter Diane attended the Mass and breakfast as guests of the Quincy City Club members.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

'Why Did Jesus Die?' Squantum Church Topic

"Why Did Jesus have to die?" was the title of the sermon preached by church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin Sunday morning at the early service of the First Church of Squantum. His text was John 3:16, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, that whoever believes in him should not perish but have eternal life."

In conjunction with this sermon, Dr. Langevin showed pictures of great paintings of Christ by Giotto, the School of Constantinople and Rembrandt.

Guitarists Mary Ruth Scott, Andy Ogilvie and Steve Williams provided the music for the hymns. Robert Dixey and David Scott were ushers. Blythe Bumpus was in charge of the refreshments.

At the second service, Dr. Langevin's sermon topic was "What Can We Say About Hell?" His text for this sermon was "...for I am in anguish in this flame," (Luke 16:24c) The verse was taken from Jesus' story about the rich man and Lazarus.

Hymns at that service included "All Glory, Laud, and Honor", "O Sacred Head, Now Wounded", "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross" and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Janet and Lewis Townson sang a duet in Latin, "O Lord Most Holy" by Cesar Franck. Mary Ruth Scott accompanied. The Chancel Choir sang Harry Burleigh's arrangement of "Were You There?"

Ginny and Bill Galarneaux were greeters for the morning. Stewart Scott and Tore Wallin were ushers. Janet Sumner hosted the Fellowship Hour after the service.

The Lenten series on Christian Discipleship is continuing Wednesday evenings. There is a supper each week at 6:30 p.m. The program begins at 7:30 p.m.

Persons planning to come to the dinner are urged to call 328-4367 to make reservations.

There will be two worship services again Sunday morning: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

Sunday school for children from nursery through fourth grade is held during the later service. Older children and teenagers meet in youth groups scheduled throughout the week.

Phenomenon of '80s: Here come the executive brides

Here come the brides — older and more sophisticated than ever! According to bridal industry figures, of the more than 1.5 million women marrying in 1983 for the first time, one-fifth were over 25 and, of those, one-third were over 30.

Anyone who has paid attention to wedding invitations over the past few years will also realize that brides are not only older, they are also frequently executive brides. These are brides with full careers from which the celebration of marriage is a brief, yet important pause in their hectic lifestyles.

Brides in their mid-20s are more likely to be career women, and this trend peaks with brides aged 30. Both their wedding celebrations and their bridal ensembles are more sophisticated than their younger counterparts' choices, even if the older bride is marrying for the first time.

This changed picture of the American bride is not an overnight phenomenon. It is the result of social and economic changes shifting through society for the past two decades — and it is certainly making changes in the bridal fashion business.

Editor-in-Chief of Modern Bride, Cele Goldsmith Lalli, comments, "Older brides often choose lace and trains when marrying for the first time. However, the type of gown an executive woman selects is likely to be more highly styled. For bridal designers and retailers, this fine line has been a fascinating challenge."

She adds, "Today's career woman has a very different perspective concerning her wedding plans than a young woman just out of school — but she does want to look very special with just the perfect dash of tradition."

Darlene Katz, buyer of bridal gowns for the JCPenney Company, foremost retail resource for bridal attire in the U.S. today, observes, "The new brides want it all! They want their careers, their perfect wedding, a spouse and family — and they want happiness and fulfillment, beginning with the gown they select from us."

"This career bride in the throes of wedding planning is an exciting customer. Her ideas are specific and her vision is quite clear — she is a confident shopper," Ms. Katz notes that there are also many "executive brides" who are "encore," or repeat, brides.

To serve these women, JCPenney and other bridal retailers are showing a wider range of sophisticated, trend-setting choices in their new collection.

The spring, 1985, bridal fashions at Penney reflect influences from both Italian and French designers. Lustrous embroideries and fine laces are much in evidence.

Ms. Katz notes, "The bride-to-be today has an image of the traditional that is not the popular one of 'sweet, feminine, frilly' — it is more refined with emphasis on opulent fabrics, fashionable silhouettes, and attention to detail." The popularity of the tea-length bridal dress among career brides shopping in the JCPenney Bridal Salons demonstrates a preference for the high-stepping fashion freedom of the 1920s when hems went up and up again.

Women exulted in a new joie de vivre with classic gowns high in front and trailing in back. Necklines plunged in the back but rose demurely high across the throat. And some of these touches are found in current bridal collections along with more variety in length than in many a season. Even veils are offered in varying lengths: Short on the sides and incredibly full and romantic in back in order to cascade down the back.

Other trends attributed to brides in their late 20s and early 30s are a preference for ivory and oyster over pure white, and the selection of attendants' dresses that are also high-styled.

Retailers and the bridal magazines agree that the spring and summer of 1985 will see a large number of carefully orchestrated weddings — and at many of these the focus will be the executive bride. Census figures for 1982 show a record 2.5 million marriages, which is a 16 percent increase over 1975. They also indicate the first decline in the divorce pattern in 20 years: 1.2 million.

The number of divorces continued to decline in '83 and the trend is holding for '84. Experts feel the increasing age and thoughtfulness of brides and their grooms is a major contributing factor.

In a recent Reader's Digest/Gallup Survey, 85 percent of those polled (1,549 adults over 18 in 300 communities), responded "yes" when asked if they would wed the same person if they could make the decision again!

Brides who are confident, self-assured and poised can still be "blushing brides," Mrs. Lalli of Modern Bride stresses, "Nothing has been taken away. If anything, the bride with her career in full-swing and with a certain maturity has access to yet another dimension of creating the perfect wedding and a wonderful memory for this most important of days."

Wedding cake variations that are "a cut above"

Cake is the one ingredient no wedding reception can do without. But it doesn't have to be the all-white confection that's traditional. According to BRIDE'S Magazine, today's brides and grooms are personalizing their wedding cakes in all of the following ways.

• The Flavor: White spongecake is customary and still the choice of many. But brides and grooms who are chocolate lovers or carrot-cake fans are determined to be recognized too.

Some couples are striking a compromise with tradition by offering vanilla in one tier, chocolate or some other flavor in another. Unusual and very gourmet fillings are also showing up.

There's a lot of interest in ethnic roots in this country right now, and this is helping to change the idea of what's "right" for a wedding cake. Brides and grooms who want to honor their heritage are celebrating their marriage with slices of Italian cheesecake or Irish fruitcake.

• The Shape: Three or four round tiers are being replaced at some weddings by square, rectangular or even heart shapes. And the familiar white swirls and curlicues are sharing the stage with pink hearts, pale blue scallops, bright marzipan flowers, and fresh roses and daffodils inserted into water-filled vials.

• The Topper: The ornament that sits on top of the cake offers the greatest room for imagination. The time-honored bride and groom, wedding bells and lovebirds remain popular.

But these days you're just as likely to find a tiny music box that plays "The Wedding March," Miss Piggy and Kermit the Frog dressed in their best wedding attire, or a miniature bicycle meant to represent the fact that the couple met on a cross-country biking trip.

Some couples are nostalgically giving their cake a touch of "history" by borrowing a topper that appeared years before on their parents' wedding cake.

Whatever type of cake a couple desires, BRIDE'S has these suggestions to make the ordering and delivery trouble-free.

First, to find a bakery, it's safest to go on the recommendations of recently-married friends. Or, see if the club or catering hall where the reception will be could supply a cake.

Then visit each of your possible choices, and ask to see photos of past wedding cakes they've made and to taste a sample of their baking.

When you do order, expect to put down a deposit. And get a receipt that spells out: The cake size, flavors and filling, icing, topping design, delivery date and address, and the balance to be paid.

Contact lens care for the beautiful bride

Today, more than ever, brides are choosing contact lenses over glasses. Contact lenses can offer the same vision correction as eyeglasses without that awkward feeling of heavy glasses sitting on your nose. Nowadays, brides are walking down the aisle feeling radiant from head to toe!

Here are some practical pointers to help keep your contact lenses in tip-top shape and your lens care regimen super easy:

Although it is perfectly safe for contact lens wearers to wear makeup, there are a few precautions that should be followed, according to Dr. Carmen Castellano of Koetting Associates, St. Louis, Missouri, one of the nation's leading eye care specialists.

• Insert your contact lenses before applying eyeshadow to avoid smearing. Brushed-on shadows are not recommended since particles can get in your eyes and underneath lenses.

• Lenses should also be in place when applying mascara and eyeliner. Use good-quality products since those of lesser quality tend to flake more, which can irritate eyes.

• If foundation is worn, use a water-based product; oil-based foundations can leave residue on your hands.

• If hairspray is used, close your eyes while spraying and walk away from the area immediately afterward.

• Keep hands clean to inhibit the growth of bacteria.

A primary advantage of soft contact lenses is that they can be worn all day without discomfort — a big plus for brides on that seemingly endless wedding day. But there may be times when eyes become irritated, making lenses uncomfortable.

During the wedding reception, for example, there may be a lot of smoke in the room that can cause eyes to become dry and irritated.

For fast relief without removing lenses, try CooperVision Pharmaceutical's Clenz® 2 Lubricating and Rewetting Eye Drops. Clenz 2 lubricates eyes and helps remove particles and other irritants that may cause discomfort. So there's no need to run to the ladies' room to remove, clean, rinse and then reinsert lenses.

If your bridesmaids are not lens wearers, HypoTears® Lubricating Eye Drops is great to have on hand if their eyes become dry or irritated.

Bridesmaids speak out

Taking part in the approximately 2,500,000 weddings this year will be a whopping 10,000,000 bridesmaids. What will the experience be like for them?

According to Millie Martini, Associate Editor of BRIDE'S Magazine, "being a bridesmaid sweeps the bride's closest friends right into the fun of wedding planning. However, by accepting this honor, they must be prepared for the responsibility as well as the potential problems."

Based on the theory that it pays to take a lesson from history, a recent issue of BRIDE'S lists the most common complaints voiced by past bridesmaids, and suggests ways in which this year's brides can help smooth them out:

• What they wore — Perhaps the most frequently heard complaint is that the bridesmaids didn't like the dresses the bride chose for them: They were the wrong color, the wrong style, were too expensive or couldn't be worn again.

While it's hard for the bride to please everyone, you can make the effort by trying this approach. At first, take only your maid or matron of honor with you shopping and narrow down the almost limitless choice to three or so styles.

Make sure to use your judgment in picking styles that will flatter your attendants' varied figures. For instance, full skirts and blouson tops look good on almost anyone.

You might try to include in your choices one two-piece or shorter style your maids will be able to wear again.

Once you've made this preliminary selection, you're ready to schedule a time when the rest of the maids can come into the bridal shop to vote on the final decision.

• How much they spent — Costs can add up when you consider that it's usual for attendants to pay for their own outfits, including shoes, accessories and perhaps an extra dress for the rehearsal dinner; wedding and shower gifts; and transportation, lodging and meals if they're coming from out of town.

Just a few of the many ways to help them out: See if friends and relatives could put your maids up, let them select their own shoes (or wear a pair they already have), and provide all meals.

• What their duties were — The problem was that no one really explained what they were supposed to do. For instance, many a maid was even more nervous than the bride when she came down the aisle because she hadn't been given a chance to practice.

So, at the rehearsal, give your bridesmaids plenty of time to walk through their parts, including passing your bouquet and reading any special Scripture passages.

ROMANTIC AND TRADITIONAL DRESSES, like these at Susie's Casuals, are the two most popular looks for bridesmaids. Each retails for under $70. Hat, $28.

As for their duties before the wedding, simply ask them for help when you need it — in choosing your dress, addressing invitations, welcoming out-of-town guests — but be sensitive to how busy their own lives are.

• How the wedding affected the friendship — Many bridesmaids complained that the bride was so involved in her plans and parties that she was in her own little world and not interested in them any more.

Again, sensitivity is the key. It's up to you to show your bridesmaids that you haven't changed as a person or as a friend just because you're getting married.

Stocking your first kitchen requires careful consideration, advance planning

Newlyweds mean new households, and new households mean new kitchens to be stocked. For several reasons, equipping their new kitchen is a step that all about-to-be-married couples should consider very carefully.

For one thing, while it is still the most frequently used room in the home, the kitchen is no longer the domain of the woman of the house.

With more and more working couples — more than half of today's married women work outside the home — husbands, of necessity, are becoming increasingly self-sufficient and competent in the kitchen.

On top of that, more men than ever before are cooking because they enjoy it... and, to the delight of their mates, they are good at it.

Working couples with jobs that place unique demands on their time may well find that their jobs are the major factor in establishing their cooking and eating patterns.

Often, a newlywed couple's first home is a cozy apartment in which space — including kitchen storage space — is at a premium.

Add to this the proliferation of kitchen equipment available to today's new homeowner, and it's easy to see why prospective newlyweds need to plan their kitchen well in advance.

They need to review the lifestyle they expect to live, their diets and eating habits, and their individual and combined cooking talents.

Couples who take time to envision their kitchen and how it will be used are in a better position to select sensibly from the broad array of kitchen tools and equipment available.

They also make it easier for their friends and relatives to select appropriate shower and wedding gifts.

With the growing number of variables involved in planning and stocking a modern kitchen, probably the most important word to keep in mind is "versatility."

That's not to say the couple should consider nothing but "combination" units — equipment, gadgets or tools that do a number of kitchen jobs. The products with the most buttons or functions are not necessarily the best.

Five general areas to consider in stocking a new kitchen are electrical appliances, range-top cookware, bakeware, cutlery and utensils. Add everyday dinnerware and flatware if the kitchen is also the main eating area.

Electrical appliances include everything from refrigerators and ranges through the latest microwave or convection ovens to toasters and coffeemakers.

The major determining factors in choosing electrical appliances are usually their cost and their size relative to the space available.

BASIC KITCHEN TOOLS include an assortment of cutlery, utensils and small appliances, liquid and dry measures, mixing bowls, bakeware and cookware. In today's smaller kitchens, sets that nest are a must, as are bakeware and even liquid measures that can be used in conventional or microwave ovens. Versatile new see-through range-top ware (right) not only helps avoid messy bollovers but can also be used in conventional or microwave ovens.

Versatility and durability should be the major factors in choosing cookware and bakeware. Few materials offer the cookware versatility of glass and glass-ceramic.

The idea of preparing, cooking, storing and serving all in one vessel originated with Corning's development of heat-resistant glass ovenware in 1915, and was extended in 1958 with the development of glass-ceramic cookware and casseroles.

Corning has now developed a transparent glass-ceramic cookware line for range-top use. With all the versatility of its cookware lets cooks see what's happening and helps prevent messy bollovers.

Glass cookware can go from refrigerator or freezer directly into a microwave or preheated conventional or convection oven. Glass-ceramic cookware is even more versatile and can be used on any range-top or under the broiler.

Cutlery for the new home should include not only the knives themselves, but a proper storage device such as a knife block or rack. Besides helping the knives hold their sharp edges longer, this is a safety factor.

The cutlery assortment a couple may choose will vary, but a basic array should include 3 and 4-inch paring knives and an 8 or 10-inch chef's knife.

Utensils is a catch-all category that includes but is not limited to spatula, scraper, slotted and regular spoon, two-pronged fork, tongs, colander, whisk, cutting surface, measuring spoons, and dry and liquid measures.

New open-handled glass liquid measures that nest take up less cupboard space and are microwave-safe, making them ideal for preparing sauces.

For the working couple, rugged everyday dinnerware made of glass is a sensible choice because it can generally be used to reheat or even cook foods in the microwave or conventional oven. Strengthened glass dinnerware is available in either white or earthen colors and comes in a variety of decorations.

When considering similar items made by different manufacturers, it's wise to consider the respective product warranties. Comparison of use-and-care information is often helpful, too, in choosing between products.

For brides: At last, the crystal facts!

When choosing or registering for wedding gifts, who doesn't think of traditional stemware? Or, the practical salad bowl? What about the elegant pitcher? Or, the beautiful wine carafe?

Because crystal is married to the wedding tradition and its inherent characteristics make it a priceless treasure for future generations, it is only right for you to learn the crystal facts before making your final choice.

When selecting crystal, be careful. . . Don't be deceived. Not everything that looks translucent, brilliant, crystalline and elegant is fine crystal.

To help you in your selection, here's a list of questions many brides often think of when choosing their crystal, but never know whom to ask. At last, Princess House, a leading manufacturer of full-lead, handblown and handcut crystal, provides you with the answers.

Q.: Are air bubbles imperfections or a sign of low-quality crystal?

A.: Absolutely not. Tiny bubbles, marks and variations are unique traits of high-quality handblown crystal. They represent the "signature" of the glassblower's finished art.

Q.: How can you tell if crystal is handblown or machine pressed?

A.: Handblown crystal is mouth blown, one piece at a time, and is more graceful, delicate and finer in detail than machine pressed crystal. One piece of handblown stemware may require the work of up to 18 artisans.

On the other hand, pressed crystal is heavier than handblown and its density gives the items a rich tonal ring when delicately tapped.

Q.: What's the difference between crystal and lead crystal?

A.: Crystal is a glass that contains lead oxide, a substance which gives crystal its weight and luster. High-quality crystal should contain at least 24 percent lead oxide, and is commonly called full-lead crystal.

Lead is fundamental since it enables crystal to retain its attractive qualities during the shaping process. The more lead, the brighter, the clearer and the richer the tone is.

Q.: What are the most popular crystal pieces for wedding gifts?

A.: A stemware collection is a long awaited favorite among brides. There are three basic types: The water goblet, the wine glass and the closed "tulip" champagne. Eight of each is the magical number for a complete set.

Table accessories include the salad bowl, the romantic candlesticks, the hurricane lamps, the useful pitcher and the coffee carafe.

Also, crystal dinnerware is growing in popularity. More brides are choosing it because its versatility complements any color or table decor.

Q.: Is it socially correct to turn a water goblet into a dessert dish or a pitcher into a CRYSTAL, FLOWERS, CHAMPAGNE AND CANDLES: All details of an everlasting wedding legend, says Princess House, a leading manufacturer of full-lead, handblown and handcut crystal. Among the most popular bridal gifts are these versatile items: Traditional stemware, crystal bowl, candlesticks and dinnerware place settings.

A.: Yes! It is not only correct, but it shows imagination. After the excitement of the wedding is long gone and you have a chance to settle down, you will soon realize you are missing a few essential items. Use your crystal! It is more versatile, practical and durable than most people suspect.

For instance, a candlelit vase has many uses: It can be a cigarette, pencil or toothpick holder. Place it in the center of your fresh vegetable dip dish and make your carrots, celery and zucchini stand up. With crystal there are no limitations to its use.

Q.: Should crystal be used only at night and/or for selected formal parties?

A.: Definitely not. The beauty of crystal is its all-around use. Crystal can be dressed up or dressed down depending on the occasion.

Your salad bowl can serve fruits and croissants in the morning, punch or potato chips at a picnic lunch, and elegantly displayed vegetables at a formal dinner. Be creative. Crystal does not have a season or a time of day.

Q.: Does weight determine the quality of crystal?

A.: Not at all. Weight doesn't say anything about the quality of crystal. You should look for the craftsman's detail work and the tonal quality.

Q.: When delicately tapping the crystal, what does the bell-like ring tell us?

A.: The clearer the tone, the better the quality. And remember: Whether formal or informal, leaded or full-lead, machine pressed or handblown, crystal will always add a magical touch to your new home.

Quality. It's as important in diamonds as in anything else you own.

There's more to a diamond than meets the eye. And to understand the differences between diamonds is to understand the 4C's—Cut, Color, Clarity and Carat-weight. It's these 4C's that determine the value of a diamond.

The differences between diamonds are subtle indeed. But to people of discriminating taste, it's quality that makes all the difference. Your jeweler is the expert where diamonds are concerned. And he can show you high-quality diamonds in all sizes. They simply look better and will enhance your jewelry, no matter what the design.

Quality is unmistakable. And it's as important in diamonds as in anything else you own.

Weddings Special At Quincy Sons Of Italy Social Center

"Your wedding should be your special day and you shouldn't have to worry about a thing going wrong," says Terry Stracco, wedding reception consultant at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, 120 Quarry St.

Over the past six years, she has personally planned over 400 wedding receptions.

Miss Stracco, chief function consultant for the Social Center, notes:

"Every bride is different," so every wedding should be unique. That is why our bridal package is designed to allow the bride to personally choose each component of her wedding. There are no rigidly set wedding package plans at the Quincy Sons of Italy. Every wedding is customized designed for each bride and groom."

There are many details to consider when planning a wedding, because most people have never planned one before. For this reason, the insight and experience of a professional can save a lot of time and frustration.

The bridal package at the Quincy Sons of Italy includes a variety of caterers, bands, and styles of wedding cakes as well as floral arrangements and invitations.

The Quincy Social Center has even recorded the bridal package bands on video tape. In a short time, the bride and groom can listen and view all five bands available.

"This is a great help and time saver," says Stracco. "Rather than wasting an evening driving to see only one band, the bride and groom can prescreen all five at once." The bridal package also includes limousine service for the bride and groom and a white limousine is available at no extra cost.

Although there is no obligation to choose a package arrangement, those who do purchase a bridal package receive complimentary matches, toast glasses, a cake knife and a guest book. In addition, complimentary champagne is served to the bridal party during the bridal picture taking.

"Our bridal package was designed to keep costs down and to fit into anyone's budget," she says, "but, the thing I like the most about it is that I get to know the bride so well."

"I always try to hostess the weddings I have coorminated, because I have been there throughout the planning, it makes the bride feel more at ease on the day of her wedding."

TERRY STRACCO

On the day of the wedding, the hostess will greet the bride and groom at the door and escort them downstairs to the bridal picture taking session. Prior to the wedding, Miss Stracco has already discussed the schedule of the day with the bride so that she knows what to expect.

Miss Stracco organizes and times the course of events from lining to the bridal part to be introduced to the last dance. The bride or bride's mother does not have to worry about a thing.

Best of all, the wedding is not one of several taking place at the same time. The Quincy Social Center runs only two weddings at a time. Therefore each wedding receives all the attention it deserves. "I love my job, because every wedding is different and over the years I have met some very nice people," Miss Stracco says.

QJC Edges Alumni, 100-98

The Quincy Junior College basketball team and coaches pulled out a hard-fought 100-98 win over the Alumni recently at the Vo-Tech gym.

The lead changed hands many times with the Alumni leading by as many as 12 points at one point. But the shooting of QJC coach Wink Phelan (27 points) and guard Kyle Morton (41) sparked the comeback. Asst. coach John White scored the winning hoop with just two seconds left in the game.

Conboy, who scored over 1000 points at QJC, led the Alumni with 18 points, while Richards, Hurley and Cronin each had 15.

Following the game both teams attended a reception planned by coach Phelan. "It surely was a great night," said Buckley. "Former players and current players competing, then everyone having a laugh after the game. Phelan did a super job in putting the night together."

Quincy To Host W. Germany Wrestling Team

The United States Wrestling Federation has selected Massachusetts as one of four states which will host a West German Cultural Exchange freestyle wrestling team.

In turn, Quincy and Norwood have been chosen as two of the communities hosting the team during its two-week stay.

Exhibition meets between the West German team and representatives of the South Shore area will be held in Norwood April 8 and at the Quincy Vo-Tech gym Friday, April 12.

Any wrestler from the South Shore area who has not graduated from high school and has experience as a varsity high school wrestler is requested to report to the Vo-Tech gym next Monday, March 25, at 7 p.m. for an organizational meeting and practice in preparation for the exhibition meets.

Any wrestler unable to attend Monday's practice is asked to call 786-8766 Monday.

Ryan Outpoints Tavares

Glen Ryan, Quincy welterweight boxer, defeated Frank Tavares of New Bedford in a hard-fought bout recently at Anthony's Hall in Somerville.

The bout was full of action and for three rounds Ryan's jabs found their mark but the game New Bedford fighter came on strong.

Both boxers received a standing ovation as Ryan was declared the winner in a close decision.

Ryan, a member of the South Shore YMCA boxing club, was unable to compete this year in the Golden Gloves because of a back injury. Tavares was last year's Golden Gloves champion.

Rooney, Jennifer Provett, Kerri McDonald, Kathy Fraser, Sheila D'Antona and Christine Venezia. Third row, Stacey Welch, Kelly Gillespie, Denise Marnell, Eileen Campbell, Jill Caldwell and Liz Harrington.

Bregoli, North Frosh Girls A Winning Combo

By PETE ZOIA

Dave Bregoli's debut as North Quincy freshman girls' basketball coach was a huge success as the young Raiderettes won the Suburban League title with a 7-1 record and finished 13-4 overall.

"When I took over the job, I never expected such a great season," he said. "The girls showed that they are willing to work hard right from the start. I was fortunate to have some talented players who helped others less talented. This made the season an enjoyable one. I thank each and every one on the squad for making my first season such a pleasant one and wish them all added success in their future careers."

The team was led by tri-captains Beth Bunker, Patty Feeney and Karrie Pistorino. Bunker and Feeney were among the top scorers and both also excelled defensively.

Pistorino was noted for her aggressiveness. "She had a nose for the ball and encouraged her teammates in certain situations," Bregoli said. "The three captains were outstanding leaders and easy to coach."

Center Jill Caldwell, a fine two-way player, was an outstanding rebounder, was an excellent foul shooter and led the team in scoring.

Stacey Welch gave the team some fine outside shooting and against Brockton she scored 12 points in the first half and was the high scorer in the game.

The number one reserve was Rita Rooney, whose height and agility enabled her to take down numerous rebounds. She also was very aggressive.

A dislocated elbow kept Liz Harrington on the sidelines the first part of the season, but when she recovered she contributed both ways.

The Silver Lake game was a memorable one for Melissa Miles. It was her best game as she scored six points and rebounded well.

Eileen Campbell was named by Bregoli as the most improved player. "She was a pleasant surprise, improving steadily in her ballhandling and her shooting," Bregoli said.

Bregoli was blessed with a strong bench. Girls like Denise Marnell, Denise McManus, Kerri McDonald, Christine Venezia, Kathy Fraser, Kelly Gillespie, Jennifer Provett and Sheila D'Antona filled in capably when called upon.

Bregoli is working on plans for a team banquet that will be held in the near future.

Plymouth Continues As Quincy's Nemesis

Plymouth continued to be the nemesis for Quincy's Pee Wee B team, sponsored by A&T Movers.

Plymouth, which had previously eliminated Quincy from the Randolph Valentine Tournament and the Watuppi Invitational Tournament, ousted the Pee Wee B's from the state championships, with a 2-1 win in the semifinals.

The game was the best played by the two teams this season.

Quincy took a 1-0 lead with three minutes left in the second period on a pretty swing around the net and goal by Kelly Morris. Mark Kelleher assisted. A minute later Plymouth tied it up on a goal by Jeff Azar.

Plymouth scored the clincher on a power-play goal by P. J. Schneider after a Quincy player was called for hooking.

Despite Quincy's constant assault in the third period it failed to score the equalizer. Plymouth went on to win the state title with an 8-1 victory over Tewksbury.

Coach Ralph Freeman praised all his players and cited Pat O'Donoghue in particular for his fine effort.

Somerville Eliminates Quincy 56-45

The Quincy High School basketball team concentrated its defense on Ronnie Perry, opening the door for his sidekick, Johnny Nunziato, to lead Somerville to a 56-45 victory that eliminated the Presidents from the Tech Tournament.

The five foot, four inch Nunziato threw in 22 points as Somerville spurted out to a 32-25 lead at halftime and then coasted through to the semi-final decision.

Quincy Coach Munroe MacLean assigned Pete Ramponi to guard Perry. New England's best schoolboy player, and used the other four players as a loose zone in the defensive area to help out when Perry was near the basket.

Perry was held to 18 points but the strategy freed Nunziato for his big night.

Dick Drake led the Quincy scorers with 14 points while Ramponi had 11 and George Burke 10. The Presidents led at only one point in the game when Burke sank two free throws for a 5-4 margin.

The Quincy lineup included: Burke, Wheelock, Doyle, Ramponi, Locicero, forwards; Drake, Berman, centers; Cirello, Gacicia, Salvaggi, Campbell, O'Rourke, guards.

Quincy Born

Sullivan Should Stay Up With Sox

Charles Ross, sports-caster for Quincy radio station WJD 1, has been covering the Boston Red Sox in spring training at Winter Haven, Fla. He files this special report for the Quincy Sun.

By CHARLES ROSS
Sportscaster, WJDA

Every year in late February, the Boston Red Sox head for this small central Florida city of 21,000 to get ready for the baseball season.

Not far behind come a loyal group of fans, many from Quincy and the South Shore who make the trip not only to see how the old town team looks but to associate with the players, press and fellow fans.

"Most of the people are so nice," said Joe Gildea of North Quincy, who along with his wife, Hilda, come to Winter Haven and stay for a month.

"We've been coming here for the past 10 years and we love it. The association with the players and the media is great."

Gildea is a member of the Montclair Men's Club and director of the Quincy Bowling Little Loop.

Fans get a chance to see many of the players as regular people because most Sox fans stay at the same hotel as a lot of the players. Pitcher Bob Stanley or another Red Sox player could be your next door neighbor. You might see infielder Dave Stapleton turning in his glove and bat to handle push a baby carriage.

About a week after the major league players start spring training, the Red Sox minor leaguers report to Quincy's Sam McLe, a scout for the Sox who runs the team's minor league complex during spring training which will have about 130 Red Sox of the future working out.

Sam says that one of the big joys he gets is to see one of the youngsters he broke in a few years before, make the major league team.

This year a Quincy born player has an excellent chance of staying with the Red Sox.

Marc Sullivan who has worked his way up through the Boston organization, should be the backup catcher to Rich Gedman.

Sullivan, whose father is Haywood Sullivan one of the teams co-owners, has made it on his skills and not from any help from the boss.

In fact, he believes that being Haywoods' son may have kept him in the minor leagues longer than he should have been.

To all who meet the younger Sullivan, they agree that he's one of the friendliest people associated with the team.

Though born in Quincy, March grew up in Canton and attended the University of Florida. Over the winter, he officially made Winter Haven his home when he married a local girl Angela Overstreet who runs a modeling school in nearby Lakeland.

All the Quincy people I talked to were unanimous in two areas.

One, they think that the Red Sox are improved this year and will make some sort of run at the pennant in the American League East.

And of course, too, that they all love Quincy, but it's better to be among friends and in the sunny and warm climate of Florida during the cold winter back home.

STEVE KELLY, left, and Al DiBella, North Quincy all-scholastic football players, received further honors when they were presented achievement awards by the Woburn Sons of Italy at their 24th annual banquet. Kelly was noted for his outstanding running along with his strong defensive play. DiBella, winner of the annual Jack Donahue Award, was the key man in the Raiders' line, standing out both offensively and defensively.

Central Upsets Merrymount, Point Derails Montclair

In the most exciting week of league play in the Quincy Recreation Department Senior Hoop League, Central upset Merrymount on a Dan McLaughlin hoop in overtime, 63-62, while Point Central derailed Montclair's run at the top with a 63-60 win to move into a first place tie.

The Central win was made more amazing because they finished the overtime with only three men on the floor. An early injury to Sean Poole's ankle left Central short on subs and when the third man fouled out, Coach Brian Buckley's team finished the game with only three players.

On the other side of the ledger, Mark Malloy broke the single season scoring record by pouring in 39 points. Dave Maniairon had 10 while Rob Keddy and Billy Roche each had six. Central's Ted McCarthy led his team with 20, while Kevin Nichols followed with 16 and Don Green nine. Merrymount coach Pudge Gill also praised the defensive effort of John Christiani.

The Point-Montclair game was close all the way with no one taking any substantial lead. Fran Garvey had 19 for Point, Pat Nee 10, and Jim Rice eight. For Montclair Mike Kubera had 20, Ted Stevenson 13, and Gary McNamara 12. The difference in the game may well be Mike Snow's six points while playing the sixth man role for Point.

Point coach Ed McArde also praised Ed Reichart for his defensive play while Dean Zoia, Montclair's leader, was eager to praise the all around hustle of Angelo Kapetarkas.

Going into the final week of regular season play, the standings are as follows: Squantum, 4-1; Beechwood, 4-1; Point, 4-1; Montclair, 3-2; Central, 1-4; Merrymount, 1-4; Atherton Hough, 0-4.

Historical Society To Present Film Coaster March 24

The Academy Aides of the Quincy Historical Society will present the film Coaster, The Adventure of the John F. Leavitt, on Sunday, March 24 at 2 and 4 p.m. in the auditorium of North Quincy High School, Hancock Street.

Admission is $4 for adults and $2 for children. For information call Quincy Historical Society, 773-1144.

Coaster tells the story of the sailing ship, John F. Leavitt, from its design and construction to its disastrous maiden voyage out of Quincy. The film is a fascinating documentary of the life of the John F. Leavitt from the laying of her keel to her launching and her disastrous voyage.

The building of the 97-foot schooner was the dream of Ned Ackerman, a professor of English at Merrimack College in Andover, Mass. The Leavitt was the first cargo schooner to be built in 41 years and was constructed of wood in the 19th century tradition.

The Leavitt and her crew came to Quincy where she took on a full cargo of tanning chemicals and lumber for delivery to Haiti. After putting out to sea, the Leavitt was becalmed off Cape Cod for three days and then was caught in a winter gale off Montauk, Long Island. The film faithfully reproduces all of the romantic fervor, the sense of hard labor and the outright fear of an angry sea.

The film was produced by Jon Craig Cloutier and is a fascinating documentary about the building of a sailing ship and about the voyage of a man's dream.

The painstaking detail of its camera work and the stunning impact of its climax place Coaster in the front rank of all the great films that have been made about mankind's romance with the sea.

AMNESTY DECLARED!

THEFT OF CABLE IS AGAINST MASSACHUSETTS STATE LAW. We at Quincy Cablesystems have become increasingly concerned that a growing number of customers have altered their converter box(s) in order to receive premium services they are not paying for. New technological devices are now available to us that make detection of theft possible without entering the home and the evidence is admissible in a court of law.

Some of you might not have realized the seriousness of this crime and in an effort to eliminate cable theft and prosecution of violators, we are declaring a fair amnesty period during the month of March.

If you are receiving unauthorized cable service or suspect that your converter box has been altered in any way, bring it in to our office (81 School St., Quincy) and we will exchange that converter to receive whatever level of service you want to pay for — NO QUESTIONS ASKED!

After April 1st, you may be subject to prosecution under the law, so we urge you to act now. If you have any questions, please call 471-9143.

March 15-30

WE ALL KNOW STEALING IS A CRIME.

WHAT MAKES STEALING CABLE SERVICES ANY DIFFERENT? NOTHING.

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
Spend additional time and effort in the pursuit of long-term goals. Rivals are using new schemes. Family and business blend unexpectedly well throughout this period.

PISCES — February 20-March 20
Friends are overly sensitive — it's important that you give them sufficient breathing room. Modest speculation may pay off by Tuesday. Work conditions are likely to improve.

ARIES — March 21-April 20
If buying or selling, avoid offers that are too good to be true. Family rift ends when you decide to forgive — if not forget. Develop ideas before taking them to headquarters.

TAURUS — April 21-May 21
Postponements and delays slow you down, but romantic reconciliation brightens your mood. Ideas may backfire but you learn from constructive criticism. Faraway friend may contact you.

GEMINI — May 22-June 21
Inventiveness is present keyword. Try new approaches, new solutions. Emotional ups and downs are settling and romance situation improves noticeably. Financial suggestions need review.

CANCER — June 22-July 22
Financial ideas require refinement and discussion. Romantic plans benefit from spontaneity. Health concerns become a priority — avoid any kind of short cut in this area.

LEO — July 23-August 22
Take advantage of family's support for a controversial project. If dealing with other people's finances, pursue a more conservative approach. Sense of style is impeccable through weekend.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
Week finds you highly original and perhaps pioneering a new idea. Persistence is critical. Family matters dominate attention after the weekend. New friendship is blossoming.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
Financial gains may be deceptive. In romance, intuition is especially keen. Older friends benefit from your experience. Family health needs require a more sensible approach.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
Keep enthusiasm within bounds and you can turn bright ideas into a profitable plan. New career opportunity looks inviting, but check out all the angles before taking a giant step.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22
Be more open in romance, but less outspoken at the workplace. Family gatherings benefit from your innovative touches. News from faraway requires verification before you make announcements.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20
Travel is generally successful but may include detours. Attend to health needs promptly — and don't hesitate to recruit assistants for heavy-duty chores. Friends bring good luck.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

MFHA Funds For First Time Home Buyers

The Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MFHA) has $25 million in mortgage funds available to first homebuyers at the fixed 30-year rate of 11.25 percent.

"This is a great opportunity for people who, up until now, have been unable to afford the high cost of housing," said Rep. Michael W. Morrissey.

"I encourage people who qualify to take advantage of this low rate."

The South Shore Bank and the Quincy Savings Bank have funds available.

In order to qualify, borrowers must be credit worthy, first time homebuyers who meet certain guidelines relating to income and home acquisition costs.

Complete eligibility information is available at participating lenders.

Chamber Directors Vote Against SBA Elimination

Directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce have voted to oppose the proposed elimination by the Reagan Administration of the Small Business Administration.

Chamber President Peter F. O'Connell has written Cong. Brian J. Donnelly informing him of the Chamber's position.

"We agree in principle with the President's desire to reduce the whopping federal deficit and sacrifices must be made across the board to achieve that end," he said.

"However, the indiscriminate and categorical elimination of the only federal agency committed to serving the needs of 15 million small businesses is not a cost-effective measure. "There is no doubt in my mind that the aggressive and creative use of (SBA) programs has contributed greatly to the strong economy and continued business growth the South Shore has witnessed over the past several years.

The Small Business Administration and its mission are too important and vital to the small business sector and to the South Shore to allow the agency to become a scapegoat for reducing the federal deficit."

The directors' vote came on the heels of a similar vote by the South Shore Economic Development Corp., a Chamber subsidiary.

- Granted a request from Sea St. Getty Auto Service, 345-350 Sea St., for 100 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars in addition to present storage. The owners plan to build a bay for inspections, said City Clerk John Gillis.

- Continued to March 26 a request from John DeBartolo of South Shore Auto Sales for transfer of the license from 134 Penn St. to 17 W. Howard St.

'Child Sexual Abuse' Program At Bethany

A program for parents and other adults on "How to Prevent Child Sexual Abuse," will be held in the Allen Parlor of Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Centre, Sunday, March 24, 7 to 9 p.m.

The 45-minute color video-tape "Strong Kids, Safe Kids," will be shown at 7 p.m.

The video, put out by Paramount Pictures and hosted by Henry "the Fonzy" Winkler, is designed to be used in the home with parents and children viewing together, in order to help open up discussion on the subject.

After a refreshment break at 8 p.m. a presentation and discussion will be led by Dr. Luleen Anderson, Director of Elementary Guidance and Psychological Services, for the Quincy Public Schools.

Purpose of both the video-tape and program is to help parents who want to teach their children how to stop molestation, abuse, or abduction before it happens.

Basic things that need to be known will be covered, including: "What is a stranger?" "How to do a self-defense yell for danger, the Honk," the "Big-NO," and when to use it. The different kinds of "touches." The magic words: NO! GO! FEEL! The tell-tale signs of sexual abuse. How to be an "askable" parent.

The program is open to the public and there is no charge. Bethany Church is located at the corner of Coddington and Spear Sts., opposite the Quincy High School and Quincy Junior College.

For more information, contact the Bethany Church office, 479-7300.

'Desserts And Deserts' Sermon At Bethany Church

There will be two worship services Sunday, March 24, in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Centre, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

The Rev. Joel F. Huntington, associate minister, will preach the sermon at both hours on the subject, "Desserts and Deserts," based on the scriptural text in the Gospel of Luke 4:1-15.

Scripture readers will be Lois Nordstrom in the chapel and Eleanor L. Shattuck in the sanctuary. Rev. J. William Arnold, the senior minister, will serve as liturgist at both services.

New choir stoles to be worn by the Chancel Choir will be dedicated during the 10 a.m. service. The stoles, reversible green and purple are designed to match the liturgical colors of the church seasons.

They are being presented to Bethany Church by Edith Arslan, in memory of her husband, Edward M. Arslan, who was a member of the Chancel Choir and a deacon of the church.

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will sing the anthem, "Sanctus" by Gabriel Faure. Contralto soloist, Jean E. Bettinson, will sing the composition by William J. Gaither, "He Touched Me."

The worship service will be broadcast over WJDA, 1300 kc, at 11 a.m. by delayed-tape.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes for pre-school through eighth grade. The senior high class, ninth through 12th grades, will meet at 9 a.m. with Bob Peoples, teacher.

Nursery care for babies and toddlers will be provided.

At 11 a.m., there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the community are welcome to share in the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Church School.

There will be a Lenten devotional service held in Bethany Chapel Wednesday, March 27, at 7 a.m. The theme is "Places of the Passion." Rev. Arnold will give the meditation on "Via Dolorosa."

Following the 30-minute service, a light breakfast will be served in the parish house, enabling people to leave for work or school by 7:45.

Both the brief Lenten worship and breakfast are open to the public. For information on any of Bethany's ministries and programs, contact Pastor Arnold or the church office at 479-7300.

Lydon Puts Hold On Hospital Plans

"That's the prerogative of the City Council anytime," said McCauley. "Eventually it will go to committee and get a thorough airing."

He said the reason that no FHA material was included in the home rule petition is that it is a new program and the rules and regulations are not quite complete.

He also said that the hospital is preparing to ask the state for an extension of the certificate of need, which expires in the middle of June. The certificate is good two years.

Vietnam Vets Form Quincy Chapter

A group of Quincy Vietnam veterans recently met at the High Rise Lounge in Quincy and voted to form a Quincy chapter of the Vietnam Combat Veterans Combined Armed Forces.

A second meeting was held with a 100 percent increase in membership. Several major issues affecting veterans were discussed, as well as membership.

David Lawson of Ebbett St., Quincy, the newly elected president said, "Quincy and the South Shore are home to thousands of Vietnam veterans and we invite all of them to join with us as members, because Vietnam veterans are the best, they make friends well. After sixteen long years, we want to provide a place where at last they can relate to guys who all went through the same hell together; a hell that was both in Vietnam and here in the South Shore."

The chapter will meet Monday, April 15 at 8 p.m. at the High Rise Lounge.

include ceramics, knitting, copper tooling, oil painting, dressmaking, creative stretchy, stained glass, quilting, scrimshaw, lampshade piercing, stenciling and leathercraft. Baked goods will be on sale, also.

Repairs Urged For Key Downtown Traffic Light

The city appears to be ready to do something about the broken traffic signal at Hancock, Maple and Chestnut Sts., which has been out of action for nearly 10 years.

The Traffic Commission recommended to the City Council Monday night the restoration of the light, which is in front of the South Shore Bank tower.

Lack of a light there presents a dangerous situation for both motorists and pedestrians, said the Traffic Commission.

Lack of a light at the corner permits southbound traffic on Hancock St. to bear left onto Chestnut St.

without regard to cross traffic or pedestrians.

"This may save someone from being badly hurt," said Councilor Theodore P. DeCristofaro.

The recommendation was forwarded to the Mayor for an appropriation.

Toland Candidate For Third Council Term

and inspiration to contemporize its appearance and reestablish itself as a center of activity, if not extensive commercial trade.

"New building proposals, away from Quincy Center, however, bordering on neighborhoods, are causing concern to residents because of the impact of such construction. Impacts such as traffic, drainage, water pressure, and population density. More people in new housing require more city services. Environmental concerns have taken on new importance in Quincy as a direct result of new projects all around the city.

"Prosperity and growth need planning. The environment again is our concern as the long-term and massive problem of Quincy Bay pollution and sewage treatment threatens the quality of Quincy's life as much as any other single factor.

"The waste disposal problem, what to do with Quincy's trash, will be looming ever larger in the next few years as the day we can no longer use the West Quincy dump draws near. We need to give more attention to this matter and now is the time.

"We are a city of neighborhoods, and of people with a strong sense of community, and of enthusiastic commitment to traditional values, as well as a variety of causes.

"We want Quincy to remain a pleasantly livable city, but also to move forward with a social policy that spells confidence in itself and its direction.

"We want a physical, economic, and social environment that is vibrant, growing, and in control. Planned growth so that new neighborhoods do not infringe on old ones, so that new prosperity does not exacerbate current problems.

"We must move forward with replacement plans for the hospital and consider positive steps for the replacement and/or refurbishment of our police headquarters.

"We have a lot going on us right now, and the key to the future is careful planning so that our children's legacy will not be a confused ill-planned city scene, but instead - an environment that serves its people well in all aspects of community life."

City Councilor Patricia Toland announced her candidacy for a third two-year term on the Council at a combined campaign kickoff and birthday party fundraiser Tuesday night.

Her birthday was March 16.

"Quincy right now is a city at the crossroads, a city with important decisions to make that will profoundly influence how it enters the 21st Century, a city at risk if decisions made are not the correct ones," she said.

"Quincy is now enjoying a sort of Renaissance in building. For many years the City has remained relatively unchanged, but in recent years there has been a sharp upsurge in new construction, both residential and commercial.

"Real estate prices are at an all time high, and the business community generally regards the climate here as favorable to their interests. Prosperity seems to have come to the commercial sector of Quincy.

"But our downtown area still needs major motivation

'No Comment' On Minority Housing Consent Decree

Members of the Quincy Housing Authority and its employees have been asked by council not to comment on a consent decree that guarantees more public housing in the city to minorities.

Under the decree, the QHA agrees to abandon its preferential policy for Quincy residents and rent 25 per cent of its vacant apartments to minority families for the next four years.

"The court has not yet signed the consent decree," said Paul A.M. Hunt, counsel for the QHA. "There will be no statements issued until it is signed. We may have a complete statement later this week."

"The other side is having a circus with this right now. That's fine. A lot of what they are saying is erroneous."

The "no comment" instructions to the QHA was issued by Hunt and Bingham, Dana and Gould, the Boston law firm that was hired to handle the case for the QHA.

As per instruction, Authority Chairman Carmine G. D'Olimpio and Director John P. Comer declined to comment.

"The Housing Authority is not an arm of the city government," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley. "We did not participate in the case. I would have to defer comment until I can review the agreement."

Federal Judge David S. Nelson approved the consent decree, it was disclosed Tuesday, after more than a year of negotiations.

Two black women, Rosa Herrera, now of Holbrook, and Doris Gardner, who lives in Quincy, filed suit charging they were discouraged from seeking public housing in Quincy.

The decree also awards $2,000 in damages to Herrera and Gardner and calls for an affirmative action officer and an independent monitor to see that the city complies.

Susan C. Cohen of Greater Boston Legal Services said a new minority ratio for admissions to family housing and a goal for minority occupancy will be set in 1989.

Cohen's aid the QHA "did a lot of work on it and seems to be addressing the issues in good faith."

Public housing in Quincy is subsidized by the state and federal governments, which in some cases have different rules for admission and occupancy.

Both prohibit any form of discrimination, racial or otherwise, but the state permits housing authorities to give preference to local people. The federal rules do not.

Up 5.5 Per Cent

Mayor To Send $80.7 M Budget To City Council

BY TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Francis X. McCauley plans to send to the City Council Monday night an $80,794,817 city budget for fiscal 1986, up 5.5 per cent over fiscal 1985.

The budget, said the Mayor, makes no provision for raises for city employees but, he added, "there will be funds available to a certain extent once the contracts are settled."

McCauley refused to tell a news conference Tuesday afternoon if the new budget contains provisions for increases in public safety personnel.

"Possibly there will be changes in the amount of personnel in some departments," he said.

McCauley said he plans to take the budget to the Council personally and speak to the councillors about it before the budget is sent to the Finance Committee.

"We are looking for ways to run the city more effectively," he said. "We will talk Monday night on the areas in which we are doing the cost-cutting."

"I feel we have a budget that will stand the scrutiny of the City Council."

Last year, the Mayor and the Council got into what was called "the Battle of the Budget" when councillors did not think McCauley's public safety commitment was adequate.

The budget was not finally in place until a month into the fiscal year.

"We've got a 1986 budget that the city is well served by," said McCauley.

But the real reason he called the news conference was to say that, despite a hike in water rates in the city, there will be no increases passed on to tax paying consumers.

For the first time this year, the city is being charged directly for sewer and water services supplied by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

When the MDC controlled water and sewer rates, the charges appeared as a deduction on the cherry sheet listing state aid.

This year, said McCauley, the charge is up 39.6 percent to $2,486,010, an increase of $705,252.

"Despite the increase, we do not plan to raise the water rates in fiscal 1986," he said. "The revenues projected for 1986 will enable us to hold the line."

"We do not have a costly and bureaucratic sewer and water commission to add to the cost. Except for major users, our people pay an ad valorem tax as part of their property taxes."

McCauley said he is not yet sure what the tax rate for fiscal 1986 will be but "we have an opportunity to go up 2.5 percent under Proposition 2 1/2."

He estimated that could be about $1,250,000, the maximum set by law, on the budget.

The fiscal 1985 tax rates were $21.03 per $1,000 for residential tax payers and $30.86 for commercial, industrial and personal property.

Pollard Developer To Meet Neighbors

Representatives of Burkhardt Corp., developer of the Pollard School property on Southern Artery, will meet with its Quincy Point neighbors tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the Fore River Clubhouse.

Burkhardt purchased the school for $252,000, tore down the building and plans to construct 30 condominium units on the site at a cost of $900,000.

THIS WON'T HURT Dr. Alan M. Morse, V.M.D., Emerson Animal Hospital, assured Suzie who was accompanied to Quincy's rabies clinic by her master, Kurt Johnson.

$158,869 For Punch Card Voting

Quincy took another step Tuesday toward tearing up those paper election ballots.

City Clerk John Gillis announced that the city is accepting a bid of $158,869 by Electronic Voting Machines of Newton to supply the city with punch card voting machines.

The City Council already has before it an appropriation order for $200,000 for the purchase of 500 machines to serve the city's some 50,000 voters.

Gillis said the appropriation order will be trimmed to $16,000 and he will urge the Council to pass it at the Monday night meeting.

Gillis said Electronic Voting Machines was the middle of three bids.

LHS Associates of Andover submitted the other two bids, $115,000 for machines with no booths and $175,000 for machines with booths. The EVM bid includes booths.

Gillis said LHS proposed selling the city reconditioned machines "and that scared me."

The EVM machines, he said, can handle up to 200 names on a ballot while the LHS proposal had room for only 70 to 75 names without going to a second ballot.

Urban Specialist Hints At Shift In City Planning Goals

Kevin Shea, an urban planner currently working in Chelsea, has been hired by the Quincy Planning Department, indicating a subtle shift in the city's building goals.

Shea, who lives in North Dartmouth, succeeds Susan Spelios, principal planner for economic development, who resigned to go into private employment.

"This is the first time we have hired someone with a master's degree in urban planning," said Planning Director James Lydon.

"Traditionally we have sought someone with an economic background to put together financial packages. We are doing away with the job as a specialty.

"A lot of business is coming into the city now and we can lessen the emphasis on luring business and stand back and involve the staff more in planning."

"We are going to get involved in the moderately priced housing market. We have had great success with the upper income market but not a lot of production of housing we can afford."

"We are not abandoning economic development," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley. "We have got a lot of positive things going. Now we have to see if we can manage it and make life more livable."

Lydon said he also plans to hire an assistant planner to fill a longtime vacancy as, he said, he does not have the staff to develop new innovative programs.

The principal planners job pays $24,847 a year, the assistant $22,119, with all the funds from federal Community Development grants.

Shea is a graduate of Canisius College, Buffalo, N.Y., with a degree in political science and urban affairs. He has a master's in urban affairs from Boston University.

Prior to becoming housing and urban development planner in Chelsea, he worked for the South Central Community Development Corp., New Bedford, and the State Department of Mental Health.

Eagle Scout Robert Bouton Honored By Kiwanis Club

The Quincy Kiwanis Club recently honored Robert Bouton, the first mentally handicapped scout to earn his Eagle Scout designation. Bouton is a member of Troop 51 which the Kiwanis Club sponsors.

Also present at the meeting were Buell and John Fuller, 77-year-old twin brothers long involved in scouting who have helped make the troop unique.

The Quincy Kiwanis Club

also voted to request $6,000 from the Health Fund for donation to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center. On March 23, there will be a visit by the Kiwanis International President at the Marriott in Burlington. Any member interested in attending should contact President Richard Sweeney Jr.

Louis Mazzini Named To Hospital Board

Mayor Francis X. McCauley has named Louis Mazzini of 164 Samoset Ave., Merrymount, to the board of managers of Quincy City Hospital.

Mazzini, a master plumber and gas fitter, succeeds Stephen Ricciardi, who resigned last fall due to possible conflict of interest. The term expires in January, 1988.

"It will be helpful to have a man of Mr. Mazzini's background and skills on the board as we move to the build a new hospital," said McCauley.

The Mayor said that Mazzini, who is also president of the Merrymount Association, was one of two applicants for the post who responded to an advertisement.

'Equity Training' Classes For All School Personnel

"Equity training" will be available to all Quincy public school personnel, teachers, custodians and secretaries, to make them aware of the racial and cultural sensitivities of the students in their care.

Thirty school administrators currently are in their third week of such classes conducted by Donald Polk, president of the Boston chapter of the Urban League, who reports that the sessions are going well.

The classes are the result of an incident last December in which a white school department worker offended some black students by dressing up as Aunt Jemima in order to promote waffles for lunch.

"Don't call it 'sensitivity raining'," said Alicia Colletti, affirmative action coordinator in the Quincy schools. "That's just a newspaper term. It's the 'Administrators Equity Training Program.'"

"It's designed to help school administrators to recognize the racial, religious and ethnic diversity of the student body and insure fair treatment for everybody."

The four week program, held every Tuesday morning from 8 a.m. to 12 noon, is funded 60 percent by a grant from the state's Commonwealth Inservice Institute and 40 percent by the Quincy public schools.

The current sessions are limited to school principals and main office personnel but, said Colletti, in the future it will be expanded to include teachers, custodians, secretaries and anyone else who comes in contact with students.

She said Polk, who has 10 years experience working with school systems, was selected to conduct the classes on the recommendation of the State Department of Education.

Marilyn LeBlanc Named To QHA Board

Mrs. Marilyn LeBlanc of 27 Quadrant Circle, Germantown, a 22-year resident of public housing in Quincy, has been named to a five-year term on the Quincy Housing Authority.

The appointment by Mayor Francis X. McCauley must be confirmed by the City Council.

Mrs. LeBlanc, whose name was one of four submitted to the mayor by the Harborview Tenants Association, succeeds Edward Graham, who was not eligible for another term.

A newly enacted state law specifies that one member of the five-member board must be a public housing tenant.

McCauley said Mrs. LeBlanc's appointment will go to the Council Monday.

Cigarettes Stolen

Twenty-five cartons of cigarettes were reported stolen early Monday from the Cumberland Farms gas station at 470 Sea St., Adams Shore.

Eugene Gillitt of 141 Rock Island Rd., Houghs Neck, the station attendant, said the thief had also tampered with a safe embedded in concrete.

DAFFODIL DAY, held on the first day of spring by the Joseph Sweeney Funeral Homes, raised funds for the American Cancer Society. Quincy City Hospital patient Joseph Angelo's room was brightened by some daffodils with the help of Joanne Hedlund, left, pastoral care, and Gall Driscoll, R.N., right, of the Quincy Visiting Nurses Association.

Reader's Forum Takes Issue With Article On Hospital Bomb Scare

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I am writing in regard to the 2-21-85 article that the Quincy Sun printed regarding the alleged bomb scare at Quincy City Hospital.

I could not believe that in this article you devoted a paragraph to the pro-life demonstration outside the hospital the day before the alleged bomb scare.
Obviously your reason for doing this was to cause your readers to suspect that those marching in defense of the preborn children being put to death at Quincy City Hospital may be responsible for the alleged bomb scare.

If this was not your motive, why mention the pro-life demonstration at all? It had nothing to do with anything else mentioned in the article.

This piece of "journalism" was very unprofessional and unethical. I find it interesting that no one took credit for this article. No reporter's name was found in the article. I wonder why? I feel you owe a written apology to those marching for life at Quincy City Hospital, and also to your readers, for trying to influence them to think a certain way by manipulating them with your cheap journalistic techniques.

Suggests Task Force To Study Animal Control

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Our Organization enthusiastically supports the recent call by City Councillor James Sheets for something to be done about leash law enforcement in this city.

Our policy from our founding has been to support any meaningful effort to correct what is now a deplorable situation.
However, a quick-fix solution will only create more problems, because more dogs will be picked up, impounded and destroyed.
We suggest that this is the time to set up a task force to look into every aspect of animal control in Quincy and see if we can't do better.

Some areas to be explored might be: the inadequacy of our present dog pound; the need for full-time trained personnel; set hours for the pound to be open to the public; an aggressive, cooperative adoption

(The reason that the bomb scare (not alleged bomb scare) was used in the article is because it was a fact and it did occur the day after the anti-abortion picketing at the hospital. The two incidents happened at the same hospital, hours apart.

We frankly don't know who was responsible for the bomb scare and we don't think reader Tinney knows either.
The hospital says it has "no idea who initiated the call"
and we so reported that in the same article.

The reader has decided that "obviously" our reason was to "cause" your readers to suspect" that it was the anti-abortion marchers who were responsible for the bomb scare. That is not so.

We don't know who did it.
She doesn't know who did it.
The hospital doesn't know, except that it was a man. Only the caller knows who it really was.

The reader also "finds it interesting that no one took credit for the article. No reporter's name was found in the article. I wonder why?"

The answer to that is that many articles appear in The Sun without a byline. In fact, in that particular issue there were some 100.

The Quincy Sun and its Sun Ch. 8 has covered anti-abortion pickets at the hospital on other occasions and we feel we have presented their views in a fair manner and will continue to do so.
(The Editor.)

program to save dogs now being destroyed.

This task force should look into the entire question of animal control, holding open meetings for citizen input, and then make recommendations for action. No plans should be ruled out without fair and open discussion, and no sacred cows should be spared if problems are discovered.

We suggest that one representative from our League and one from South Shore Humane Society be invited to serve on this task force. We would welcome the opportunity to join with other concerned individuals to help solve some of these long-standing problems, both to benefit the people of our city and the animals for whom we speak.

Ward 6 Front Quiet

The Ward 6 political front is still pretty quiet considering there is an open City Council seat up for grabs.

No official candidate in the picture yet although two seems to be coming into focus.

Thomas Koch, brother of City
Councillor-at-large Richard Koch,
Jr. and son of Quincy Recreation-
Park Board Chairman Richard Koch, Sr. looks pretty much like a certain candidate. But, at the moment, he does not appear to be in a hurry to make an official announcement.

Meanwhile, he is staying busy heading up the Quincy Cancer Crusade. He is expected to make the announcement once the Cancer Crusade is over in April.

John Walsh of Squantum, who served as coordinator for Ron Iacobucci's campaign for City Council at-large two years ago, looks like a definite candidate, too. But, not officially yet.

School Committeewoman Mary
Collins is still a possible candidate for the Ward 6 seat but says, quite frankly, "At this time, I don't know. I really haven't had time to give it much thought."

Thomas Nutley, Boston Gas
Co. executive and community activist, is still another possibility.
But you can pretty much scratch one name that has been mentioned as a possible candidate: Richard Golden.

Golden, who ran against Senator Paul Harold last year, has embarked on a new career as a manufacturer's representative and he doesn't think he will be a candidate. Now 30 and a resident of Russell St., he's still interested in some form of public service once he gets adjusted to his new career.

KOCH

NUTLEY

Nomination papers won't be available until May 20 so maybe it is a little too early to expect much action on the Ward 6 front.

But things should be opening up pretty soon.

THE ENTRANCE OF Frank Santoro into this year's School Committee race is seen by some as further evidence that incumbent Nick Verenis may not seek re-election.

Verenis and two other incumbents,
Mary Collins and Joan Picard are due up for re-election.
Santoro, as a non-incumbent would in effect be challenging all three incumbents. He and Verenis are good friends.
Some observers don't think Santoro would have gotten in if Verenis was going to seek re-election.

But . . . voters get three choices so would it really matter?

SPRING HAS COME officially to City Hall. Like the swallows at Capistrano, the kamikaze crows have returned to attack the Planning Department.

The black birds, who hang around the Hancock Cemetery, hurl themselves against the windows of the third floor as if they are trying to get at the people inside.

Bob Donald, the Planning Department's economist, says it has happened every spring since the planners moved into the new building some five years ago.

"I think they see the reflection of the trees in the glass and try to land on the limbs," he said. "You can see them come in with their claws outstretched."

Donald thinks that eventually the birds learn to tell the trees from the reflection because later in the spring the attacks cease.

A few years ago, he recalls, one bird was killed crashing into the window near his desk.

Nut Island Sewage Plant Plan Assailed

Siting of a new sewerage treatment plant on Nut Island has drawn varying degrees of opposition from the Metropolitan Area Planning Council and two elected officials of Quincy.

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell pointed out to environmental officials that there are state laws prohibiting filling of Quincy Bay and restricting landtaking for sewerage purposes.

The MAPC suggested that the option of satellite treatments in upstream communities should be given consideration along with harbor locations before a siting decision is made.

And City Councillor Joanne Condon demanded that the site planners "go back to the drawing board" and find a way for each community to treat its sewerage before releasing it.

Brownell, in a statement to Federal Environmental Protection Agency and the State Office of Environmental Affairs pointed out the legal barriers to a Nut Island siting.

Brownell noted that building a new facility on Nut Island would require filling in up to three acres of the bay and/or taking 10 or more homes in Houghs Neck.

He recalled that he sponsored legislation, since signed into law, prohibiting filling in the bay and requiring legislative approval for landtaking for such plants.

The legislature would have to consider new legislation in order to override those statutes.

"The chances of any such legislation ever passing are probably non-existent," said Brownell.

Brownell told the EPA that those statutes make the Nut Island siting options not only the most costly but "the most difficult to implement of all the alternatives before you."

"Filling in the bay or taking homes would have the worst possible impacts on the citizens of Houghs Neck," he said.

"That alone should be enough to convince the EPA and the Office of Environmental Affairs, but if it's not, I have pointed out that both actions are now clearly unlawful.

"I think Deer Island is the only realistic choice."

The MAPC, in its review of the Supplemental Draft Environmental Impact Statement on the sitings, was critical that the options given did not go far enough.

"Given the burden of impacts on the potential host communities (Quincy and Winthrop)," said the review, "the option of satellite treatment plants in upstream sections of the service area should have received full consideration."

"Even if technical, environmental or economic constraints would ultimately rule these options out, their advantages and disadvantages should be clearly compared with those of the harbor-site options."

The MAPC also said it is concerned by the fact that the siting decision is proceeding in isolation from other major system-management and development decisions, particularly the issues of level of treatment and methods of disposing of sludge.

"It would seem reasonable to resolve these issues before a final siting decision is made."

Councillor Condon, in a statement, noted that Quincy's complaints had for years fallen on deaf ears until recently when the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority was formed.

"When a response is finally made," she said, "that response entails more pain for Quincy and does not look to solve the problem."

"We are confronted with more bay fill and the taking of our homes. Why must Quincy continue to bear the brunt of your inability to do your job properly? Why must Quincy stand by and watch while you continue to destroy our bay?"

"We have had enough. We don't want Nut Island. We don't want further bay fill. We don't want any further destruction of our bay."

Test Blackout 'Big Success'

Police Capt. George W. Fallon, the city's blackout officer, pronounced Quincy's role in the Greater Boston test blackout "overwhelmingly successful" in spite of a number of violations of the lights-out regulations.

Street lights were extinguished at the sound of the "blue signal" and minutes later the "red signal" directed that all lights in the city be turned out. Many residents darkened their homes when the street lights went out.

Police officers had to break into one Hancock St. furniture store to turn out a light that had been left burning and a Wollaston jeweler faced court action for his second blackout violation in 20 days.

Other violations included a man on Quincy Ave. who lit a cigarette after being told not to by an air raid warden, a motorist who was stopped with his dash lights on, and a bicycle shop proprietor who fell asleep with the lights on.

The Boston Edison Co. reported a 57 percent drop in the use of electricity during the blackout in the 50 cities and towns that took part in it.

NO ROOM FOR MAYOR

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin, suffering from a sore throat and a temperature of 104 degrees, was denied entrance to Quincy City Hospital because "there was no room for him," charged Dr. Richard M. Ash, health commissioner and the mayor's personal physician.

The incident revived a controversy from the previous summer when Burgin, recognizing that the hospital was overcrowded ordered construction of a temporary addition but the plan failed when the City Council refused to appropriate the money.

BODY IN QUARRY

The nude body of a woman, identified as Mrs. Helen D. Cullen, 45, of Boston's West End, was found in Carson's Quarry off Quarry St., West Quincy, and Police Capt. William F. McIntyre said signs of a struggle at the quarry's edge indicated foul play.

Mrs. Albert Jones of 33 Waterston Ave., Wollaston, received a letter from her missing husband, Gen. Albert Jones, written Feb. 14 somewhere in the Philippine jungle. It was the first time she heard from him since Dec. 10, three days after Pearl Harbor.

Interfaith Coalition Seeking Permanent Shelter For Homeless

The Interfaith Sheltering Coalition housed more than 170 homeless people from November through February, but the organization would like to expand to provide social services.

The coalition is looking for a permanent facility that could accommodate about 50 beds and house day care programs including health services, clothing, meals and professional counseling, said Nancy Powers, Salvation Army community social worker.

The coalition established a five-bed men's shelter at the Salvation Army on Baxter St. in July, and a temporary, 20 bed shelter for men and women opened in December at the former St. John's School, Phipps St.

St. John's Shelter will close April 30 when funding runs out. Twelve to 18 people will be able to sleep in a recently funded Quincy Crisis Center mobile van to begin service April 15.

Eighty-five percent of the people who stayed in the shelters were alcoholics, said Miss Powers, and 10 percent suffered from severe emotional or psychiatric problems.

A permanent shelter must provide more than a bed and food, said Miss Powers.

DIAMONDS AND LOVE

No one really knows when diamonds first became the gemstone of love and romance. We do know that the ancient Romans used diamonds as a "gem of reconciliation" between angry lovers or quarrelling spouses. Engagement and wedding rings date back at least four thousand years. Conceivably, some had diamonds in them. The first known diamond engagement ring was given by Archduke Maximilian of Austria in 1477 to his royal intended, Mary of Burgundy. Fortunately for tradition, Maximilian was an ideal husband. His love for Mary was worthy of a storybook. He was tender, bold, dashing and romantic. Certainly, his commitment was deserving of a diamond. The diamond came to be the symbol of undying love because its invincible and enduring quality was believed to give its wearer special power to assure eternal love.

Tradition says that diamonds are for weddings and engagements. At TODDIE'S FINE JEWELRY we say whatever your heart desires is what is right for you. We carry a fine selection of all gem stones set in magnificent settings. Since your wedding is so unique to you, you may want us to custom design a ring especially for you. See what we have to offer at 1163 Hancock St., where shopping locally is wiser and less expensive than going to the "Jeweler's Bldg." in Boston. Mon.-Fri. 10-6; Sat. til 4. Tel. 479-9464.

Plans Approved For St. John's Parish Center

By JANE MORRISSEY
Construction of a multi-purpose parish center at St. John the Baptist Church, 44 School St., Quincy Center, has been approved by Archbishop Bernard Law and the Executive Board of the Parish Council.

The center will cost approximately $800,000 to build.

Bishop Law signed a $72,000 proposal contract for final plans by an architect.

Plans were announced in the current issue of St. John's News, the Parish newspaper.

At a recent meeting, the Executive Board reaffirmed its support for the construction of the new center and approved the action of Fr. William McCarthy, pastor, in going forward with preliminary plans.

The center would be used to house many needed activities such as youth basketball. St. John's is unavailable to offer sufficient programs to parish teenagers which maintain their interest and participation beyond 13 and 14 years of age. St. John's is currently renting local gyms for youth basketball.

The current fragmented youth basketball practice program could be consolidated to the one central area for regular practice use.

Parish socials for all ages could accommodate all who wish to attend and participate. At present, St. John's must limit social events because of a lack of space in the lower church hall.

The new center would include an auditorium which could be converted into a hall with a stage for musical shows and special feast day presentations.

Fr. McCarthy told the Executive Board that close to $300,000 of the needed $800,000 is to be made available through a revolving fund and a bequest. The remainder of the funding may be through regular donations, other bequests, or through a fund drive if regular donations are not sufficient.

No target date has been set for the completion of the center. It is hoped that actual construction will begin within the next two years.

George Belezos, 102, Oldest Permanent Cardiac Pacemaker Recipient

A funeral Mass for George Belezos, 102, of Quincy, believed to be the oldest person ever to receive a permanent cardiac pacemaker, was held March 19 in St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox Church.

Mr. Belezos died March 16 in a local nursing home. He had lived on Rigglow St., Quincy Center, for many years.

Born in the village of Kollinas in the Peloponnesian mountains of Greece he came to this country in the early 1900s.

At the age of 30, he

GEORGE BELEZOS

returned to Greece to fight against invading Turks.

Before his retirement, he operated a hat cleaning business in Quincy Square for 40 years.

A permanent cardiac pacemaker was implanted in Mr. Belezos in July, 1983 at Quincy City Hospital after he suffered a massive heart attack.

His doctor, Dr. Seraphim Papajannis, said it was the first time a pacemaker was implanted in a 100-year-old.

Five attempts had been made to implant a temporary pacemaker.

Dr. Papajannis described Mr. Belezos at the time as having the appearance of a 65-year-old.

Gov. Michael Dukakis, whose family came from Greece, visited Mr. Belezos' bedside after the operation, as did Mayor Francis McCauley.

He is survived by a son, Nick Belezos of Brighton; seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by Babalas and DeMarkles Funeral Home, Cambridge.

Burial was in Forest Hills Cemetery, Boston.

Mr. McCourt operated the Fore River Bridge, the largest drawbridge in the state, for 38 years with his brother Bernie McCourt. He retired last year.

The McCourts grew up in Cambridge, but the family spent summers in the Houghs Neck section of Quincy. The brothers bought homes there many years later.

William McCourt was a graduate of Rindge Technical High School.

He moved to Quincy 35 years ago.

WILLIAM F. MCCOURT

Mr. McCourt also was a mechanic and service writer for South Shore Buick, Quincy, for 25 years, retiring in June.

A veteran of World War II, Mr. McCourt was a corporal in the Marine Corps for four years.

He was a member of the George F. Bryant Veterans of Foreign Wars Post and the Cavanaugh Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans.

He is survived by his wife, Katherine H. (Sistrunk) McCourt; three sons, William F. McCourt of Pembroke, Sgt. John B. McCourt, USAF, Fort Walton, Fla., and Michael D. McCourt of Quincy; a daughter, Dorothy J. Cotter of Pembroke; his brother; a sister, Gertrude Paganelli of Syracuse; and five grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Arnold Bennett, a prolific author, was often asked how he "found the time" for painting, for music - time to read and to cultivate friends. His answer was "How to Live on Twenty-Four Hours a Day."

"Time is the inexplicable raw material of everything. With it, all is possible; without it, nothing. The supply of time is truly a daily miracle, an affair genuinely astonishing when one examines it.

You wake up in the morning, and lo! your purse is magically filled with twenty-four hours of the unmanufactured tissue of the universe of your life! It's yours . . . No one can take it from you . . . And no one receives either more or less than you receive . . .

You have to live on this twenty-four hours of daily time. Out of it you have to spin health, pleasure, money, content, respect, and the evolution of your immortal soul. Its right use, is a matter of the highest urgency and the most thrilling actuality. All depends on that. Your happiness - the elusive prize that you are clutching for, my friend depends on that.

If you cannot arrange that an income of twenty-four hours a day shall exactly cover all proper items of expenditure, one does muddle one's whole life indefinitely . . . We never shall have any more time. We have, and we have always had, all the time there is . . .

Live Colt At Bethany Church For Palm Sunday Service

As a dramatic way of reliving the Palm Sunday experience when Jesus rode into Jerusalem on a colt, the foal of a donkey, and was hailed as a king, a live colt will arrive at 11:15 a.m. following the worship service, as part of the festivities Palm Sunday, at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Centre.

Children will be able to ride the colt, with supervision, on the Spear Street lawn between the chapel and sanctuary. The fourth grade Church School children will wear biblical costumes.

Long fresh palm slips will be distributed to everyone and persons will be able to wave the palms and join the children in shouting "Hosanna" and "Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord."

The religious and educational intention of this is to enable participants to remember more vividly the details and meaning of the Palm Sunday events. The pupils of the Sunday School will attend the first portion of the worship service and then be dismissed to go to their classrooms and study the Gospel accounts of the first Palm Sunday prior to riding the colt.

The Palm Sunday worship service will be celebrated in the sanctuary at 10 a.m. The entire congregation will join in singing the familiar composition by Faure, "The Palms" as the processional hymn.

The chancel choir, under the direction of Peter E. Krasinski, organist, will present as the offertory Melchior Teschner's, "All Glory, Laud, and Honor", and as the second anthem, "Draw Nigh to Jerusalem", by D. H. Williams.

The Rev. J. William Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon entitled, "The Meek King", and will lead an action reading of the Gospel lesson from Mark 11:1-10. The epistle lesson from Revelation 11:15-18 and 19:4-6 will be read by B. Warren French. The associate minister, Rev. Joel F. Huntington will serve as the liturgist.

The following persons will be received into membership: Lisa Coolidge, Steven and Laura Goodwin, Garrett and Nancy Morris, and George and Linda Nicholson. Following the worship service there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor for everyone, at which time the new members will be greeted.

Nursery facilities and care for babies and toddlers is provided during the 10 a.m. worship hour. The service will be broadcast over station WJDA, 1300 kc, at 11 a.m. For information on Bethany's programs and ministries telephone the church office at 479-7300.

Cable thieves, now is the time for conversion.

As your cable company, our business is bringing you entertainment, not law enforcement. Frankly, we'd rather cheer you up than chase you down.

But a few of you (some inadvertently) are getting cable service that you are not paying for. And that's a crime in this state, punishable by a fine of up to $1000 or up to 6 months in jail.

What's more, cable theft increases the cost of cable for everybody. It must stop. So for everybody's sake, here's what we plan to do.

For the next 7 days, we'll declare a truce. Bring any cable converter that has been tampered with to our office and have it replaced. Free. No questions asked.

Fair is fair, however. So after this amnesty period, any infractions will be reported to the police.

So what'll it be? 7 days from us, or up to 6 months from the law? The decision is up to you.

Turn in your old converter for a legal one. No questions asked.

Fitzgerald Takes Helm Pitching Big North Question

Tom Fitzgerald, a football coach at North Quincy and Quincy for 14 years, is coaching baseball for the first time in 15 years and feels that, with some solid pitching, his North Quincy team can make a good showing this spring.

Fitzgerald, whose last baseball coaching job was at Newfield High on Long Island, N.Y., succeeds Charlie Bunker, who gave up the Raider's reins after 14 years.

Fitzgerald doesn't have many veterans, as many top players on Bunker's last team, which missed an Eastern Mass. Tournament bid by one game, graduated.

Those included the Suburban League's top two batters, Chris Bunker, now at Dartmouth, and Jack Bolster, currently at Eckard College in Florida. Incidentally, Bolster hit a two-run homer to spark Eckard to a recent victory over Massasoit.

"Pitching is definitely the big question mark," said the new Raider skipper. "We have an outstanding pitcher in Jack Outerbridge, who had a fine season last spring and was a standout for Morrisette Legion, but the rest are unknown quantities."

The other pitching hopefuls include Mike Kubera, a jayvee last year who played for Quincy Legion; Ted Shionis, another former jayvee and a Quincy Legion player; Chris Cody, who will also play the outfield, and Greg McGlame, the only southpaw, who will also play the infield. He played last summer for Wollaston Legion.

North has a standout catcher in veteran Rich Brooks, who was an excellent receiver for Morrisette Legion, and two good looking backups in Mark Simonelli, a transfer from Don Bosco, and Brian Flukes.

Chris Rossi, also a fine catcher, and Mike Cocce will share the first base chores. Rossi is expected to be Wollaston Legion's starting catcher this summer. Jimmy Magnosa will also see first base action and pitch.

Dave Zuroms returns to second base, Bill Connelly will be at shortstop and Ken Runge, who was a fine first baseman for Wollaston Legion, will play third. He saw both varsity and jayvee action a year ago.

Fitzgerald has some good looking outfielders including Bob Koslowski, Greg Knight, who played for Quincy Legion; Steve Kelly, Gerry Layden, Rob Bradley, Chris Ricciuti and Mike Haynes, a transfer from A.B. Williams. Sophomore Peter Tufts is another outfielder with promise.

"I feel we will have a good hitting club and a strong defensive team," said Fitzgerald. "Brooks, Runge, Magnosa and Koslowski all have been hitting well."

North has 20 sophomores out for the club and they will play for Leo Donovan's junior varsity team. Warren McLean will assist Fitzgerald with the varsity and Ron Quaglia will coach the freshman.

The Raiders are scheduled to open April 11 at Weymouth South and will host Medford on the 15th.

In addition to its Suburban League rivals, North will face Medford, Peabody, Revere, Somerville and Arlington of the Greater Boston League and Weymouth South and Weymouth North of the Old Colony League. The Weymouths are former Suburban League rivals. North Quincy was in the Greater Boston League for several years before moving to the Suburban League.

DIANE DROBIA, left, freshman forward, and Mary Kate McConville, junior guard, of Quincy, were members of Curry College's record-setting women's basketball team this season. Curry ended at 15-5, the best record in school history. The two will be among returnees who will be key performers for the Lady Colonels next season.

Apollo Selected For European Women's Hockey Tourney

Quincy native Lauren Apollo, a former three-sport star at North Quincy High, has been chosen to represent the U.S. in a women's hockey tournament in western Europe in April.

Lauren, who played basketball, softball and soccer at North Quincy and who began her hockey career in the Quincy Youth Hockey Association is one of 24 college players selected to make the trip.

Women's ice hockey, a relatively new sport, has grown tremendously over the past 10 years and it is hoped to add the sport to the 1988 Olympic Games.

Lauren recently completed an outstanding hockey career at the University of

New Hampshire. She captained this year's Lady Wildcats, who finished the regular season at 17-2 and lost to Providence, 4-2, in the ECAC Tournament finals. She set a scoring record for a defenseman with 104 points. She was named to the ECAC first all-star team and won the MVP award in this year's all-star game.

The cost of the upcoming European trip is about $1500 per player and anyone wishing to contribute to Apollo's fund is asked to send a tax deductible contribution to Lauren Apollo, Team N.E. Girls, 6 West Elm Ave., Quincy, 02169.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Elks To Host Run For Your Life Road Race

The Quincy Lodge of Elks has agreed to act as host for the seventh annual Quincy Run for Your Life Road Race.

The 5-mile race starts on Long Island and finishes on the main land.

By adjusting the route, the finish line will be at the Elks Home on East Squantum St. and participants will no longer have to cross Quincy Shore Drive or run narrow streets to the old Hulsing Ave. finish line. The busling of runners to the island for the start will also be far quicker than in past years.

The race to be held Sunday, April 28, and is for the benefit of nursing scholarships and patient's needs at the Long Island Hospital. This is the only time each year that the island is open to runners, and the race is extremely popular with area runners because of the unique opportunity to run a road race in such a natural and beautiful surrounding.

Charter Buses Banned For School Athletic Games

The State Rationing Authority ordered a ban on chartered buses for the transportation of participants in athletic events and observers predicted an end to high school football in the city, except for the Quincy-North Quincy game.

It was pointed out that football players from both schools could walk to Municipal Stadium for the Thanksgiving Day game and the two Quincy schools might play games with Weymouth and Braintree with transportation furnished by private cars.

However, the first schoolboy athletes to feel the effect of the ban would be the baseball teams since the order was effective immediately.

PARK LEAGUE READY

President Hobie Robertson announced that the Quincy Park League will definitely function during the 1942 season, probably as a six-team loop, manned for the most part with young players up from the defunct South Shore Junior Two League.

The Italian Mutual Society, the champions in 1941, and the Wollaston Eagles were reported to be seeking admission to the South Shore League and the Atlantic Braves were so badly depleted by the draft and defense work they were unlikely to play.

ONE VET RETURNING

Jack White was the only veteran pitcher returning on the North Quincy High School baseball team but Coach Hal Forest was expecting a lot of help from three promising juniors, Al DiRamio, Al Swanson and Ken Coleman, a Park League veteran.

QUINCY TEAM OUT

Candidates for Coach Bill Sullivan's Quincy High School baseball team held their first outdoor workouts at Faxon Field and Sullivan said the leading pitchers in early practices were Art LaRue, Matt McKenna, Joe Goodhue and Harry Judder.

SAUNDERS ENTHUSED

Manager Jeppy Saunders was enthusiastic for his Fore River baseball team in the New England League as hurlers Johnny Fallon, Joe Mulligan and Fran Desmond were expected back along with minor leaguers working at the shipyard.

TRYOUT FOR GANZEL

Neil Ganzel, 17-year-old son of Babe Ganzel and scion of the famous Quincy baseball family, was getting a tryout with the New York Giants farm system. Both his father and his grandfather, Charlie Ganzel, played major league baseball.

NEW RACING CLASS

The 15 members of the Gull Point Yacht Club, the city's newest boating organization based in Germantown, were building a racing class of 12-foot catboats for competition prior to the opening of the yachting season on Memorial Day.

VETERAN GOLFERS

Coach Russ Albro issued a call for candidates for the Quincy High School golf team and said much depended on the veteran foursome of Ray O'Toole, Warren Chamberlin, Tom McKeagney and Ed Ciochette to improve on the previous year's 3-5 record.

WILLIAMS STARS

Ted Williams hit a three-run homer and knocked in two more runs with a pair of singles as the Boston Red Sox opened the season with an 8-3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. Johnny Pesky debuted as Sox shortstop with a triple and a single.

SPORTS BITS '42

Paddy DiStefano, long a key player with the Fore River baseball teams, was trying out for the Army team at Camp Edwards on Cape Cod . . . The Boston Bruins, who lost the famed Kraut line of Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Porky Dumart to the armed services during the season, were eliminated from the Stanley Cup playoffs by the Detroit Red Wings in two straight games . . . Fitchburg was admitted to the New England League, joining Quincy, Worcester, Lynn, Portland, Maine, Pawtucket and Woonsocket, R.I., and Manchester, N.H. . . . Francis "Bud" Austin, 18, of Quincy was in training for his first Boston AA marathon . . . Ted Nelson, former pitcher for the Squantum CA, the Quincy Civics and St. Ann's, was named to manage the Squantum team in the South Shore League, succeeding George Clark . . . Johnny Seaman of Quincy was in training for his fight with Waddell Washington in Portland, Maine, his first bout since breaking his hand against Jimmy Haydon in Boston . . . Manager Casey Stengel said veteran Johnny Cooney would be first baseman for the Boston Braves and Max West and Chet Ross would divide duties in left field.

and the worship and learning program at 7:30 p.m.

This Sunday is Palm Sunday. There will be an all-church breakfast at 9:15 a.m., with the worship service afterward at 10:30 a.m. Four choirs will participate. Every worshiper will receive a palm.

On the following Thursday, Maundy Thursday, April 4, the Lord's Supper will be observed at 7:30 p.m. On Good Friday evening, April 5, members of the church choir will join with members of the church choirs of seven other churches to perform Handel's "Messiah" (Part II) at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Square.

On Easter morning, April 7, members of the church will gather on the shore at Mosswetust Hummock for an Easter Sunrise Service at 7:30 a.m.

Afterward, worshippers will return to the church for a light breakfast of muffins and eggs. Visitors from other churches without such a service are invited to attend.

If such persons are in a group of more than a few, however, they should call Dr. Langevin earlier in the week at 328-7675 to tell him that they are coming. The church wants to be sure to have enough eggs and muffins for everyone.

The traditional Easter morning service will be held Easter morning at 10:30 a.m.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

RESIDENCE REPLACEMENT RULE

QUESTION: Next month will be our second home sale in three years. On the last sale we deferred paying capital gain tax because we bought a more expensive home. Can we also defer the profit tax on the sale of our current home?

ANSWER: You can use the residence replacement rule to defer your profit tax as many times as you wish. To qualify, both old and replacement residences must be your principal residences, you must occupy the replacement home within two years before or after selling your old home, and the replacement home must equal or exceed the old home's sales price.

Home ownership continues to be the best tax shelter for the average American family.

IF YOU SELL YOUR HOME for a profit and replace it with a more expensive one, you can defer paying the gains tax.

WEEK OF: MARCH 28,

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
Decision that involves your principles can dominate this period. Friendship is also a theme of the week; you may be launching a new relationship with a Libra or Gemini.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
It's easy to be discouraged; avoid making any negative-type decision without proper thought. Romantic uncertainties begin to clear and you understand the route that the relationship will take.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
Friend is surprisingly outspoken on a sensitive subject; your reaction surprises - and impresses - the people around you. Recognizing your own talents is your key undertaking this week.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22
Change in scenery is spotlighted as spring gets under way. Watch tendency to be overly enthusiastic in your spring cleaning. New fashions and styles are presently encouraged.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
Opportunities can easily slip by, so make an added effort to catch them when they appear. Close friend becomes more trusting. Seek out new challenges throughout the week.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Watch tendency to be too independent - life can suddenly become a little lonely if you don't look to others for support or sympathy. Discussions with older relatives prove mutually beneficial.

LEO - July 23-August 22
The humorous side of friendship is accentuated. Finances benefit from a thorough review. Sports programs are spotlighted through the weekend. Investigation is keyword on Monday.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
A rapid-paced week in which you make large plans and begin to implement them. In financial matters, meticulous attention to detail is essential. Love accents its whimsical side.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Don't keep back your emotions; speak from your heart, and articulate your innermost concerns. Ideas are bright and can be introduced by Tuesday. Read documents carefully before signing them.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
Ideas are clever but check that your best ones are not being credited to others. Social life is lively - be careful not to make too many commitments for the same date.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
Focus shifts from friendship to romance and romantic commitment. Reunions are highlighted through the weekend. Ideas are offered; present them to the right people at the right time.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
Your perception and sympathy make you a friend indeed. A recent financial move can pay off in a modest way. In areas of health and recreation, balance is important.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You are excellent at starting things, but need a partner to help you follow them through to their conclusions. Self-confidence is your middle name. Subtlety is certainly not your style. Year ahead sees you broadening perspectives with accent on education.

BORN THIS WEEK
March 28th, actor Ken Howard; 29th, singer Pearl Bailey; 30th, actor Warren Beatty; 31st, actress Shirley Jones, April 1st, actress Ali McGraw; 2nd, actor Alec Guinness; 3rd, actress Marsha Mason.

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to April 2 a request from the recently opened Papa Gino's Restaurant at 1 Beale St., Wollaston for a common victualer-wine and malt license.

The matter was continued at the request of Ward Councillor Stephen J. McGrath who was out of town for the meeting.

Susan Cleary, real estate coordinator for Papa Gino's, said that 110 of the business' 151 restaurants have beer and wine licenses.

She said that company policy is to first open a restaurant and then determine whether it is appropriate to add a beer and wine license.

Miss Cleary said that the company makes sure the establishment is not a hang-out for youths, there is adequate staffing of employees over age 18 who can serve beer and wine, and the customer flow is sufficient.

Papa Gino's does not serve beer and wine unless food is also ordered, explained Miss Cleary.

Thomas Dowd of Vassal St. said that parking in the area is "murder" and asked why the board granted the original license without sufficient parking.

City Clerk John Gillis said that a pizza parlor had been at that location before it was burned out several years ago.

Police Chief Francis Finn said that Mayor Francis McCauley has formed a commission to study traffic in the city, including North Quincy and Wollaston.

Finn said that he hopes recommendations will come from the commission.

Several Wollaston residents said they would feel uneasy having their children go to a restaurant where beer and wine is served.

John Flavin of 21-23 Beale St. said there has been a problem with youths congregating in the area.

Clifton Sheppard, who said he owns the block which houses Mug & Muffin, said he was also opposed to the request.

Board Continues Hearing On Lodging House License

The Quincy License Board Tuesday continued to April 9 a hearing regarding permanent revocation of the license for a lodging house which is the site of a recent fire.

The board voted for the continuance to allow Mrs. Hikmet Abraham, owner of the lodging house at 3 McGrath Highway, the opportunity to obtain a lawyer to represent her at the hearing.

The license for the lodging house was revoked by the board last Tuesday for public safety and public health reasons after a fire which caused an estimated $35,000 damage.

Patrick Connors, 78, a roomer at the house was treated for burns on the left hand and face and released from Quincy City Hospital.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the License Board, called the rooming house "a disgrace" and Fire Chief Edward Barry said Mrs. Abraham "appeared to be in violation of her license."

Barry said he believed the lodging house was licensed for 12 lodgers and he was told there were 18 in the house the morning of the fire.

Barry also said there was supposed to be a master fire alarm box connection at the house but there was none.

"The conditions almost defied description," Barry told his colleagues on the License Board. "The lodgers were living under conditions they should not have been living in."

The fire apparently started with a portable heater coming in contact with a combustible material in Connors' room, according to Fire Capt. Patrick Clair.

Progress Made Between Dairy Mart And Neighbors

Progress in talks between Dairy Mart and neighbors of four of its stores in Quincy was discussed at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

City Clerk John Gillis noted that Dairy Mart was not requesting common victualer licenses at that time for stores at 312 Samoset Ave., 139 West Elm Ave., 263 Beale St., and 300 Washington St.

However, Atty. Robert Fleming, who represented Dairy Mart said that such a request will be made in a matter of weeks.

Fleming said that Dairy Mart has agreed to enclose a dumpster at the Beale St. store.

He also said that Dairy Mart would like to install a fence at that location but is having a problem obtaining the landlord's consent.

The West Elm Ave. store will have a local manager, said Fleming, and a fence will be erected in the rear at the request of Ward Councillor Stephen McGrath.

Concessions have also been made regarding the Samoset Ave. store, said Fleming.

Ward Councillor Michael Cheney said that there is still a problem with large Dairy Mart delivery trucks and with cleanliness at the store.

"A tractor trailer going up Samoset Ave. and turning around is absolutely ridiculous," said Cheney, who pointed out that there are a number of children in that area.

Fleming said the biggest part of the problem will be alleviated when the store moves to 200 Sea St. in the future.

The loading platform will be on one side of the building, off the street, said Fleming.

Police Chief Francis Finn suggested that Dairy Mart demonstrate to area residents, the ward councillor and board members how the tractor trailer would make deliveries at the new location.

Talks with Dairy Mart and its neighbors continued after the meeting.

High Sgt. Exam Scores Defended By Chief

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Police Chief Francis Finn defended the high scores achieved by 16 Quincy patrolmen in the sergeant's exam given last October and said he would "stake his professional reputation on them."

Finn made the remarks in response to questions by Boston television Channels 4 and 7 Tuesday regarding the above 90 scores.

"I know there is nothing wrong with the scores," said Finn, "I have complete faith in them."

"The marks were conspicuously high. We had more above 90 scores than the rest of the state put together."

Finn said he was asked whether Civil Service, which administered the test, has contacted him about the scores and he answered that it has not.

He was not surprised at the high scores.

"Historically, Quincy has always done well.

"The patrolmen study very hard, they form study groups. They are formally educated.

"They've done excellent police work. They're the kind of people who get scores like those marks.

"The incentive for competition is fierce. There is an excellent pay scale between ranks."

The marks, which were sent out last month, will be forwarded to the mayor who will select the top scorers when there is a need to fill a position in the police department.

Contractor Promises Cooperation On Early Collection Problem

The Contractor who collects Quincy trash has promised to help solve the problem of early morning pickups that bother residents.

At a meeting of the City Council, Public Works Committee Monday night, Joseph Verrochi, owner of Browning, Ferris Inc., agreed to work with the Committee in solving the early morning trash pickup problems.

"I will work with you people in any way," he said.

Under the firm's Browning, Ferris Inc. has a contract with the city. Trash pickups are not supposed to begin until 7 a.m.

However, Councillor Stephen McGrath said that complaints have been received from residents, especially in the Wollaston area that their trash is being picked up before 7 a.m. and disturbs their sleep.

Verrochi gave two reasons for the early pickups. One, he said, is the safety factor of getting the trucks off the road by the time children are getting out of school in the early afternoon. The other is that they have been doing it the same way for 25 years.

Browning, Ferris Inc.'s three-year contract with the city was renewed last January 1. This is the first year where the contract stipulates no pickups before 7 a.m.

Verrochi suggested moving to non-residential areas for pickups before 7 a.m.

However, Councillor Richard Koch Jr. said he feels moving from one area to another won't solve the problem. He said he lives in a business-zoned area and can hear the trash being picked up early in the morning around 6 a.m. The noise disturbs his sleeping infant, Koch said.

Verrochi reiterated his willingness to work with the Public Works Committee to solve the problem.

Rodrigues Not Among Them Dozen Names Submitted For QHA Monitor

By HENRY BOSWORTH

Approximately a dozen names have been submitted to a federal judge as nominees for the role of monitor in the Quincy Housing Authority's new agreement to provide more public housing to minorities, The Quincy Sun has learned.

Alex Rodrigues, the fiery chairman of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination who has sought monitoring rights in the matter, is not among them. The Sun also learned. Neither is the MCAD itself.

Among the names submitted are:

Dr. Clayton Johnson, president of Quincy Junior College, the first black to hold that post.

Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church, and an activist in finding shelter for the homeless.

Rev. Alicia Corea, co-pastor of Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of Pupil Personnel Services in the Quincy public schools.

Atty. Lawrence O'Donnell, a member of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers.

William Kelley, president of Bank of New England-Hancock.

Charles A. Pearce,

president of Quincy Savings Bank.

These names were believed submitted by the QHA.

Several other names were submitted by the Greater Boston Legal Services, including college professors, none of them believed to be from Quincy, but still unidentified at press-time.

The Sun also learned that the consent decree which stipulates that 25 per cent of families selected to live in Quincy public housing be minorities, also applies to federal subsidized housing and not just state subsidized facilities.

The agreement is for four years after which a review will be made and the ratio percentage could be increased or decreased.

The percentage would be worked out on a national scale and not on Metropolitan area population figures.

The consent decree was signed not only by the QHA and the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights, but also by the state Executive Office of Communities & Development (EOCD) and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and two individual plaintiffs.

It has been awaiting the signature of U.S. Judge David Nelson, who will also appoint the monitor.

The appointment of an independent monitor was agreed to by the QHA and the Greater Boston Legal Services.

The latter represented the South Shore Coalition and two plaintiffs, Doris Gardner and Rosa Herrera in a complaint charging the QHA discriminated against them by using local preference in rentals.

The State law which requires local preference is still in effect.

Rodrigues, who triggered a storm of protest in Quincy with his remarks and plans to press the MCAD's own complaint against the QHA after agreement was reached

City Council Raps Rodriguez, Backs QHA

By JANE MORRISSEY

Alex Rodriguez, chairman of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination came under sharp criticism at the City Council meeting Monday night.

"He (Rodriguez) thinks he's appointed; he's appointed," said Councillor Richard Koch, Jr.

Criticism by the Council was prompted by Rodriguez's remarks and announcement he will continue with a complaint charging the QHA with racial discrimination despite the fact the QHA and South Shore Coalition for Human Rights had settled basically the same complaint.

The consent decree stipulates that 25 percent of Quincy public housing vacancies go to minorities for the next four years.

A resolve to support the QHA was introduced by Councillor Stephen McGrath and passed unanimously by the Council at the meeting Monday.

The Council resolved to support the QHA in litigation with the MCAD.

McGrath said Rodriguez has made "totally outrageous comments. He says he'll give the Quincy Housing Authority a chance to prove its innocence. I'd like to point out to Mr. Rodriguez that under the U.S. Constitution, people do not have to prove their innocence; they are innocent until proven guilty."

"In my opinion, Alex Rodriguez has become extremely ineffective. The perception is that Quincy has had many problems when in fact we have had few," said Councillor Michael Cheney.

"He fails to recognize the significant gain for affirmative action that the one out of four ruling gives him, even when members of his own coalition disagree with him."

"Perhaps Governor Dukakis should decide whether Rodriguez is effective at affirmative action."

Cheney said the real problem of housing discrimination is the tremendous demand for public housing.

"The Governor," Council President James Sheets said, "should appoint someone who recognizes where the national civil rights movement is at this time and who has its sensitivity."

"Obviously, Rodriguez doesn't. He's really, in my opinion, endangering and destroying that which he is attempting to accomplish, and someone has to save him from himself."

Mysterious Rusty Water Cause Sought

Deputy Public Works Commissioner David Colton, reports poor water quality is plaguing the city and surrounding areas and the cause is a mystery.

"The problem we are facing is discolored, dirty, rusty water," said Colton. Colton told the City Council Public Works Committee Monday night.

Colton said that between 50 and 75 homes have complained within the last month. The problem he said is especially prevalent in Houghs Neck, Wollaston and Squantum.

Other areas surrounding Boston having the same problem are West Roxbury, Brookline, Milton and Dorchester.

Colton said the rusty discolored water is a mystery. Usually, he said, the problem occurs on a street where a water main is dead-ended. However, that is not the case here, he said.

Two theories have been postulated, Colton said. One is that the temperature is causing the problem. The second theory is that there is a chemical imbalance in the water.

Colton said that the MDC is conducting tests on the water. The MDC reported that the water coming directly out of Boston is fine.

Therefore, Colton said, something must be happening as the water travels to Quincy.

The water quality has improved on its own in the past week, Colton said. But, he said, the MDC will continue testing and results are expected within a week.

Meanwhile, clean drinking water is being delivered to homes experiencing the rusty water, Colton said.

The short run solution is to flush the water mains where the problems are, Colton said. The intermediate solution is to continue testing.

"If the areas surrounding Boston find a Solution, we will also probably find a solution," said Colton.

The long term solution would be to clean and refine the water pipes, Colton said.

Thomas Koch Candidate For Ward 6 Seat

Thomas P. Koch of 241 Newbury Avenue, North Quincy has announced his candidacy for Ward 6 City Council.

Koch, a lifelong resident of Ward 6, attended Sacred Heart School and graduated from North Quincy High where he was elected senior class president. He attends Quincy Junior College, evening division, majoring in government while conducting a small landscape business.

A former assistant to Congressman Brian Donnelly, he serves on the Environmental Control Commission as well as the Mayor's Water Pollution Task Force in Quincy.

Active in the community service organizations such as the Quincy City Club, the Koch Club and the Montclair Men's Club, Koch also has served as a volunteer in the Quincy Cancer Crusade, the Muscular Dystrophy Telethon and the Quincy

THOMAS P. KOCH

Heart Fund.

Koch is a member of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee, elected in the Presidential Primary in 1984, and was recently elected delegate to the Massachusetts Democratic State Convention to be held in May in Springfield. This will be his fourth consecutive year chosen as a delegate to the convention.

"My roots are in North Quincy. I have grown up here and attended schools here and for the past three years have regularly attended City Council Meetings and realize the issues confronting North Quincy," he said.

"I believe development in North Quincy is important but must not have a negative effect on the quality of our neighborhoods and the life of its residents."

"Having been involved in the Quincy Bay pollution issue, I understand the importance of a cleaner and more enjoyable recreational waterfront for Quincy residents."

"I shall represent and serve the people of all areas in Ward 6 and am concerned with resolving the unsightly littering, congested traffic problems and feel that North Quincy as the gateway or entrance to the city should be enhanced with greater beautification efforts."

Delaney's Pub Extension Approved By Board

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Delaney's Pub in South Quincy was granted permission by the License Board Tuesday to extend the premises to make room for a new kitchen and bathroom.

The pub at 6-8 Franklin Place and 36-37 Franklin St., will extend to a store next door and will increase in size from 2,381 feet to 3,312 feet.

Atty. Robert Fleming, who represented the owners, said that the business was purchased in 1982 and one extension of the premises has already been granted and the pub refurbished.

Fleming said the owners are attempting to draw more of a food trade.

John Schmuck, who lives across the street from the pub, was concerned about dumpsters being picked up at 5 a.m., a cleaning man breaking bottles, and doors being left open, according to Fleming.

As a result, the dumpster will now be picked up no earlier than 6:30 a.m., other arrangements will be made for disposing of the bottles, and spring load devices will close the doors.

Schmuck also told Fleming that cabs picking up patrons late at night honk their horns when they arrive.

The board said it would send a letter to the cab companies which serve the pub asking them to refrain from honking their horns.

Fire Chief Edward Barry praised the owners for doing an "excellent job" and "improving the area."

5.48% Increase

McCauley Submits $80,754,817 Budget

By JANE MORRISSEY

Mayor Francis X. McCauley submitted a Fiscal 1986 Municipal Budget of $80,754,817 to the City Council Monday night, a week earlier than required.

The Finance Committee will begin hearings on the budget, Monday, April 8 and continue Monday, April 22 and Monday, April 29.

The budget was submitted early because "we already have the cherry sheets receipts and charges and I expect the new water sewer charges next week," said the mayor.

The deadline set by the state for submission to the Council is April 8. But to wait until that time, he said, would have made a special Council meeting necessary.

The budget reflects an increase of $4,199,125 or 5.48 percent over the fiscal year 1985 budget.

"$2,486,010 of the increase represents the water and sewer assessment levied on the City of Quincy by the MWRA. These assessments were previously billed to the City on the cherry sheet," said McCauley.

"The Mayor presented the budget in two sections. Section one is comprised of personal services and current expenses in the amount of $80,068,781. Section two is comprised of capital outlay items in the amount of $726,036.

"No provision has been made in this budget for employee payraises. Appropriations for such payraises will be presented to the City Council as the contracts are settled."

"I believe the amount funded for the various city departments will allow our city government to continue to provide an acceptable level of city services in fiscal year 1986."

McCauley highlighted certain areas of the budget at the meeting. Major areas which have increased are: health insurance by 8.73 percent; pensions by 6.03 percent and refuse disposal by 24.88 percent.

Major areas which are decreased in the 1986 budget include: debt service by 1.88 percent; temporary loan interest by 16.67 percent; street lighting by 9.91 percent; and workmen's compensation by 6.67 percent.

The amount budgeted for the police and fire departments in fiscal 1986 represents a decrease of .6 percent from fiscal 1985.

The Mayor noted that three additional firefighters have been added, bringing the total number of firefighters to 180.

He hopes to fill the three vacancies in the fire department and the five vacancies in the police department by May 1986.

Last year, the Mayor and the Council got into what was called "the Battle of the Budget" when councillors did not think McCauley's public safety commitment was adequate.

The budget was not finally in place until a month into the fiscal year.

ONE LONE MEMBER of the audience, Lawrence Shea, listened as Fr. Frederick Barr of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount, spoke at a Planning Board hearing on a zoning ordinance that would severely restrict the location of adult book stores and movies in Quincy.

"If we lose the revenue

The Reagan administration is planning to cancel revenue sharing.

Reader's Forum Winthrop Responds To Editorial On Deer Island Site

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
I am writing to you to comment on your unconscionable editorial on March 7. I'm sorry that your readers must be exposed to such irresponsible, absurd editorial comment. Your statement that choice of where to locate the new sewage treatment plant "is simple," defies logic.

It is understandable that Quincy residents "who have endured the outrage of Nut Island for so long" should not want the plant expanded on Nut Island. Nor do we,
the residents of Winthrop
"who have endured the outrage of Deer Island for even longer" want the plant expanded or sited either here on Deer Island or on Nut Island. I agree with you that Nut Island is an unsuitable choice—so is Deer Island and to "choose" it "simply," is unreasonable and irresponsible on your part.

Are you really saying "its been so bad there, we'll just shift the problem and give it all to Winthrop?" Are you not at all concerned that we might not deserve any more than you do, the fate both you and we have had for years? Where is your objectivity, sense of fairness and human decency?

All the points you mention concerning how you've suffered—i.e. foul odors, closed beaches, water pollution, construction impacts, noise, and mess, etc.—have also plagued Winthrop. Don't you want to solve the problem and not just shirk your share of responsibility to solve it? Do you simply want to give us more problems we've shared with you (albeit unfairly) for years?

How can you (as someone who is so concerned about your citizens' lives and welfare) suggest that Long Island should remain "just what it is—the site of Boston's Chronic Disease
Hospital and a harbor recreation area of great potential," and ignore the people of Winthrop and their lives and welfare. I would think that you, from Quincy, should be sick and tired of hearing about "recreation potential" at the cost of daily suffering by neighbors.

I applaud your concern and your judgement to editorialize on Page one to get the people out to the hearing to be heard. I can understand (and incidentally support) your position that Nut Island should not house any sewage treatment facilities. However, I feel you should rethink your position on siting the plant on Deer Island. With the exception of relocating residents, all the other impacts you fear and or have suffered, will fall upon Winthrop, if Deer Island is the choice. We don't deserve it any more than you do—then, now or in the future.

Long Island is the most logical site of the three choices in the current Sdeis.
It will impact everyone as minimally as is possible.
Beyond the Sdeis, which I feel is biased, flawed report, satellite treatment and other imaginative solutions exist.
Please reconsider your position—your readers deserve a responsible editorial—not one which closes with an incorrect, erroneous comparison of prisoners vs. Houghs Neck residents. Be fair—that's all we're asking. Are you asking for more?

Terry Vazuez
Nahant Avenue
Winthrop

(Editor's note: All we are asking for is that the treatment facility not be put on Nut Island or Long Island.
We sympathize with Winthrop about the facility being built on Deer Island because Winthrop residents have certainly put up with a lot of pollution grief down through the years. But of these three sites, we still think Deer Island is the more logical choice.)

Perhaps, in the long run, a better plant might be the better solution. But right now, Deer Island is a better choice than Long Island or Nut Island.)

Just Who Is Alex Rodrigues?

You can't be sure of too many things these days but there is one:

Alex Rodrigues will never be elected mayor of Quincy.

RODRIGUES

The MCAD chairman's plans to press a complaint charging the Quincy Housing Authority with discrimination against minorities seeking public housing and his tough words still have city officials and residents seething.

His announcement came the very day after disclosure that the QHA and the South Shore Coalition For Human Rights had agreed in a consent decree that 25 per cent (one out of every four) of both state and federal subsidized public housing rentals, will now go to minorities.

It looked like a peaceful and meaningful conclusion to a nagging problem that day. And then, the next day — pow! — there's going to be another fight.

Or, so it appears.

Rodrigues' announcement—and his choice of words—seemed to yank the rug out from under all the progress that appeared to have been made as city officials countered with some strong words themselves.

The consent decree signed by the South Shore Coalition and the QHA (also HUD and the state ECOD) is a major step forward for the present and future.

Rodrigues' tough-worded announcement he intended to press on with MCAD's own complaint that had been sitting on the back burner while the South Shore Coalition complaint was on-going, seems to focus on the past. The MCAD's complaint is based on the same allegations as the complaint settled with the South Shore Coalition.

Rodrigues' remarks touched off an angry response from the community—city officials and residents.

Rodrigues said the MCAD needed some control over the tenant selection process to make sure that discrimination is not repeated. This was read by some as meaning he didn't trust Quincy or the QHA.

And, by some, that he's not about to trust an appointed monitor to be selected by U.S. Judge David Nelson from among names submitted by the two sides.

Rodrigues later said—his tone noticeably tuned down—that he offered to drop the complaint in turn for the right to monitor the QHA's action but it was rejected. Other sources, however, have told The Quincy Sun that no such offer was made and if it were, it wouldn't make any sense. They note that neither Rodrigues nor the MCAD could be an impartial, objective monitor since the MCAD seeks and processes complaints—including the one it says it will proceed on.

CHENEY

The MCAD complaint will be heard by the MCAD itself prompting City Councillor Michael Cheney who has a lot of public housing in his ward, to label the procedure "a kangaroo court."

"We want a finding of guilt," Rodrigues thumped.

"The commission can then put forward a written remedy that would exercise a great deal of control on how rentals of public housing in Quincy take place.

"We will not be gentle. We will come down with some pretty hard remedies."

He also said Quincy has a recent "volatile history of race relations," citing the attack on a group of black and white sailors in Houghs Neck, the Aunt Jemima incident and problems at Snug Harbor.

He neglected to add, however, that Quincy and the QHA had moved swiftly to address those problems or that those responsible for the attack on the sailors were arrested and convicted.

"I don't want any games played on this process," he continued. "The Quincy Housing Authority had a long time to play this out. They haven't seemed too anxious to do so until their feet were put in the fire."

McCAULEY

Well, if the QHA's feet were in the fire, Rodrigues' feet were in his mouth as far as Quincy reaction was concerned.

Mayor Francis McCauley, never one to act or speak hastily, quickly called Rodrigues' remarks
"inflammatory and not worthy of a person holding such a sensitive position." He filed a letter of complaint to Gov. Michael Dukakis who appointed Rodrigues in 1982.

Councillor Joanne Condon, candidate for mayor, responded even more strongly. Rodrigues, she said, had adopted the role of "dictator," was "irresponsible" in his statements about the number of racial incidents in Quincy and that his actions were "developing hostilities" instead of "good relations."

She called on Governor Dukakis to take action against him.

McGRATH

Councillor Stephen McGrath, an attorney, said Rodrigues was "advocating confrontation" and "eliminating discussion and communication."

The average resident's dander was up, too.

QHA Chairman Carmine
D'Olimpio, Executive Director John (Jake) Comer, Counsel Paul A.M. Hunt and other board members had worked hard along with the Greater Boston Legal Services to come up with an agreement to resolve the problem of housing for minorities.

Everything was looking up one day—as the consent decree agreement between the QHA and the South Shore Coalition For Human Rights was disclosed. But, down the next, as Rodrigues took his tough stand.

Who, some wanted to know, was Alex Rodrigues?
They didn't elect him. Who appointed him? Who gave him all that power?

So, Michael Dukakis appointed him? Why does the governor allow him to sound off like he did. Why doesn't the governor, as Councillor Condon urged, call him in and do something?

Some of them think he is flexing too much muscle for a political appointee, for someone not elected by the people.

Some think what he really is after is to monitor private housing and wants to use the Quincy case as a stepping stone.

Some think he wants a pound of flesh out of Quincy or a gallon of blood. They think he has fanned new flames of mistrust and someone—the governor—should take the fan away from him.

Rodrigues may be a civil rights fighter. But a diplomat he is not.

Being a bulldozer in New York, where he came from, may be the way to get things done there. But it's not the way in Quincy, and it shouldn't be in Massachusetts.

If Rodrigues were Secretary of State we would probably already have had World War III.

It would be sad if his words and actions undo all the good progress made by negotiation that brought about the consent decree calling for 25 per cent of Quincy public housing rentals to go to minorities.

The key to that progress was negotiation.
Not confrontation. Not tough words. Not muscle flexing. Not mistrust. Not anger.

The QHA, the Greater Boston Legal Services, the South Shore Coalition For Human Rights, the ECOD, HUD and U.S. Judge David Nelson have showed they are ready to work for progress in housing for minorities.

Is Rodrigues ready?

Hopefully it isn't too late for Quincy to send out for a peace pipe and for Rodrigues to pick up a pound of peace pipe tobacco.

Council Approves McCauley Petition On GD Payment Delay

By JANE MORRISSEY
The City Council Monday night adopted a home rule petition submitted by Mayor Francis X. McCauley asking the legislature to allow the city to delay payment of a $2.5 million in Quincy's tax rebate debt to General Dynamics.

Councillor Joanne Condon opposed the petition which passed 7-1.

Under the Mayor's petition, the city would pay off the $2.5 million debt to General Dynamics over a period of 10 years.

In the 11th year, the city would pay a final $2.5 million to offset an overlay budget deficit.

"We will do everything in our power to back you up," Rep. Thomas Brownell told the Finance Committee earlier.

Brownell along with Sen. Paul Harold and Rep. Michael Morrissey were invited to the meeting to assess Quincy's chances of receiving any state aid to help pay off General Dynamics.

Councillor Condon said that now is time to ask the state for money because of the surplus.

Morrissey agreed but said, "We want you to know that there isn't a lot of money available and nobody talking about it, but, rather, some money and a lot of people talking about it."

Harold said that the legislature has set a new policy of helping cities and towns that have gotten themselves into trouble with judgements.

There have been at least five cases, he said, where the state has bailed out Everett, Taunton, Medford, Revere and Lynn.

In Lynn, Harold said, the state took control of the city's assessors and treasury.

Councillor Condon expressed the desire to avoid any such sort of involvement in Quincy by the state.

Raytheon Plans New Tube Plant In South Quincy

Charles F. Adams, Jr., president of the Raytheon Manufacturing Co., announced plans for the immediate construction of a new tube plant in South Quincy employing 1,300 people with an annual payroll of about $4 million.

Adams said the new plant, a one-story studded modern structure, would be located on the west side of Centre St. near the intersection of Penn St. with 14 acres in Quincy and two acres in Braintree.

Raytheon, one of the fastest growing companies in the electronics industry, was the first large firm to select Quincy as a site for expansion since Procter and Gamble settled in Quincy Point before the war.

"The city is very fortunate in having such a reliable organization coming here to build," said George A. Daley Jr., president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce.

$300 RAISE VOTED

The City Council brushed aside the advice of City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. that such an act would be "unfair, unequitable and not in the public interest" and voted city employees a pay raise of $300, effective April 1.

The action came after the Council's Finance Committee voted 5-2 to reject Deegan's request for a $6,000 appropriation to finance a job evaluation program and his recommendation for a temporary wage hike for employees.

It was calculated that the $300 raise would impact the tax rate by 90 cents per thousand.

Overwhelming Opposition

Papa Gino's Withdraws Beer, Wine Request

By NANCY
McLAUGHLIN

You won't be able to have a glass of wine or beer with your meal at the new Papa Gino's Restaurant at 1 Beale St., Wollaston.

The newly-opened restaurant withdrew without prejudice Tuesday its request for a common victualer wine and malt license after overwhelming opposition by city councilors and area residents.

Patricia Cleary, real estate coordinator for Papa Gino's, told the Quincy License Board last week that the majority of its restaurants have beer and wine licenses.

She also said that Papa Gino's does not serve beer and wine unless food is also ordered.

Councillor Stephen McGrath, in whose ward the restaurant is located, led off the opposition at this week's board meeting by saying another beer and wine license is not needed in Wollaston Center.

McGrath said that Papa Gino's attracts a young element and a beer and wine license is not appropriate.

Councillor At-Large Patricia Toland said she has received many calls from people opposed to another such license in a "neighborhood shopping center."

Ward 3 councillor John Lydon, whose Lydon-Russell Funeral Home is across the street from the restaurant at 644 Hancock St., said Papa Gino's can continue to be successful without the beer and wine license.

Councillor Joanne Condon, from Ward 6, agreed that the license was inappropriate for the location.

Wollaston Theatre owner Arthur Chandler said that he was concerned about increased problems with parking and youths.

Area residents Helen Sullivan, Lowell Hall and Barbara Howard said they would not patronize the restaurant if it served beer and wine.

Dennis Kennedy urged the board to keep the area residential and said that parking is not suitable.

McGrath and Toland gave the board petitions signed by those opposed to the request.

No one spoke in favor of the request.

The board voted to allow Papa Gino's to withdraw the request without prejudice.

Statement

From: Quincy Housing Authority Board Of Commissioners

To: The People Of Quincy

The importance of current events necessitates our statement of position to be printed unedited as follows:

Because the United States District Court has not yet approved the proposed Consent Decree agreed to by the parties to the case of Gardner v. The Quincy Housing Authority, the Authority, on the advice of counsel, believed it inappropriate to comment upon the proposed terms of the settlement. Nevertheless, because of the widely reported disclosures concerning the proposed settlement made by other parties to the case, and because of certain inaccuracies contained in those reports, the Authority has issued this statement.

The Quincy Housing Authority has resolved a lawsuit filed against it in December of 1982 which raised a federal challenge to a Massachusetts state statute. That statute, which has been in effect since public housing began in Massachusetts after World War II, states that when the number of individuals applying for housing at a local housing authority exceeds the number of available dwelling units, "preference shall be given to the inhabitants of the city or town" in which the housing units are located. (emphasis added) The Quincy Housing Authority had historically followed the clear language of the statute. As a result, the Authority was named by the plaintiffs as a defendant in this test case challenging the residential preference statute.

After suit was initiated, the Massachusetts Executive Office of Communities and Development ("EOCD") announced that it intended to promulgate regulations which would affect the application of the residential preference statute. Such regulations would resolve whatever conflict might exist between the residential preference statute and the plaintiffs' interpretation of federal law. Because the regulations have not yet been issued, however, the Quincy Housing Authority attempted, successfully, to resolve this case through settlement negotiations.

The proposed Consent Decree agreed to by the parties contains, among other things, affirmative action goals and timetables.

In that regard, the Decree addresses the same issues as EOCD's proposed regulations eventually will for other local housing authorities — it establishes an approved procedure by which the Authority can apply the residential preference statute while achieving its affirmative action goals. The Consent Decree, by its express terms, contains no findings against the Authority, nor is it an admission of any wrongdoing whatsoever on the part of the Authority or any of its Commissioners or employees.

The Quincy Housing Authority remains, as it has always been, committed to providing equal opportunity for all eligible individuals to obtain housing in Quincy without regard to race, color, religion, sex or national origin. Shortage of housing afflicts the City of Quincy as it does the entire state, including its housing authorities. The Quincy Housing Authority has, in fact, for the first time reached a 100 percent occupancy rate. As vacancies do occur in the Authority's housing units, however, the Authority will be attempting to reach the affirmative action goals contained in the Plan.

The Authority is proud of the affirmative action plan which it has formulated in order to resolve this case. It is also hopeful that with the implementation of the proposed EOCD regulations, other housing authorities will no longer face the threat of litigation concerning the state's residential preference statute.

Carmine D'Olimpio Chairman

Holy Week Services At Bethany Church

Maundy Thursday, Good Friday, and Easter Sunday services will be held in Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Centre.

A Maundy Thursday service will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Bethany sanctuary.

The first portion of the worship will be the observance of Holy Communion, since Maundy Thursday commemorates Christ's institution of the Last Supper in the Upper Room.

Senior minister, the Rev. J. William Arnold, will give the meditation on "The Washing" based on the account of Jesus' washing the disciples' feet as recorded in the Gospel of John 13:1-15.

The associate minister, the Rev. Joel F. Huntington, will conduct the liturgy. Deacons and deaconesses serving the Communion will be Edith Arslan, Robert Lockwood, Kinya Mikami, James Ross and Alfred Toy.

Peter E. Krasinski, at the organ console, will direct the chancel choir in two anthems, "Behold, the Lamb of God," and "O Sacred Head Now Wounded", both composed by J. S. Bach.

The second portion of the service will be the fourth century office of Tenebrae, which portrays the dramatic events leading to Christ's arrest, trial and crucifixion, as recounted in selected scripture passages. The readers represent the disciples. Tenebrae readers will be Helene Crofts, Wendell Cosgrove, Corinne Mikami, Kenneth Rickson, Olive Hodgkins, Russell Hodgkins, Grace Toy and Gerard Capobianchi.

As each reading is completed, a candle is extinguished until everything is in complete darkness, symbolizing the flight of all Christ's followers who deserted and left him alone in his hour of trial. The service closes in silence.

On Good Friday, April 5, there will be a 45-minute devotional service in remembrance of the death and burial of Jesus. The service will be held in the Chapel from 12:15 to 1 p.m. The cross will be draped in black and a crown of thorns plant will be at the altar.

Rev. Huntington will give the meditation "Death in God", and Rev. Arnold will serve as the liturgist, leading the litany "Confession at the Tomb". Soloist Jean E. Bettinson will sing from the Swedish Litany, "Jesus, in Thy Dying Woes".

Good Friday evening at 8 p.m. Handel's "Messiah" will be performed in the Bethany sanctuary, with Harold W. McSwain, Jr. conducting. There will be an 80-voice Chorus composed of members from eight local church choirs, a 24-piece orchestra, five soloists, with Peter Sykes at the harpsichord, and Peter Krasinski at the organ. The performance is open to the public with a requested donation at the door.

The resurrection of Jesus Christ will be celebrated Easter Sunday at 10 a.m. in the Bethany sanctuary. The service will open with a fanfare, "Easter Alleluia", with choir, organ, trumpet and timpani.

The chancel choir will sing two anthems, "Ye Choirs of New Jerusalem", composed by C. V. Stanford, and Bach's "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring". The children's choir will sing, "Carol of the Easter Chimes", by Mary E. Caldwell.

Pastor Arnold will preach on "Newness of Life", based on scriptural texts from Luke 24:1-11 and Romans 6:3-11. Clara E. MacLean will be the lay scripture reader. Rev. Huntington will serve as liturgist for the Easter Prayer, "An Act of Joyful Adoration".

Some 140 lilies will fill the chancel as symbols of Christ resurrection and as memorials. The lilies will be given to persons confined at home, in hospitals, or in nursing homes, and will be distributed by members of the congregation.

The morning will begin with an Easter breakfast at 8:30 a.m. in Bethany's social hall for church members, friends and guests. The cost is to cover expenses, $2 for adults and youth, and $1 for children.

The breakfast is sponsored by the Christian Education Committee, under the leadership of Gerard Capobianchi. Ken Fernald will be the chief chef, 20 young people and the youth advisors will serve.

Last year, over 200 persons came to the breakfast, sitting down to eat at the same time as a church "family". Church School classes will not be held on Easter so that children can attend the breakfast and worship with their families.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Easter Sunday is regarded by millions around the world as the world's most important religious holiday. Easter is a time for rejoicing. One of the most joyous holidays of the year, it symbolizes the reawakening of life that is universally associated with springtime... the season of robin's singing... meadows turn green... life renewed. It is the happy time of people's faith.

Easter commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ but, surprisingly the theme of Easter is older than Christianity itself. Among the most ancient civilizations, rituals of rebirth were very common.

Sunrise services date back to the medieval custom of praying while the sun rises. The present-day parades that mark the day had their beginning in the original Easter walk of Europe, when devout men and women congregated and walked in an orderly manner reciting prayers and singing. And one of the most charming of customs is the Easter egg hunt for children—renewing the custom far older than Christianity. In pre-Christian time, the egg was the symbol of spring. In the Christian era the egg became a symbol of the rock tomb of which Christ emerged in His resurrection. Thus, Easter is a symbol of Christianity, just as it is a symbol of the faith and hope of mankind.

Easter combines a rich mixture of laughter and solemnity. Both are good—both are needed by the soul of man.

Maundy Thursday Service At Squantum Church

A Maundy Thursday service with the Lord's Supper will take place tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the First Church of Squantum, 176 Bellevue Rd.

Members of the church choir will join with members of the church choirs of seven other churches to perform Handel's "Messiah" (Part II) Good Friday, April 5, at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center.

On Easter morning, April 7, members of the church will gather on the shore at Mosswetset Hummock for an Easter Sunrise Service at 7:30 a.m.

Afterward, worshippers will return to the church for a light breakfast of muffins and eggs. Visitors from other churches without such a service are invited to attend.

If such persons are in a group of more than a few, however, they should call Dr. Lannevin earlier in the week at 328-7675 to tell him that they are coming.

The church wants to be sure to have enough eggs and muffins for everyone.

The traditional Easter morning service will be held Easter morning at 10:30 a.m. All four choirs will sing. After gathering earlier in the morning for a Palm Sunday breakfast served by the young people, members and friends of the First Church of Squantum went upstairs into the sanctuary for a joyous Palm Sunday service.

The service was complete with palms and special music by four choirs.

The Junior Choir, Youth Choir and Chancel Choir joined together for the introit, "Prepare Ye" by Stephen Schwartz, with Robert Dixie and Susan Scott singing solos.

The Cherub Choir, for children seven years old and under, made its singing debut with "Alleluia." Members include Jaimie Galvin, Molly Randall, Gwen Williamson, Cheryl Potter, Kristin Fleur and Kate Johnson. Susan Scott and Mindi Hurd are the directors.

The Junior Choir and the Youth Choir combined to sing "Blessed Is He" by Hal Hopsop. Blyth Bumpus played the wood blocks.

The Junior Choir, Youth Choir and Chancel Choir joined together to sing "Hosanna! Blessed Is He

That Comes" by Christian Gregor, as arranged by Mueller. Mary Ruth Scott directs all three choirs.

Church pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on the topic, "If Christ Came Here," taking his text from the Gospel of Matthew: "And when He entered Jerusalem, all the city was stirred, saying, 'Who is this?' (21:10).

Hymns for the morning were "All Glory, Laud and Honor," "O Thou Who Through This Holy Week," "Ride on, Ride on in Majesty" and "Now, O Lord, Go with Us." Violinist James Sumner accompanied the congregation, along with the organ, on the first hymn. Albert, Michael and Brian Franklin distributed palms to the worshippers.

Greeters for the morning were Janet and James Sumner. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Stewart Scott. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Pat Sorensen and Barbara Walter.

Church members gathered that evening to go down the street to see a Passion Play sponsored by Star of the Sea Roman Catholic Church.

At Congregation Adas Shalom, 435 Adams St., Co-Presidents Abe Greenspan and Leo Lofchic announced that there will be a Seder supper on Saturday evening, April 6 at the Synagogue, Rabbi Allan Press and Cantor David Grossman will officiate.

Services on the closing days of the Passover holidays will be April 12 and 13 at 9 a.m. Yizkor (memorial) prayers will be recited on the 13th about 10:30 a.m.

Abraham Greenspan is chairman of the religious committee.

Passover comes in the early spring. Great preparations are made in the home; every room from the attic to the basement receives a thorough cleaning. Dishes that are used daily are stored and special dishes used only for Passover are substituted for the holiday season. It was a custom to buy new clothes for the Passover holidays.

Orthodox and Conservative members of the Jewish faith observe Passover for eight days, while most all of the Reform faith celebrate for seven days. In the State of Israel nearly all the Jews celebrate only seven days.

The Seder, which means "Order," is a joyous family dinner held at home. It is customary to invite outsiders if they have no families. Some congregations have a community Seder on the second night of Passover at their synagogues.

The Haggadah telling the story of Passover is read during the Seder services.

The whole service is based upon one single Biblical injunction with the observance of Passover; "and thou shall tell thy son on that day saying it is because of that which the Lord did for me when I came forth out of Egypt" Exodus 13:8.

Some of the Seder symbols are three matzos in memory of the unleavened bread which the Jews ate when they were freed from Egypt.

"Bitter herbs" for the bitterness of slavery.

"The Shank of a Lamb," as a reminder of the Paschal Lamb.

"A roasted egg," symbolic of a free will festival offering which accompanied the sacrifice of the Paschal lamb in the Temple.

"Haroseth" a food made of apples, nuts, cinnamon and wine mixed together to look like the mortar which the Hebrew slaves used in their servitude.

"Parsley or watercress" suggestive of the customary hors d'oeuvres. It is now used as a token of gratitude to God for the products of the earth.

"A cup of wine" is set at the place setting of each member at the Seder. Each participant in the service is expected to partake in four cups of wine. This number was selected as a symbol of the four divine promises of redemption made to Israel in Exodus 6:6-7.

An empty wine cup is placed in the center of the table. It is known as Elijah's cup and is filled as part of the Seder ceremony. It symbolizes the hope of man for the quick coming of God's kingdom upon the earth.

Early in the Seder service, one of the three Matzos on the ceremonial platter is divided in half. Half is put away to be eaten at the close of the meal and is called Aphikoman, which is derived from the Greek word, meaning aftermeal or dessert.

The origin of this custom may be traced to the Paschal lamb which was eaten on Passover night. When sacrifices had ceased, a piece of matzo was substituted.

The Aphikoman, hidden early during the Seder service is left until the end of the meal in order that the children may be kept alert during the entire service. In this connection, a sort of game of paying forfeits originated. The head of the family takes no note of the spitting away of the Aphikoman by the children, who do not surrender it until the master of the house is forced to redeem it by some gift in order that the meal may be concluded.

The Seder starts with the leader chanting or reading the Kiddush (Sanctification) by taking in his hand the cup of wine. All the celebrants drink the first cup of wine and then wash their hands.

Everyone joins in eating of the greens and recite the following: "Blessed art thou O Lord our God, King of the Universe Creator of the fruit of the earth."

The leader then breaks the middle matzo, leaving one half on the Seder dish; the other half, the Aphikoman is hidden. Wine is poured again in the cups or glasses and the youngest, male or female, at the table asks the following "Four Questions" from the leader.

Why is this night different from all other nights?

On all other nights we eat leavened or unleavened bread. Why on this night, do we eat only unleavened bread?

On all other nights, we eat all kinds of herbs. Why on this night do we eat especially bitter herbs?

On all other nights, we do not dip herbs in any condiment. Why on this night do we dip them in salt water or haroseth?

On all other nights, we may sit at the table either erect or leaning; on this night we recline.

The leader replies:

We eat only matzo tonight and for eight days, because when Pharaoh let our forefathers go from Egypt, they were forced to flee in great haste. They had no time to bake bread, because they could not wait for the yeast to rise. With the hot sun beating down on the dough, they baked into a flat unleavened bread, called Matzo.

We eat bitter herbs because our fathers were slaves in Egypt and their lives were made bitter.

We dip the herbs twice into salt water because it reminds us of the green that comes life in the springtime. We dip the herbs into the sweet haroseth as a sign of hope; our fathers were able to withstand the bitterness of slavery because it was sweetened by the hope of freedom.

Why do we recline at the table? Because reclining at the table was a sign of a free man in olden times; and since our fathers were freed on this night, we recline at the table.

Now the leader joined by the celebrants answers:

We celebrate tonight because we were Pharaoh's bondsmen in Egypt and the Lord our God delivered us with a mighty hand. Had not the Holy One redeemed our fathers from Egypt we, our children and our children's children would have remained slaves. Therefore even if we were all wise men, it would still be our duty from year to year, to tell the story of deliverance from Egypt.

In truth, the more we dwell upon the story of the Exodus, the deeper will be our understanding of what freedom means and the stronger our determination to win it for ourselves and for others.

Thus the story of the Exodus was told and retold from generation to generation; thus fathers would ever tell it to their children that they in turn might tell it to their children. But children are not all alike, as our Rabbis discovered many centuries ago. There are some who are very curious and ask lots of questions; there are others who are just as curious but who may be shy; in all the Rabbis said there are four kinds of children, each one quite different from the rest: each needs to be told the story of the Exodus in a different way.

Before dinner is served, we recite two blessings. The leader and all guests hold up a small piece of Matzo and say, "Praised art thou O Lord our God, Ruling Spirit of the universe who brings forth bread from the earth;" followed by, "Praised art Thou O Lord our God, Ruling Spirit of the universe who has made us holy through his commandments and ordered us to eat Matzo."

Then we take two small pieces of Matzo, with charoseth - which reminds us of the mortar from which our ancestors made bricks in Egypt - and with a small slice of bitter herb which represents their bitter lives, we make a sandwich.

Again, before eating, we recite the proper blessing: "Praised art Thou, O Lord our God, Ruling Spirit of the Universe, who has made us holy through His Commandments and ordered us to eat bitter herbs."

The afikomen is then returned and eaten. Dinner is served. It includes fish, soup, chicken or turkey, meat, noodle or potato pudding, vegetables, etc.

After completing dinner, we again give thanks to God: "Praised art thou O Lord our God Ruling Spirit of the universe who in His goodness provides food for the whole world with kindness, with mercy and love."

We then pour the third cup of wine and we raise it and say together: "Praised art thou O Lord our God, Ruling Spirit of the universe who creates the fruit of the vine."

The door is then opened to welcome Elijah the Prophet. His cup of wine is on the table and we all sing the famous "Ay-lee-La lu Ha-Na-Vec."

The leader concludes the Seder service as follows: Leader: "So we come to the close of our Seder."

We all reply: "Once again we have been reminded of the slavery our fathers suffered in Egypt and the freedom they finally achieved."

Leader: "We have expressed our gratitude to God, who inspired the Jewish people to seek freedom in ancient times and the American people to establish this free nation in modern times."

We reply: "We have prayed that we who benefit each day from freedom earned for us by others, may help to bring freedom to those who are still enslaved."

The leader concludes with the following prayer: "For more generations Jews everywhere have concluded their Seder ceremonies with the hope that their ancient homeland might be rebuilt. We have been privileged to see that hope realized through the state of Israel."

"In reciting the words of tradition, we pray that Israel be strengthened and that all of our fellow men-whomish or need to settle there may be able to do so. "May the coming year witness the further strengthening of Israel. May it bring to many of us an opportunity to visit the holy city of Jerusalem."

Probably the most beloved of all Jewish festivals is Passover. It is rich in songs, poems and stories.

"We service what we sell"

Sylvia Head Coach Good Veteran Nucleus At Quincy

By TOM SULLIVAN
Bob Sylvia has taken over as Quincy's baseball coach after five years as assistant, and he has inherited several seasoned players from Bud Mosher's last team.

"We have some experienced players who give us a good nucleus," said Sylvia, who has been the Presidents' hockey coach for 19 years. "This is a learning experience for me. I've never coached baseball on the varsity level and I'm getting my feet wet. But I love the game and am looking forward to it."

"I am not the only new coach in the Suburban League and I think at least four other teams have new coaches."

"I have three objectives - to have a winning season, to win the league championship and to go as far as we can in the Eastern Mass. Tournament."

Veteran Joe Conti heads the pitching staff and he could be one of the best in the league. The strong right-hander had a good season last spring and had an outstanding year for Wollaston Legion's Zone 6 champions.

Behind him are Larry Taglieri, another veteran; southpaws Andy Palmariello and sophomores Tommy Logan and T. J. Steen; Rich Petinelli, Tom Elsmore and Ed Gore.

"Conti is an established pitcher and I expect him to do well, but the others right now are question marks," said Sylvia. "I'll be able to tell a lot more after a few outside scrimmages." (Sylvia was pleased with Quincy's showing against North Quincy in a scrimmage last week.)

The new coach has two fine catchers in Joe Ciardi, last year's receiver who starred with Quincy Legion, and sophomore Steve Austin, who played varsity ball as a freshman and looked good for Wollaston Legion.

Logan will play first base when not pitching and when he pitches veteran Gerry Frazier will take over.

Mike Draicchio, who played with Quincy Legion, will play second. Conti will be at shortstop when not pitching and veteran Pat Calabro, who played with Quincy Legion, is the third baseman.

Sophomore Jay Lespasio will start in left field. Palmariello, Steen and Frazier will share the centerfield duties and Taglieri will be in right field, backed up by a promising freshman, Danny Biagini. "We have received good reports on him from youth baseball," Sylvia said.

Others on the squad are Dave Tocchio, Sean Joyce, Steve Constat, who played with Wollaston Legion, and Bob Hunter.

Quincy opens its season April 11 at home against Weymouth North and will play at Malden on the 15th.

In addition to playing their Suburban League rivals, the Presidents will face Weymouth North and South of the Old Colony League and several Greater Boston League teams.

$150,000 Needed

NQHS Gym To Get New Wooden Floor

Fears of North Quincy's basketball players and other athletes of sustaining further painful injuries as a result of the gymnasium floor may be at an end.

The school committee last week approved a new wooden floor along with a new roof for the school.

Athletes have complained of painful knee and ankle injuries because of the rubber-plastic floor, it is too hard.

Coaches, players and school committee members have said the floor is troublesome, having bubbled and warped in places and its surface is so stubby that players diving for loose balls risk torn palms.

The committee voted to authorize Supt. John Osterman to accept bids for a new maple floor, but no one knows where the committee will find the $150,000 needed to pay for it. The $150,000 for roof repairs is in the budget, but there is nothing there for the floor.

Mayor Frank McCauley, chairman of the committee, has asked the city auditor to see if there is any leftover money in bonds used to pay for other construction projects.

Osterman said the budget could spare only $10,000 to $15,000 at most for the floor.

"We certainly want to have this done by the start of the next basketball season, or we may have to look at other arrangements," he said.

During a recent school committee meeting attended by about 30 people wearing North Quincy High jackets, seven athletes told of having suffered leg injuries playing on the floor.

McCauley and committeeman Francis Anselmo said they were worried that further injuries on the floor could lead to lawsuits.

O'Rourke's Homer Sparks Quincy, 6-2

George O'Rourke belted a two-run homer in the fourth inning to provide the winning margin as the Quincy High School baseball team upended Newton, 6-2, with three pitchers combining to hurl a two-hit-ter.

Don Gough, Dick Drake and Al Collins pitched three innings apiece and after Gough, the starter, gave up two runs in the first inning Newton failed to get a runner as far as third base.

Little Gerry Frazier tripled home Quincy's first run in the first inning; O'Rourke followed with his two-run round tripper in the fourth and the Presidents got two more in the fifth and one in the sixth.

Four Newton pitchers gave up only four hits, including singles by Angie LoCicero and Vin Salvucci, but they also allowed 10 bases on balls and the fielders made four errors behind them.

The Quincy lineup included: Frazier, 2b, Twomey 1b, LoCicero ss, Hebert ss, O'Rourke cf, Drake lf-p, Salvucci 3b, Ojala rf, Duggan rf, MacDonald c, Gough p, Tempesta ph, Collins p, DePaulo ph.

The other winners for Coach Gerry Lyons' North Quincy team were Stan Clark in the high jump, Bob Benson in the shot put, and the Raiders' relay team of Rawson, Gibson, MacLeod and Lyons.

SULLIVAN CRITICIZED

The Park Board criticized Quincy High School baseball coach William Sullivan for permitting his players to jump the fence to practice on Adams Field despite a ban on anything but regular games at the field.

The Board pointed out that a great deal of work is necessary to keep the field in top playing shape, adding that Sullivan's statement "we will knock down fences if necessary" set a bad example for his players.

KOCHS END 16-5

The North Quincy Koch Club basketball team wound up its first full season of play with a 16-5 record as Ralph Beaton led the scorers with 251 points in 21 games but George Burke had high average with 20.

The award was made by MBYCA commodore Bernie Reisberg of Quincy.

ionships in Cherbourg, France.

Mike captained the UMass-Amherst sailing team in 1972-73, was assistant harbormaster in Quincy in 1975 and a director of the city sailing program in 1976.

Morrissey sponsored legislation that has become law that limits the liability of race committees conducting sailboat races in which a participant is injured. He also sponsored legislation for dredging the Squantum and Wollaston Yacht Club channels.

Donovan In Key Role

Mike Donovan, a junior from Quincy, will be key man this spring as Curry College baseball coach Jack Vally looks for his 33rd winning season.

Donovan, a pitcher-outfielder, led the team in batting last year when he hit .410 and drove in nine runs.

Vally, in his 37th season as Colonel coach, has a fantastic record of 539 wins and 161 losses.

Garrity Inducted Into Coaches Hall Of Fame

JACK GARRITY

Jack Garrity, former Quincy High and Abp. Williams football coach, was inducted into the Mass. High School Football Coaches Association Hall of Fame at ceremonies Saturday at Boston College's Roberts Center.

Garrity, who compiled a 66-33-4 record during his 12-year coaching career, was one of six coaches inducted last week.

The others were Arthur Adamopoulos of Peabody High, Joe Mewhiney of Westboro, Alex Kulevich of Fenwick and Marblehead High Schools, Angelo Insalaco of Millbury and Holliston, and the late Art Hurd, Oakmont Regional, whose plaque was accepted by his son.

Garrity was introduced by Ken Kerr, one of his Abp. Williams players and now an attorney in Hingham.

"Jack Garrity showed us we could go beyond our potential and he worked us awfully hard," Kerr said. "But we found out later that the hard work resulted in success for us in the business and professional world."

"I feel very humble here today because, unlike you other coaches, I never played football," Garrity said. "I learned my football from being statistician for Buff Donelli at Boston University and when I first started coaching at Abp. Williams, I was helped by some outstanding coaches and players. And, I was blessed with some outstanding players, both at Williams and Quincy."

"I feel football is a wonderful game because of the total involvement and I wish I had played. As far as my playing is concerned, my whole life has been devoted to hockey, but football is just great. I always felt discipline was one of the most important ingredients to having a successful team and that is one thing he had, discipline."

A graduate of Medford High and Boston University, Garrity led Williams to five league championships, two in the Catholic District and three in the Catholic Conference. He had unbeaten teams in 1957 and 1958 and won the unofficial state championship with a win over equally unbeaten Agawam before one of the largest crowds ever to watch a game at Braintree's Hollis Field.

Although he had only a 1-2 record against North Quincy, his Quincy teams were involved in some interesting games.

Jack's first season at Quincy marked Jack Donahue's last game as North Quincy's coach and the fired-up Raiders topped the Presidents, 28-20.

Quincy won the second game in 1961, 20-0, then lost, 18-0 and in his final year as coach, 14-10, after leading, 10-0, at the half and still leading in the waning seconds when North scored the winning touchdown.

Garrity, who has been a social studies teacher at Quincy since 1960 and is now an assistant football and hockey coach at Milton Academy, was an All-received the eighth annual media awards and the coaches of last fall's Super Bowl champions received their awards.

Mark Crehan, whose more than 50 years as a schoolboy football official and a member of numerous committees to improve the public image of the game and its rules has helped keep Mass. high school football safe and popular, received the 13th annual Distinguished Service Award.

Jack Donahue was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1967 and other former South Shore coaches inducted were Harry Arlanson of Weymouth in 1964, Ed Stewart, Scituate, 1969; Jack Fisher, Weymouth, 1970; Arigo LaTanzi, Braintree, 1971; Joe Zapustas, Randolph, 1972; Jim Anderson, Marshfield, and Jim Wheeler, Weymouth, 1976; Tom Brennan, Milton, 1978; Evie Dorr, Cohasset, 1981, and Walt Paster, Abington, 1983.

The annual clinic for schoolboy coaches conducted by Jack Bicknell and his staff at BC, in conjunction with the Hall of Fame luncheon, was held Saturday morning. Among those attending were Quincy coach Jack Raymer, North Quincy coach Ken McPhee, former Quincy coach Tom Fitzgerald, former Quincy assistant Peter Chella, now an assistant at Curry College, and North Quincy assistants Mark Mulvaney and Kevin Cobban.

City Athletics Fields Getting Major Face Lifting

Park and Recreation Board and Park Department officials are requesting the cooperation of baseball, softball, soccer and rugby officials as well as residents close to recreational areas where major athletic field renovations are in the process of being completed or in the final states of refurbishing.

Richard J. Koch, Sr. executive director of the Park-Forestry and Cemetery Departments said the city is in the process of conducting one of the most extensive upgrading of municipal recreational facilities since the late 1960's and early 1970's when federal funds were secured. The present refurbishing of municipal athletic fields is being funded by Community Development Block Grant Funds and an appropriation of the Mayor and City Council.

A number of the athletic fields are being sodded and overscowed and must be left empty until the weekend of Saturday, May 11 so that the sod may have a chance to properly knit and the grass seed germinate.

The assistance of the police, users of the fields and residents are requested to give the renovated areas the proper period for establishment and growth.

The following locations are in the process of being renovated and planted and need a cooperative effort by all to insure no activity at the sites designated until May 11, Koch said:

Pagant Fields Numbers 1 and 2; At Pagant Field Picnic Area, Merrymount Park off Southern Artery near the Bowling Green.

Mitchell and McCoy

Iwin: Combination softball and little league baseball fields on Southern Artery adjacent to Collins Rest-A-While.

Dozen Names Submitted For QHA Monitor

with the South Shore Coalition, had sought the right to monitor the QHA's compliance with the consent decree.

The MCAD's complaint is based on the same allegations as that of the South Shore Coalition complaint.

The complaint brought by the South Shore Coalition and the two plaintiffs has been withdrawn since the agreement was reached, leaving the MCAD alone in its complaint.

Rodrigues said he offered to co-sign the settlement between the South Shore Coalition and QHA and would, in turn, drop the MCAD's complaint.

"They (QHA) basically said they don't want us involved and we basically said if we're not involved, the case won't get settled," said Rodrigues in remarks somewhat toned down from comments made a few days before.

"That's where the rub is. We could have settled this case a long time ago. They didn't want to. What else can I say?"

But other sources told The Sun no such offer was ever made, and pointed out that it would not have made any sense anyway because an agency such as the MCAD that seeks and processes complaints could not serve as an impartial and objective monitor.

"How could he (Rodrigues) be an impartial monitor?", the sources asked.

"And how could he or the MCAD be the monitor when the Housing Authority comes under another state agency, the EOC, which is the natural active daily monitor."

Jeffrey Isaacson, head of the South Shore Coalition, last week hailed the consent decree agreement as a landmark in its efforts to integrate the South Shore.

He said the agreement "sets a new precedent for the other communities on the South Shore."

An agreement with the federal government covering 1979 to 1981 called for rental of one out of every three apartments to minorities. That agreement expired. But the federal subsidized housing ratio will now be one-out-of-four under the new consent decree.

The consent decree appeared to have brought to a peaceful conclusion the matter of public housing in Quincy.

But, it turned out to be the calm before the storm. The very next day, Rodrigues announced he would press forward with the MCAD complaint against the city which was started in 1982 before he was appointed by Governor Michael Dukakis but left idle while the South Coalition complaint was in the works.

It was not just his announcement he would pursue the MCAD complaint that touched off an angry response from city officials.

It was some of his words.

Rodrigues was quoted as saying the MCAD needed some control over the tenant selection process to make sure that discrimination is not repeated.

He said he would prefer an adversary hearing and a finding of guilt on the housing authority's part instead of a compromise settlement.

"We are not too anxious to settle this," he said. "We want a finding of guilt. I am going to encourage the lawyers to go all the way and get a finding of guilt. The commission can then put forward a written remedy that would exercise a great deal of control on how rentals of public housing in Quincy take place."

"We will not be gentle. We will come down with some pretty hard remedies for people."

He said, it was reported, the remedies could include money for the victim of housing discrimination and an order of conditions similar to Judge Arthur Garrity's with desegregation of Boston Public Schools "in which we will oversee the implementation of those orders to ensure that it is done correctly."

He indicated the next step would be monitoring of private housing.

Rodrigues also said Quincy has a recent "volatile history of race relations". He cited the attack on sailors in Houghs Neck, the Aunt Jemima incident and problems at Snug Harbor.

And, he said:

"I don't want any games played on this process. The Quincy Housing Authority had a long time to play this out. They haven't seemed too anxious to do so until their feet were put in the fire."

The MCAD complaint, if Rodrigues proceeds, will be heard by the MCAD itself which serves as an administrative tribunal for civil rights issues. Rodrigues, however, would not serve as "judge" because of his involvement in the matter.

Rodrigues' pursuit plans and strong words took Quincy officials by surprise. Then, anger set in.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley whose relationship with Rodrigues had been harmonious accused him of taking a hardline stance that is "inflammatory and not worthy of a person holding such a sensitive position."

McCauley said he would write a "letter of complaint" to Governor Dukakis who appointed Rodrigues to the commission in 1982.

McCauley planned to confer with Housing Authority officials this week. He said the city may offer assistance from its legal department to help the QHA fight the MCAD complaint.

McCauley noted that Quincy has a strong commitment to low income and senior citizens housing while other communities have not.

He said he was "a strong believer in local preference in public housing (but) the city must live within applicable state and federal laws."

"It is clear," he said, "that the city government has attempted to cooperate with the MCAD by exerting good faith efforts in affirmative action, contract compliance and fair housing programs. All of these programs are required by the MCAD."

City Councillor Joanne Condon, a candidate for mayor, wrote to Governor Dukakis requesting he "call in" Rodrigues "and take some action regarding his irresponsible statements" about Quincy and its affirmative action policy.

She charged Rodrigues with adopting "the role of a dictator" who has decided that he and he alone will make the decisions on Quincy and its housing programs with regard to minorities.

She said Rodrigues' statements about the number of racial incidents in Quincy "are again irresponsible."

Condon asked Dukakis "to take immediate action" regarding Rodrigues.

She said she feels Rodrigues "is inappropriate for the position he holds; and, in fact, instead of developing good relations between his office and communities, he is instead developing hostilities."

Ward 5 Councillor Stephen McGrath said the "tone and attitude that Mr. Rodrigues portrays are, in my judgement, most inappropriate."

"Mr. Rodrigues is advocating a confrontation stand on the part of MCAD, eliminating discussion and communication. If the suit is filed, I hope the city defends itself to the full extent."

Councillor Michael Cheney in whose Ward 1 the Snug Harbor area public housing is located, also took sharp issue with Rodrigues for exaggerating racial incidents in Quincy.

Cheney also called the MCAD hearing its own complaint "a kangaroo court".

Both Condon and McGrath saw Dukakis at the Legislative Conference of the Massachusetts Municipal Association Saturday and talked with him, expressing their concerns about Rodrigues' actions.

They said Dukakis appeared to be concerned over the reaction to Rodrigues in Quincy.

Condo Complex To Replace Bowladrome

A $4 million, 56-unit condominium complex is expected to take the place of the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome by the fall of 1986.

The Zoning Board of Appeals recently agreed to permit construction of the four-story structure in an area zoned for three stories.

If permits are obtained on schedule, the bowladrome will go out of business this summer, said Dennis E. Harrington, attorney for the Brighton-based Norencio Inc.

The complex will include 40 one-bedroom and 16 two-bedroom units, said Harrington.

Norencio has already shifted half of its bowldrome business to the Quincy Wonder Bowl on Southern Artery which it also owns.

Neighborhood residents have viewed the plans as a community improvement.

RENTING OUT YOUR HOME

QUESTION: What are the tax consequences involved in renting out my home?

ANSWER: Your home becomes a business if you rent it out. The costs of running the property are subtracted from the rent to determine the net income from the operation - just as would be done in any other business. Among the expenses that can be charged off are interest on the mortgage, maintenance and repairs, agent's insurance premiums, annual depreciation and improvements. Tax-wise, renting out your home is a whole new ball game when it comes to taxes.

IF YOU RENT OUT your home, it becomes a business and it's a whole new ball game when it comes to taxes.

May Day Auction To Help Beechwood Community Center

Unlike most children, nine-year-old Damian Chandel did not like Tuesdays because he had only a half day of school.

He worried about whether one of his mother's friends would pick him up once he was forgotten. Another time he spent the entire afternoon alone watching television at home. The only interruption were calls from his mother checking on his safety.

One of many Quincy children who have working parents, Damian now spends his Tuesday afternoons at the Beechwood Community Life Center, a non-profit agency organized by local residents.

A bus picks him up from school at noon.

"I don't feel scared like when I was waiting outside for a ride and I could get kidnapped or something," Damian said. "Today I worked with computers. It was real fun. I played cat and mouse and won. Then I made up a story about a spy."

"In gym I played on the jungle gym, then we all played a game chasing a basketball. Outside, this college student who was trying out to be a teacher helped me find wood for a project. She was real nice. Then in arts and crafts we made plants out of paper, the kind that grow in Ireland."

Damian and 34 other children are enrolled in the after school program. But there are 40 on the waiting list. This is one of many programs at Beechwood that should be expanded to help meet the needs of children, elderly, special needs and handicapped Quincy residents.

A May Day fundraising auction to expand programs at the center will be held on May 1 at 7 p.m. at the Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Quincy.

Businesses and individuals with items to donate should call the center at 471-5712.

Cancer Society's Daffodil Day A Success

Judging by numbers, Daffodil Day, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, was a big success in Quincy.

This year's sales of $8,100 is three times more than last year, said Mrs. Dennis Sweeney who co-chaired the Quincy project with her husband.

Mrs. Sweeney said, "we wish to thank all those countless individuals who donated time and money."

This was the second year for Daffodil Day in Quincy. About 20 volunteers helped distribute the daffodils, Mrs. Sweeney said.

Organizations which contributed largely were: Quincy City Hospital, Mayor McCauley and his staff at city hall; The Wollaston Congregational Church; Pneumatic Seal; The Joseph Sweeney Funeral Home; Rudy's Service Station; Bank of New England, Hancock; South Shore Bank; Howard Johnsons; Curry Hardware and Fleischman's Liquors; Boston Gear; State Street South; O'Connell Management.

Board Grants License For Gourmet Store At Marina Bay

A gourmet store offering wine, beer, cheese and other items will be among those open during the summer season on the boardwalk at Marina Bay.

The license board granted a retail-wine and malt license Tuesday for Chutney's, 542 E. Squantum St.

Thomas Gannon, manager, told the board his shop, which is expected to open mid to late May, will offer such items as imported beer and wine, cheese, preserves, jams, and will have a small deli section.

Gannon, who also operates another business in Squantum, said if the store is a success, he would like to operate it year-round.

Walter Hannon of Marina Bay said that there will be six buildings on the boardwalk housing one or two stores.

Other stores will offer items such as ice cream, flowers, clothing and candy.

Ward Councillor James Condon said that Gannon met with the community association and it is not opposed.

Foley/Chrysler Request Continued To April 23

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to April 23 a request from Foley/Chrysler Plymouth, 330 Hancock St., to store 280 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars in addition to present storage.

The request was continued at the suggestion of Councillor Joanne Condon who said she would arrange a meeting between residents of the area and Foley/Chrysler management who could discuss their differences.

The car dealership is requesting additional storage of gasoline in tanks of 14 cars.

Plans are to extend a deck to the rear of the building to house the cars. Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said.

MacDonald also said a variance issued in 1948 has no restrictions which would affect the proposal.

City Clerk John Gillis said the board will take action on the request April 23.

$160,000 For Voting Machines

The appropriation of $200,000 which had been allotted to purchase voting machines was trimmed to $160,000 by the City Council Monday night.

City Clerk John Gillis said the city is accepting a bid of $158,869 by Electronic Voting Machines of Newton to supply the city with punch card voting machines.

At the request of Councillor Michael Cheney, Gillis demonstrated a machine to the Council.

Monitor Still To Be Named

Judge Signs Minority Housing Consent Decree

By TOM HENSHAW

Federal Judge David Nelson has signed a consent decree under which the Quincy Housing Authority agrees to select 25 per cent minority families to fill vacancies in public housing for the next four years.

Judge Nelson's clerk, Cathy Lechane, said the judge signed the decree March 28 but QHA counsel Paul A.M. Hunt was not notified of it until Tuesday afternoon.

Lechane said Judge Nelson has not yet selected a person to monitor the agreement from a list of about a dozen nominated by the QHA and the Greater Boston Legal Services.

The consent decree had already been signed by the QHA, the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights, two state and federal agencies dealing with housing and two plaintiffs in a suit against the QHA.

The plaintiffs, Doris Gardner and Rose Herrera, charged that the QHA discriminated against them by using a local preference rule in renting publicly subsidized housing.

The QHA claimed it was only obeying state law in giving preference to Quincy residents in public housing.

Last week, the Quincy Sun obtained the names of seven nominees on the list of those up for selection as monitor of the agreement.

They are Dr. Clayton Johnson, president of Quincy Junior College; the Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church; the Rev. Alicia Corea, co-pastor of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, director of pupil personnel in Quincy schools; Atty. Lawrence O'Donnell of the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers; William Kelley, president of Bank of New England-Hancock; and Charles Pearce, chief executive officer of the Quincy Savings Bank.

The names of four or five others nominated by the Greater Boston Legal Services were not available to the Sun.

Meanwhile, Mayor Francis X. McCauley said if he doesn't hear from Gov. (Cont'd on Page 5)

Environment Secretary Opposes Nut Island Plant

James Hoyte, secretary of environmental affairs, has all but ruled Nut Island out as a possible site for either a primary or a secondary sewage treatment plant.

Hoyte said as much in 11 pages of comments on a supplemental draft environmental impact statement on the siting of wastewater treatment facilities in Boston Harbor.

The three sites under consideration by the newly created Massachusetts Water Resources Authority are Deer Island in Winthrop, Long Island in Boston and Nut Island in Quincy.

"It is my opinion," said Hoyte, "that the SDEIS document makes a tacit case for the restriction of the final EIR to only two potential sites: Long Island and Deer Island.

"It is also clear that the data in the SDEIS compellingly disfavors any alternative using Nut Island as part of a split treatment scheme.

"The island is too small to support substantial expansion of the existing treatment facility, the size reduction worked in facilities at the other islands is inconsequential and the cost of the split alternatives using Nut Island are excessive.

"Thus I recommend, but do not require, that the final EIR recognize these realities and deal with the Deer Island-Long Island choice clearly for both primary and secondary treatment."

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said he is "obviously pleased" with Hoyte's recommendation on Nut Island.

"He listened to the strong arguments by the city on the infeasibility of working with a limited amount of land," he said. "I think the large outpouring of Quincy residents at hearings in Quincy and Cambridge helped him to understand.

"I hope they listen to us on Long Island, too."

Final decision on the siting of primary and secondary sewage treatment plants to help clean up pollution in Boston Harbor will be made by the Water Resources Authority.

Dist. Atty. Moves Into Bakery Fire Probe

Investigators from the office of Dist. Atty. William Delahunt have moved into the probe of a $150,000 fire that took the lives of two men last week at the Staff of Life Bakery, 567 Washington St., Quincy Point.

The entry of Delahunt's men indicated that arson is suspected in the fire.

Fire Chief Edward Barry declined to comment on the investigation, referring all queries to the district attorney's office. Delahunt was not available for comment on Tuesday.

Cranes were on the site of the Friday blaze on Tuesday, removing the heavy debris that had collapsed into the cellar of the one-story brick building.

The victims were identified as Joseph Houeiss, 35, of Boston and Wisam Saba, 22, of Arlington, both employees of the bakery. Their bodies were discovered 11 a.m. Friday, nearly 12 hours after the fire started.

Several firefighters were treated at Quincy City Hospital for minor injuries and Chief Barry said his men were in more danger from heavy baking equipment collapsing floors.

The building was owned by Saleem Mouawad, who emigrated from Lebanon in 1970, purchased the bakery last January and had done considerable renovating, including a new store front.

"The building was a total loss," said Barry, who estimated damage at $150,000.

Major Insurance Company Moving Headquarters Here

The U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Insurance Co. of Baltimore is moving its entire New England regional headquarters with 130 to 140 employees from Boston to the Macomber Building at 200 Newport Ave. Extension, North Quincy, within the next two months.

Assistant General Manager Brian Fitzpatrick of Pembroke said the company will occupy the entire fourth and half the third floors of the $16 million building, which was completed only last month over the MBTA's North Quincy parking lot.

"We are all very positive about the move," said Fitzpatrick. "About 50 percent of our employees live on the South Shore and it is an easier commute for the vast majority and more accessible to our independent agents in the state."

He said the operation will include a wide spectrum of workers, including management, clerical, marketing, loss control engineering and underwriting. They are currently employed at the headquarters at 470 Atlantic Ave., Boston.

The eight-story building was constructed over the parking lot with air rights leased to the city by the MBTA for 99 years, the first such arrangement in the state. There is also a 360-car parking garage, built with $1 million in federal funds.

Board Continues Hearing On Lodging House

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue until April 23 a hearing regarding a lodging house which had its license revoked for public safety and public health reasons after a recent fire.

The continuance was requested by Atty. Louis Cassis who represented Mrs. Hikmet Abraham, owner of the lodging house at 3 McGrath Highway.

Cassis said the continuance would allow him time to assess what improvements could be made at the lodging house with money to be received from an insurance settlement.

The license for the lodging house was revoked March 19 after a fire which caused an estimated $35,000 damage.

Patrick Connors, 78, a roomer at the house, was treated for burns on the left hand and face and released from Quincy City Hospital.

The fire apparently started with a portable heater coming in contact with a combustible material in Connors' room, according to Fire Capt. Patrick Clair.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman of the License Board, called the rooming house "a disgrace." Fire Chief Edward Barry said Mrs. Abraham appeared to be in violation of her license.

At this week's meeting, Barry said the violations concerned the Building, Fire, Electrical and possibly Plumbing Departments.

Barry said that a window was found to be nailed shut, paneling was used as wall partitions between roomers, cubicles were padlocked and there were possibly more roomers than the license indicated.

John Schmuck, superintendent of fire alarms, said that the hard wire fire alarm system worked, but the battery for the back up system was not operating.

Schmuck also said that single station smoke detectors had dead batteries or batteries that were put in incorrectly.

"If the fire had occurred at 3 a.m. (instead of later in the morning)," Police Chief

Francis Finn told Cassis, "you would be in court defending your client from going to prison."

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said that his representative on the Joint Inspection Team saw none of the mentioned violations during an inspection of the lodging house in December.

Jane Reikard, executive secretary of the Rent and Grievance Board, suggested that inspections be unannounced at lodging houses, instead of giving the owners notice.

Barry said that unannounced inspections have already begun.

Cassis said that the tenants "ran away with the place" and his client is an elderly lady.

He asked that the board give his client another chance and allow her to put the lodging house "back on line."

Finn told Cassis the board may no longer have confidence in Mrs. Abraham's managing the lodging house.

Papa Gino's Applies To Open New Restaurant

Papa Gino's would like to open a new, 110-seat restaurant at 120 Granite St., near Grossman's in Quincy Center.

But the License Board would like more detailed plans, as well as the time to consider whether the area needs another eating establishment.

The Board voted to continue to April 23 the request for a license at the former site of Anderson Little.

Michael Valerio of Papa Gino's told the board the restaurant would be identical to the Beale St. location.

The Beale St. restaurant last week withdrew without prejudice a request for a beer and wine license after unanimous opposition from area residents and city councilors.

Such a license is not being sought at the time for the proposed Granite St. location.

Valerio told the board hours would be 12 to 10 p.m. Sundays, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Mondays to Thursdays, and 11 a.m. to midnight Fridays and Saturdays.

The menu will offer items such as pizza, pasta, and salad, said Valerio.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said he would like to know the number of parking spaces allotted to Papa Gino's.

Papa Gino's is to check with the Health, Fire and Building Departments.

Vets Names For So. Quincy Monument Collecting Slowly

Gino Sacchetti has collected about 100 names of South Quincy servicemen from World War II for inclusion on a granite memorial planned for Liberty Park at Liberty and Trafford Sts.

"That's nowhere near the 900 names that we need," said Sacchetti, the former Sea Bee who lives in Braintree but still considers South Quincy his hometown.

The names originally appeared on a wooden memorial that was set up at the spot in 1945 but disappeared when the memorial deteriorated over the years.

An appeal for information through the March 21 issue of the Quincy Sun drew some 20 responses from as far away as Cape Cod, Florida and California.

"I've been digging some up myself but it's slow work," he said. "You talk to two or three people and they tell you about someone else. It's like a chain reaction, but slowly."

It is hoped that the list of 900 names can be compiled and placed on the monument in time for a June dedication.

Sacchetti appealed to all World War II veterans from South Quincy to send him their full names, rank, branch of service, address at the time of entry, present address and telephone number.

Replies should be mailed to Gino Sacchetti, 4 Edwards Rd., Braintree 02184.

Sheets Claims 3 New Firefighters Council Victory

By TOM HENSHAW

City Council President James A. Sheets has claimed victory for the Council this week with the addition of three new firefighting positions in Mayor Francis X. McCauley's $80,754,817 budget for fiscal 1986.

"It is interesting to see that we are still winning the battle of the budget for fiscal 1985," he said.

"The mayor added three new combat fire officers to the budget as a direct result of our efforts a year ago. This is a step forward."

"Obviously, we would have liked to have more firemen and policemen but we are happy to get three."

Last year, the Council held up passage of the mayor's budget until late July, well into the new fiscal year, in an effort to get him to fund more positions in the Police and Fire Departments.

McCauley, however, disagreed with Sheets' assessment of the new fire positions.

"We made some savings this year in the health insurance, pensions, street lighting and temporary loan interest accounts," he said. "That is basically the reason we could add three new firefighting positions."

"Even without them we were well above the average of firemen per capita compared with other cities our size."

Other than the three additional fire fighters, McCauley's police and fire budgets "did not offer any surprises," said Sheets.

"I expect the Council will show some concern for public safety but I don't anticipate that those concerns will produce a second battle of the budget," he said.

"But I have long since come to realize that the unexpected does happen so we will have to wait and see."

Meanwhile, the Council's Finance Committee Monday night trimmed $173,000 from the McCauley budget for 1986 and gave initial approval to $17.7 million for the smaller departments in city government.

"Since Proposition 2½," said Sheets, "there is not a whole lot of change in the budget from year to year."

"The real question that the Council wants to have answered is how much money will remain for salary increases and emergency appropriations once we approve the budget?"

"It is our impression that this mayor always salts away in the budget more than enough money to meet any future crisis. That is the type of mayor that he is."

"We have to look through the budget and see where and how much. And if it is too much, what can we do about it? If the Council finds those funds there is a tendency to cut them."

Sheets said the councilors found one of those "salted fundings" Monday night when they cut a brand new $50,000 item labelled "reserve for salaries."

The intention of the $50,000 reserve was to cover unexpected resignations and deaths of city employees in which benefits had to be paid and new workers hired.

"We lived without it in the past and there was usually enough money to cover it," said Sheets.

"If we allowed $50,000 for it the money could have been spent indiscriminately by the mayor without another appropriation."

Tires Slashed in Germantown

All four tires on a black woman's car were flattened, apparently with an ice pick, in Germantown early Tuesday morning, and police labelled it a civil rights case.

Susan Cowart of 435 Palmer St. told police she parked the 1972 Cadillac DeVille around midnight Monday and found the tires flat at 6:30 a.m. Tuesday.

She said her children had been having trouble with white youngsters in the area but the problems apparently had been cleared up.

McCauley Plans To Fill Police, Fire Vacancies

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said Tuesday the city is in the process of selecting applicants from a Civil Service list to fill expected vacancies and new positions on the Fire and Police Departments.

Psychological, background and physical testing of the applicants has already begun, he said, and is expected to be completed by May 1.

McCauley said he hopes to name seven fire fighters to fill vacancies as well as three new fire fighters added in the fiscal 1986 budget to bring the total complement to 180.

He will also fill five openings in the Police Department, he said.

Thieves Flee, Drop Loot

At least two men attempted to steal three containers of patent medicine and powder from he MediMart on Newport Ave., North Quincy, Saturday, losing the items as they fled.

Police said the store manager chased three men across the parking lot and the stolen items—100 tablets of Senokot, Colace capsules, tubes of Preparation H and skin balance powder, — fell from their pockets.

Two of the men were described as unshaven and wearing blue jeans. One was about 22 years old, 5-foot-6 with red hair. He was wearing a red T-shirt and a red and white hat.

The other was about 24, 5-foot-7 with black hair and wearing a waist length barracuta jacket.

Deland's Verbal Bomb Could Destroy Northern Quincy

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
"While the cat's away the mice will play" - or worse - issue infuriating press releases. While our city officials were in Washington lobbying for continuance of federal revenue sharing dollars, disaster struck North Quincy in the form of a verbal bomb dropped by Michael Deland, regional head of the federal EPW who was quoted in the Patriot Ledger as seriously considering Long Island as the best site for the planned sewerage facility. He further states that "if the Long Island Hospital were to be removed that its possible to site even a secondary plant on Long Island and still preserve much of the recreational potential of the island."

Mr. Deland wonders why no Boston residents showed up at recent public hearings to protest the use of Long Island as a sewerage facility. Wasn't he listening to me and the 1500 Quincy residents who showed up at the most recent public hearing and unanimously and vehemently opposed Long Island as well as Nut Island as a sewerage expansion site?

It is not the Boston residents who will be most impacted if even a secondary plant is built there - it is the people and property values of North Quincy that will be most devastated by such a plan.

Can one possibly imagine the same problems of Nut

Island also at North Island, but magnified with the constant smell and endless parade of trucks carrying sludge and dangerous chlorine throughout our city? The limited size streets of Atlantic and Squantum could not possibly handle such dangerous and offensive traffic. The quality of our lives, and value of our homes, would plummet as Quincy became more firmly, and famously, entrenched as the "sewer of eastern Massachusetts."

I have repeatedly told our association members that a compromise plan to build on Long Island is the one thing that we must be alert to and fear the most. Such a project would destroy the northern part of our city. If Mr. Deland is only testing the waters to measure resistance to such a plan, I urge our city officials to take up the challenge and provide that resistance in the most spirited are vociferous manner possible.

Isn't it enough that our beach and Quincy Bay are foul and vitally dead? How much more do we have to take?

A sewerage plant at Long Island, however, limited its size, would sound the death knell of North Quincy. Such a though, much less a plan, is simple unacceptable to the people of North Quincy.

Another Mayoral Candidate?

Could be another candidate in this year's mayoral ring yet.

A second woman, Sabina Kavanagh, Quincy business woman says she is thinking of running.

How serious is she?

"Real serious," says she.

It wouldn't be her maiden voyage as a political candidate. She has run for both City Council at-large and Congress, losing both bids.

But times have changed, she says. Especially for a woman candidate in a city in which female candidates outnumber male.

"We need more women in office," she says. "A woman can get things done."

Especially, she says, a woman who has been successful in business, is a mother, is president of Cerebral Palsy South Shore, a member of the Quincy Council on Aging - all of which she is.

"You get a good understanding of what it's all about," she says.

But, is she really serious about running?

Well, she notes, a cousin Mary Ann Ashe was mayor of Galway, Ireland some 30 years ago, serving something like 25 years.

"It could run in the family," she says.

IS THERE SOME advantage to running for office but delaying the official announcement?

It would appear John Walsh has found one but isn't saying.

WALSH

Newbury Ave., and has two fundraisers in the planning stage.

But no official announcement yet. "It's coming," he says.

Maybe it's that if you don't make it official too soon, opponents or potential opponents don't keep close tabs on you.

Another who has indicated he is running - but no official announcement - yet is Thomas Nutley, Boston Gas Co. executive with deep and active roots in the community.

School Committeewoman Mary Collins is still thinking it over.

And, meanwhile - and perhaps, inevitable - Jens Thornton reportedly is considering making another

Walsh, a definite candidate for the Ward 6 City Council seat being vacated by Joanne Condon to challenge Mayor Francis McCauley, already has: recorded his election committee name at the City Clerk's office, has bumper stickers on cars, has set up political headquarters on Newbury Ave., and has two fundraisers in the planning stage.

Michael Dukakis on the subject of Alex Rodriguez by Monday. April 15 "then we will press his office to set an appointment."

Rodriguez, chairman of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination, has been outspoken in his efforts to force his own harsher remedies for Quincy racial housing imbalance on the city.

"Mr. Rodriguez's remarks," said McCauley in a letter to Dukakis dated April 4, "have been quite alarming to all in Quincy who have been striving to insure that our efforts in the area of affirmative action are in keeping with the applicable laws."

"Many officials of the city are understandably concerned by Mr. Rodriguez's remarks and the public perception that they have cast upon our community."

"We therefore feel that it is imperative that we meet with you at your earliest convenience in order to voice our concerns about these remarks by one of your key appointees."

McCauley said he had not heard from Dukakis as of last Tuesday.

"We want to tell him that the housing authority has entered into an agreement that has been approved by everyone concerned and that it is not necessary for the MCAD continue legal action," he said.

"We would like to have Rodriguez back off and allow the housing authority to implement the terms of the consent decree and go from there. All this talk from Rodriguez is not necessary."

Quincy's Yesterdays

By Tom Henshaw

Gun Shots, Chase Panic Quincy Square

A 16-year-old Hingham youth surrendered to police in Boston after turning busy Quincy Square into near panic with a wild foot chase in which shots were fired and, for a while, Sgt. Francis Finn was thought to have been hit.

The incident started when the youth, who escaped from Boston juvenile court the day before, was stopped by Finn and Officer Robert Warming-ton on Granite St. The boy ran and Finn pursued him.

At the top of the Granite St. railroad bridge, the youth whirled and pointed a gun at Finn and shouted: "I'll kill you."

Finn dove behind a billboard and fired three shots over the teen-ager's head. Meanwhile, Warming-ton, thinking that Finn had been shot, radioed for help and eight police cars converged on the scene.

The youth, whose weapon turned out to be a plastic gun, fled down the railroad tracks, through the Hancock Cemetery and eventually escaped behind the grounds of the Thomas Crane public library.

BLATT SWORN IN

Donald H. Blatt, 33, and just 16 years out of North Quincy High School, was sworn in to the $13,500 a year post as the second city manager of Quincy, succeeding William J. Deegan Jr., who resigned.

"I feel that I am coming home," said Blatt, who previously held municipal manager's jobs in Calais, Maine, for a year, Stoughton for two years, and Newburgh, N.Y., for a year. Their combined populations were 60,000 compared to Quincy's 85,000.

TAXPAYERS CRITICAL

The Quincy Taxpayers Association newsletter "Tips on Taxes," criticized the City Council for its failure to have 100 million gallons of water pumped out of Hitchcock Quarry before city trucks began dumping rubbish into it.

RAILROAD DIFFICULTIES

Patrick B. McGinnis, president of the New Haven Railroad, told a communion breakfast of the Quincy Knights of Columbus that if New England railroads are to exist the government must stop favoring transportation on rubber tires.

City Planners Enter 'Livability' Contest

The Quincy Planning Department has entered the 1985 National Livability Awards Contest, sponsored by the Philip Morris Co. and the National Conference of Mayors.

The contest recognizes

Expressway Speed Limit Down To 40

Motorists who use the Southeast Expressway are advised that special traffic restrictions, including a reduced speed to 40 miles an hour, is again in effect during stage two of the highway reconstruction.

Police details will enforce the new speed limit, which will be in effect until work on the Expressway is completed in the fall in order to insure the safety of both motorists and work crews.

Northbound traffic entering the Expressway from the Quincy Adams MBTA station entrance ramp will communities across the country that have shown outstanding activities promoting the visual and performing arts during the 1980s.

Highlight of the Quincy entry is the opening of the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre in Merrymount Park and several prominent cultural activities that have been assisted by the city government in the last four years.

Some of those activities have been the leasing of the old high school building on High School Ave. to the Quincy Art Association and financial support to the Beechwood Knoll Community Life Center.

The draft for this year's contest entry was worked out by Assistant Planner Claire McGill of the Planning Department and City Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, who is also president of the Quincy-South Shore Cultural Commission.

"The success of the artists, cultural organizations and their activities depends largely on finances," said LaRaia.

"The attention that Quincy will focus on its cultural activities will surely benefit those local performers or groups who are competing for those funds."

quincy education association, inc.
590 Hancock Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02170
(617) 479-2283

Dear Friends,

Public education in Quincy is in serious trouble. We're the men and women who teach your children and grandchildren, and we're beginning to wonder: does anyone care? Within the past five years, we've endured school closings, hundreds of teacher layoffs, the elimination of entire programs, inadequate supplies, and the threat of asbestos in our schools.

Quincy has treated its teachers poorly for too long. We've been working without a contract for 8 months, and have tried to negotiate a new contract for more than a year. After all this time, we're being offered a salary increase of 1.5 percent this year.

We're worth better than that, and so are the children we teach.

We've done everything possible to draw attention to the crisis in Quincy: we've conducted marches and letter-writing campaigns. We've taken out paid ads, made personal addresses to the Mayor and the School Committee, written news releases, and engaged in a legal work-to-rule action. But the time for patience and moderation is running out.

Quincy teachers only ask to be treated fairly, and with respect. We have received neither from the city.

We care deeply about Quincy's children, and about the condition of education in this city. No one knows the business of education as well as we do. That's why we're letting you know how serious this problem has become. Public education in Quincy is in danger. Schools have been closed, hundreds of teachers have been laid off, supplies and textbooks are inadequate and out of date, and teacher morale is at its lowest point ever. This is no way to run a quality school system.

We want the best for your children. And we want a contract that treats us with fairness and respect. This week's mediation session will be a critical step in that process, and we urge you to pay particularly close attention to it.

With your continued support and understanding, we can resolve this dispute, and move on to better days for public education in Quincy. We urge you to join us in seeking a peaceful conclusion to this crisis.

Sincerely,
Mary Curtin
President

Squantum Church Holds Sunrise Service

Members and friends of the First Church of Squantum gathered on the beach at Mossetusset Hummock Easter morning for a Sunrise Service.

They returned to the church for an Easter morning breakfast and, later in the morning, celebrated Christ's Resurrection with the traditional Easter service.

Assisting pastor Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin on the beach, David Williams and Susan Scott read parts of the Easter story from the Bible.

Guitarists Mary Ruth Scott, Steve Williams and Andrew Ogilvie accompanied the singing. Dr.

Langevin preached on the topic, "Looking for Jesus in Wrong Place."

Luther Swenson recorded the service for shut-ins. Ellen Ogilvie and Hazel Mayne were in charge of the breakfast.

The traditional service began with a dramatization of the women's early morning visit to the tomb. Participating were Susan Mildram as Mary Magdalene, Sandra Ahearn as Joanna, Bonnie Adams as Mary, the mother of James; Bonnie MacRitchie and Karin Reister were the other women with them; Chris Dixey and Andrew Ogilvie were the angels in the tomb.

They hymns sung by the congregation were "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," "Christ Arose," "Jesus Christ is Risen Today" and "Come, Ye Faithful, Raise the Strain."

Violinist James Sumner accompanied the congregation as they sang. Mary Ruth Scott was the organist; she also directs all the choirs of the church except the Cherub Choir.

The Cherub Choir, directed by Susan Scott and Mindi Hurd, sang "Alleluia." The Junior Choir sang "Easter Bell Carol."

The Youth Choir presented "Walk Softly in Springtime" by Eugene Butler. The anthem by the Chancel Choir was "Alleluia! Christ is Risen!", a Russian Easter hymn by Andre Kopoloff.

The Junior Choir and particularly Kristen Reister assisted the pastor in explaining "The Big Breakthrough" to the children.

A large hand-drawn mural of the women at the tomb greeted worshippers in the foyer as they arrived for worship. It was there with another picture, a print of a painting by Fra Angelico on the same theme.

Dr. Langevin preached on the subject, "Christ is Risen: How Do We Know?" His text was taken from 1 Corinthians: "But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who have fallen asleep." (15:20)

Greeters for the morning were Cliff and Shirley Mason. With Cliff for the morning was his mother who is 99 years of age. Barbara Frazer, Janet Sumner and Helen Miller were in charge of the Easter floral display. The usher were Stewart Scott and Tore Wallin. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Drucilla Warnes, May Lewis and Grace Holmes.

Evening Friendship, one of the women's groups in the church, is sponsoring a Pot Roast Dinner and Slide Show Saturday at 6:30 p.m. Marge Hanson, Ruth and Luther Swenson will present slides of India and Nepal. Tickets should be purchased in advance and may be reserved by calling Barbara Frazer at 328-0502.

There will be two services this Sunday: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Charles Leveroni, 82, Retired Herald City Editor

A funeral Mass will be celebrated Thursday at 11 a.m. in St. Agatha's Church, Milton, for Charles Leveroni, 82, a retired city editor of the Boston Herald.

Mr. Leveroni died April 8 at Milton Medical Center. Born in Boston's North End, he lived in Quincy over 55 years.

He retired in 1972 after serving almost 50 years on the Herald's news staff.

Some of the stories he covered included the sinking of the U.S. submarine S-4 in Provincetown Harbor in 1926 with the loss of the entire crew; the cremations of Sacco and Vanzetti following their executions for murder; the great Fall River fire in which nearly 500 patrons died, the crash into Eastern Airlines prop-jet with the loss of 61 persons, the tornado which swept Worcester County causing severe destruction and the capture of the so-called Boston Strangler.

He attended Boston Latin and Boston English High Schools and was accepted by Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1920 but transferred to Lowell Institute, its evening division. When the Boston Telegram, a new afternoon newspaper began publication he was hired as a reporter.

The Boston AP bureau cited him in its national house publication: "The AP World" for the exclusive tip on the magnitude of the robbery of the Brink's garage in which more than $1,000,000 was stolen. The AP noted that it has a 30 minute lead in breaking the story nationally against its competition.

The New York Times cited him for a story which later led to the resignation of a Boston attorney who had been retained as counsel for a Senate sub-committee on Internal Security of which Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R-Wis.) was a member. An interview with the counsel disclosed that the attorney had acted as a fund raiser for McCarthy in Wisconsin. Another Boston attorney, Joseph W. Welch was chosen as the committee's counsel.

The news media in Greater Boston selected him to form a pool to supervise the compilation and distribution of all returns from national, state, and city primaries and elections for the pool. In addition, he also arranged to gather the results of more than 200 town meetings and elections annually for the Herald.

After the first New England unit of the Newspaper Guild was formed he was chosen by his Herald co-workers to be its first chairman. He also served as president of the local, as an international vice president, local treasurer and as a delegate to 25 annual national conventions. In addition to negotiating workers contracts with the Herald and other Boston newspapers he was chief negotiator for the Salem News and Brockton Enterprise guild units.

He was the first president and organizer of the Boston Press Club and its treasurer for 10 years. He also organized the annual Press Club dinners at which prizes for excellence were awarded for outstanding news stories and features.

He is survived by a daughter, Edith W. Hilpman, and a son, Charles F. Leveroni, both of Connecticut. He also leaves six grandchildren.

Visiting hours are from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Alfred D. Thomas Funeral Home, 326 Granite Ave., Milton.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Man thrives on Challenge; he loves to grasp life, by the horns and the wilder the beast, the better...

At the turn of the century Sir Ernest Shackleton, the British explorer, had an "impossible dream" which he tried to sell to the English public. He wanted to explore the Antarctic. Everyone said he was mad. No one would go with him. Not being disillusioned, he placed this ad in a London newspaper:

"Men wanted for Hazardous Journey... Small wages, bitter cold... long months of complete darkness... constant danger... safe return doubtful... Honor and Recognition in case of success" . . . Sir Ernest Shackleton.

The response was overwhelming! Shackleton's appeal was a challenge to those who dreamed of honor and recognition. All their dreams would come true if the venture succeeded. For their dreams they were willing to suffer bitter cold, darkness, danger, small wages... even the possibility of no return... Such is the power of a challenge.

Gustave Flaubert, the famous French writer, wrote: "The most glorious moments in your life are not the so-called days of success, but rather those days when out of dejection and despair you feel rise in you a challenge to life, and the promise of future accomplishments." Each day - life itself - is a challenge. Is it not? . . .

There are many misconceptions about funeral costs. That's not surprising, really, as there are other charges involved in a funeral, then those of the funeral director. . . cemetery or cremation charge . . . monuments or markers . . . newspaper death notices and flowers. Many also believe that funeral directors will not discuss funeral or burial costs frankly and specifically. Nothing could be further from the truth. Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., adjacent to the Quincy Historical Society Home, stands ready to give you whatever cost information you desire at any time. Roger Hamel, Donald McCarthy and Joseph Thompson are thoroughly trained in the profession they have chosen and ready to discuss frankly, funeral cost information. Call the pre-need specialists of Quincy and the South Shore, Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home at 472-5888. That's 472-5888.

SPRING HOME IMPROVEMENT

The Quincy Sun

A Special Section

Stay cool, save energy this summer

Summer months can often seem unbearably hot. Home air conditioning is a welcome relief to many during this period, but the energy bills at the end of the month certainly are not.

Now, however, there is a simple way to stay cool in the summer, yet save energy at the same time. How, you ask?

First Alert by Pittway has introduced a wireless automatic temperature control device, called the Autostat, that attaches to your existing home thermostat and can be programmed to setup and setback temperature settings as you wish.

For instance, let's say you want to raise your thermostat setting at 7:45 in the morning so, while you're at work, the air conditioner won't continually run and waste energy. You can easily program the Autostat to raise the temperature setting automatically at that exact minute.

At the same time, you probably want to come home to a cool, refreshing home at six PM. You can program the Autostat to lower the thermostat to your desired temperature setting at 5:45. You walk in the front door to cool and comfort, not a stuffy, hot home.

Studies show that homeowners can reduce their energy bills up to 25 percent during the summer months by raising thermostat settings five degrees for two eight-hour periods each day.

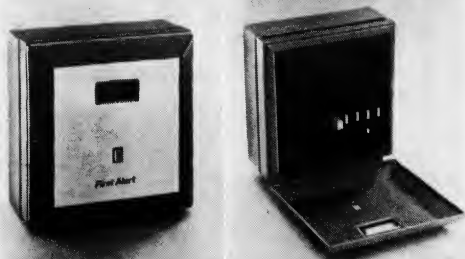

The Autostat method eliminates your need to remember to set up and back each day. Plus, it provides the comfort of coming home to cool when the outside offers nothing but sweltering heat.

Don't stop there — the Autostat provides more. You can program up to four temperature settings a day. Its microprocessor-based control panel allows for thermostat programming to suit varying lifestyles and work schedules with its weekend/weekday temperature setting flexibility. There are models to fit common round thermostats and most rectangular types as well.

The Autostat's pushbutton control panel is located neatly behind the unit's front panel, stylishly colored in warm beige with sleek, silver trim to match virtually any home design.

A state-of-the-art quartz liquid crystal display clock with digital readout serves as a programming timepiece and as a convenient, accurate timepiece for you.

First Alert's Autostat provides the same comfort and convenience as other setback thermostats that cost twice as much. It also offers simple installation with no wiring necessary.

COME HOME TO COOL and save energy at the same time with First Alert's Autostat, a wireless, automatic home temperature control device that works in tandem with existing home thermostats. Autostat's color-coded control panel makes programming easy, providing comfort, convenience and cost savings.

Old paint's no longer a problem

SEASON'S HEATING — Spring is paint-up time and the messiest part of that job — taking off the old stuff — is much easier with the new Heat 'N Strip™ electric paint remover and heat gun. It's as effective on siding, shutters and window trim as it is on furniture and boats. A feathery 1 1/4 lbs. and as easy to handle as a hair dryer, the Black & Decker tool saves not only time but lots of work as well. Screens driving you buggy?

Here are some simple fix-it tips for mending and replacing Repairing, replacing and installing screen doors and windows is a springtime chore that can drive some homeowners buggier than the bugs they're trying to keep outside. And it needn't be. There are simple approaches to most household tasks, and screening is no exception.

For those who abhor the semi-annual put-'em-up, take-'em-down routine, the ultimate solution is to leave 'em be. Unless the screened space is later replaced with insert-type storm glass panels, that's perfectly permissible with many of the aluminum storm door-window screen systems available today.

These combination units feature the dimensional stability of extruded aluminum frames and the non-corrosive, low maintenance advantages of aluminum screen cloth. And they're available in many sizes and combinations.

Double-track glass and screen combinations are designed for the glass panel to be opened for screen-only use, with latchlocks for easy lift-out of the screen panel to clean the screen and window exterior.

Triple-track units include screen and standard pane glass backed by a removable double-pane insulating glass panel, all within an integral system.

Use non-corrosive aluminum

With many of these, the screens can be taken down or left in place on a year-round basis. Why leave them up? Well, why not?

The take-'em-down philosophy dates back to the type of wire mesh screening that rusted from exposure to rain and snow. Aluminum screen cloth is naturally non-corrosive and affords homeowners the opportunity to keep screens in place year-round.

Besides, window screens are more frequently damaged during installation, removal and storing. Also, screens provide at least some protection for the glass, which is much more costly to replace than screening.

Generally, the only maintenance required with year-round screening is to clean out the drainage holes at the aluminum track bottoms, hose down (Fig. 1) or clean the aluminum screen cloth with water or brush attachment of a vacuum cleaner, and lightly oil the latchlocks and frame sides.

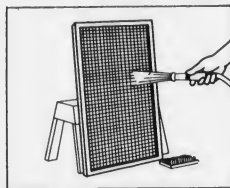

Fig. 1. Screens are cleaned by hosing, washing with water or the brush attachment of a vacuum cleaner.

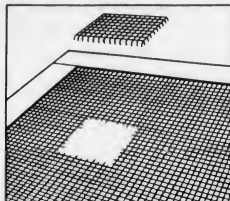

Fig. 3. Larger holes and tears are repaired by trimming edges of damaged area and covering with a screen patch. Bent wires are cut through the screen and flattened back.

Another type aluminum-framed insulating door-screen system comes with glass and screen insert panels. The panels are interchangeable, depending on the season, and eliminate the drudgery of replacing entire framed units.

So, if you are still using old-fashioned wood-framed screen doors and windows, now is the time to consider converting to all-aluminum, ideally in storm sash-screen combinations for long-term energy savings.

Of course, all screens are susceptible to damage, especially full-length doors and patio sliding door screening. But, again,

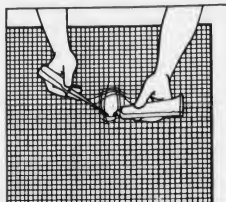

Fig. 2. To repair small holes and tears, realign the wire strands and dab the area with clear fingernail polish or household cement.

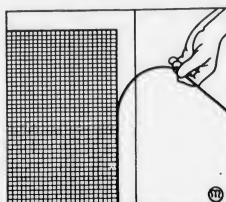

Fig. 4. To replace screening in aluminum frames, first remove the splines.

screen material — aluminum screen cloth over aluminum screen cloth, for example — as that being repaired.

First, trim the edges of the damaged area. Then cut a piece of screen patch of there are quick-and-easy fix-it solutions to save both time and money.

Repairing rips and tears

To repair small holes and tears, use an awl, nail, ice pick or pencil point to realign the strands (Fig. 2). Then dab the repaired area with several coatings of clear fingernail polish, model airplane glue or household glue.

Larger rips, tears and holes are mended with screen patches available from most hardware stores. Always use the same shape but slightly larger. Strip off several cross wires from each end and bend the wires at right angles (Fig. 3). Place the patch so the bent wires go through the screen being repaired. Lastly, bend the protruding wires flat and dab the repaired edges with clear fingernail polish or glue.

If a screen is badly damaged or has become unsightly because of repeated patching, it'll need replacing. The simplest solution is to take the screen, frame and all, to any hardware store offering screen replacement services.

If you take pride in your fix-it abilities, you can save on installation costs by replacing the screen yourself. Simply lay the frame on a flat, firm surface and proceed as follows:

1. Screening is held in place in metal framing with splines. With a screwdriver, pry up the spline at one corner, carefully pull it out of the groove (Fig. 4) and remove the screen.

2. Center the replacement screen in the frame with 1/2-inch edges extending beyond the inside frame edges. Press the spline back into place with a blunt-edge tool.

3. With the top and one side in place, pull the screen taut, complete the splining, and trim off any excess protruding beyond the spline.

A final piece of advice concerns what to do with badly warped wood frames, rusty and bent metal frames, and rusty, tattered screening. Discard them and convert to aluminum screen cloth in lightweight, corrosion-free aluminum frames.

Virtually all home improvement contractors will tell you it's the only way to go for good appearance, easy installation and low maintenance.

For additional information on aluminum screening write to Aluminum Company of America, 1501 Alcoa Building, Pittsburgh, PA 15219.

Sunspaces are today's best add-ons

By LIS KING

Sunspaces are the fashion of the day and, according to the Tile Council of America, an organization which has studied home improvement trends for 40 years, they are here to stay.

The sunspace movement began back in the '60s, says the Council. That's when we all became conscious of the environment. It picked up speed as the '70s brought ever-escalating fuel costs and an energy crisis.

Then the high costs of moving to a new and larger home made remodeling the reasonable solution, and again the sunspace fit the bill. Homes across the country began sprouting greenhouses and other additions with large expanses of sun-catching glass.

The sunspaces have a multitude of names. They may be called sun porches, solar rooms, solariums or garden rooms, as well as greenhouses.

The textbook definition of "greenhouse" is a glass-enclosed space, which provides a controlled environment for the growing of plants.

Some sun spaces are just that, while others are solely for solar heating. But, increasingly, they are as much for people as they are for plants.

They have become the fun rooms of the '80s. This is where the hot tub gurgles, where the party goes, where hobbies are cultivated, and where families gather.

If the sunspace is to be used primarily for solar heat or indoor gardening, it must face south and have unobstructed sun exposure all through the winter day.

If the space is a lean-to greenhouse type, for example, the wall that it shares with the house may furnish additional thermal storage.

A concrete block wall will do the trick, of course but, as in the case of a concrete slab underfoot, it will never earn high marks for good looks.

So it makes beautiful sense to dress it up with ceramic tile. A brick-shaped tile in a natural hue will flatter most any solar wall.

Masonry planters, tiled to match the floor, and tile-topped ledges, platforms and counters used for plant arrangements, seating and such, will soak up the sun's heat, too.

Aside from its good looks and thermal talents, tile is also exceedingly rugged and easy-care, certainly desirable traits for fun and family rooms.

A WELCOME SUN SPACE for plants, casual meals and homework is created by remodeling a back porch with lots of glass and incorporating it into the kitchen. The quarry tile floor by Summitville Tiles absorbs the heat of the sun, helping to heat the space. The addition was designed by Family Circle Magazine.

Youngsters Ceramics Exhibit In Quincy Sun Window

Forty-six Quincy youngsters have ceramics creations on display in the window of the Quincy Sun as part of the Quincy Recreation Department's annual End of Season Recognition Program.

The items are made by participants ages six through middle school, as part of the 25-week winter recreation program offered at three locations by the Quincy Recreation Department.

Barry J. Welch, Director of Recreation said: "Often, the creative abilities of the youngsters in our program are overshadowed by the athletic abilities from other activities. This display in the window of the Sun allows an talent, and the youngsters point towards getting pieces selected for public viewing."

The works selected are from Fore River, instructors Margaret McBride and Jean Bourdreau; Beechwood Knoll, instructors Diane Callow and Lisa Ventola; and Lincoln Hancock instructors Carol Thomas and Katherine Gorezyca. Supervisors of the ceramics program is Mrs. Nancy Joyce.

Friday Deadline For Poster Contest

Friday, April 12, is the deadline for submitting entries in the annual Quincy Girl Scout Poster Contest on the theme, "Be Good - Clean Up Our Neighborhood."

All scouts, Brownies to Seniors, may submit, through their leaders, a poster to The Quincy Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., by Friday at noon.

Local scouts will hold their sixth annual Earth Day celebration Monday, April 15.

Each troop should choose a section of open space near its neighborhood that could be improved.

Several troops are planning a lunch or party after their cleanup.

Areas to be cleaned are Caddy Park playground, Houghs Neck playgrounds and beaches, Mound St. Beach, Naval Base-Saratoga St. and the area around the Elks meeting place, O'Rourke Field, Sailors' Home Pond, St. John's Church grounds, Welcome Young playground, and White Rock at Black's Creek.

They are: President, Carmela Corbin, of Corbins Fashions. Treasurer, Paul Picariello, of Accent Upholstery. Clerk secretary, Gail Buccini, of Encore Quality Consignment Shop.

Elizabeth McLaney and Richard Meade from the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development were presented to discuss tree planting along Billings Rd. and the pedestrian walkway connecting the Parkingway to surrounding businesses.

It was decided that broken or damaged trees will be replaced. The final tree well design will be of heavy granite blocks set in the ground around each tree. A small area of flowering ground cover will be planted at the immediate base of each tree.

"The improvements should enhance the aesthetic quality of the entire area," said Gail Buccini, newly elected clerk secretary.

Also discussed at the meeting was the upcoming Las Vegas night which will be held Thursday, May 16 at the Elks Club on Squantum St. and the sidewalk sales to be held June 21 and 22.

"The entire board is looking forward to a productive and profitable year for the North Quincy Business Community," said Buccini.

BRIGHT, YELLOW DAFFODIL was presented to some 500 residents of Granite Place, Hancock House and Hancock Court by O'Connell Management Company on "Daffodil Day" sponsored by the American Cancer Society. It's Play Ball! For Quincy, North

The Quincy and North Quincy baseball teams, with new head coaches, open their seasons today (Thursday) with Quincy hosting Weymouth North at 3:30 at Adams Field and North playing at Weymouth South, also at 3:30.

The new coaches, Quincy's Bob Sylvia and North's Tom Fitzgerald, were expected to open with their outstanding veteran pitchers, Joe Conti of Quincy and Jack Outerbridge for North.

Sylvia, assistant coach for the past five years, replaced Bud Mosher, who stepped down after 12 years, while Fitzgerald took over for Charlie Bunker, who called it quits after 14 seasons.

The Presidents next week will play at Malden Monday at 10:30, will host Medford Wednesday at 10 a.m. at Adams Field and will play at Peabody Friday at 10:30.

North will host Medford Monday at Adams, will be at Peabody Wednesday and will be home to Revere Friday at Adams. All games start at 10:30.

North Girls Open Against Weymouth S.

The North Quincy girls' softball team opens its season today (Thursday) when it hosts Weymouth South at 3:30 p.m. at Faxon Field.

Second-year coach Mary Pratt hopes to improve on last year's 7-8 record despite the fact the Raiderettes lost five of last season's starters.

Mary was one of the finest all-around female athletes in New England and has coached many Quincy and North Quincy teams. She was greeted by a fine turnout of 48 girls.

Returning veterans are Ann Duggan, all-star volleyball player who is expected to again take over in centerfield, and Ann Anderlonis, who as a freshman, led the team in hitting last spring. Ann, who alternated between pitching and the outfield, is expected to be the number one hurler this season.

This year's squad is fortunate to have a strong contingent of sophomores and juniors coming up from assistant coach Kevin Jago's junior varsity squad. They include Ann McGuiggan, Tricia Grant, Nancy Leonard, Colleen Hannon, Melissa DeAngelo and Carolyn Mahoney.

Players who gained varsity experience last year and are expected to be of great help this spring are Valerie Papapetros, Noreen Connolly, and Carolyn O'Reilly, all infielders.

The squad was helped tremendously when Sandra Proude, a senior reported, she had previously played varsity ball in her sophomore season but then moved out of state. She returned and was one of the outstanding players in this year's basketball team. A good hitter and fielder, it appears that she will hold down an infield spot.

Other seniors trying out are Stacey Barnes, Barbara Kelly, Jennifer Killeen, Maureen Ridge, and Susan Sadlock. Juniors are Ann Lombardi, Kellie Naser, Beth Pacino, Jill Quinn, Amy Maginnis and Yvonne Chan. Sophomores candidates are Kari Jankaterino, Lisa Milton, Colleen Monahan, Pamela Plante and Jackie Fennessey. Promising freshmen are Ann Anderson, Kerry Christopherson, Sheryl Jones, Lori Julian, Kerri McDonald and Tara O'Brien.

Most of the sophomores and freshmen will be playing with Jago's jaycee squad.

The Raiderettes will be home to Peabody Tuesday at 10:30 and next Thursday will host Everett, also at 10:30.

In addition to their 12 Suburban League games, the North girls will play six games with Greater Boston League opponents and single games with former league rivals Weymouth North and Weymouth South, now in the Old Colony League.

Meanwhile, Barbara Webster's Quincy girls got under way yesterday (Wednesday) at Weymouth North and will be idle until April 22 when they host Everett at 3:30 p.m. at Faxon Field.

Burke In 17th Year

QJC Opens Against Newman Prep

By PETE ZOIA

The Quincy Junior College baseball team opens its season today (Thursday) against New Prep at 3:30 at LaBrecque Field.

The Jaguars will host Keene, N.H. State Tuesday at 3:30 at LaBrecque.

Dave Burke, the only coach QJC has had, is starting his 17th year as the Jaguars' skipper and he has never had a losing season.

What makes this record all the more remarkable is the fact that practically every season his squad consists of just about 12 players, most of them new players.

"We never seem to have more than three returnees," said Burke, "and this year we have only one, Rob McCabe from Braintree, a veteran outfielder."

QJC has played only practice games to date and Burke is satisfied with the way things are going.

Kyle Morton of North Quincy looks like the number one catcher. He has good size and handles the pitchers well.

Sean Murphy of Quincy will be at first base. Mark Chambers, who played for Quincy Legion, and George Cavanagh of Weymouth are the second base hopefuls.

John Smith of Weymouth is the shortstop and Mark Loud of Milton is the starter at third base.

Burke's son, Greg, of the outfield, impressing everyone with his speed and timely hitting. Denis Downing and Mark Righini of Quincy are other promising outfielders and Downing will also pitch. Righini will also play in the infield. John Dolan from Catholic Memorial is another good looking outfielder.

Bob Jaffarian, who played at Xavierian High, looks like the best pitcher and pitched four strong innings against UMass/Boston.

Moscardelli Loses Four Hitter To Malden

Vin Moscardelli, the team's ace lefthander, lost a four-hitter when Malden pushed across two runs in the eighth inning for a 2-1 victory over the Quincy High School baseball team in the opening Greater Boston League game.

The Presidents collected only five hits off Malden pitcher Bill McCormick, including two singles by Lou DiMartino and a long double by Walt Peterson. Quincy scored its only run in the seventh inning.

The Quincy lineup included: Ruggles lf, Campbell ss, DiMartino cf, MacDonald 1b, Leone 2b, Peterson rf, Tantillo 3b, Biagini c, Moscardelli p.

GERARDI SPRINT WINS

A tremendous sprint by Gerry Gherardi on the anchor leg of the relay, the final event of the day, provided the points that enabled the North Quincy High School track team to eke out a 50½ to 40½ victory over Thayer Academy.

The Raider runners had fallen behind by 20 feet going into the anchor leg but Gherardi turned on the steam to make up the difference. Earlier, Gherardi had captured the 440-yard run.

Bob Franklin won the javelin throw for North Quincy and Gerry Campbell took the broad jump. Thayer won the other seven first place finishes but North took enough seconds and thirds to win the meet.

PITTS' FIRST WIN

Fordie Pitts of Wollaston won his first golf tournament of the season, firing a 69 on the first round and coasting to a 77 on the second to win the Quincy City Open Tournament by six strokes over John Crowley at Furnace Brook.

Pitts victory formula was his steadiness. He did not hit a single ball out of bounds despite a high wind. He had only one double bogie for the two days. His best tee shot landed three feet from the flag on the 15th hole.

QUINCY BURIES THAYER

Dick Derbes, Jim Keelon and Anthony Volpe were double winners and Dick Pakalnis, Tom Morrell, Barry Kennedy and John Grazioso won singles as the Quincy High School track team buried Thayer Academy, 76-28.

Derbes took the 100 and 220 yard dashes, Keelon the mile and the broad jump, Volpe the shot put and discus, Pakalnis the pole vault, Morrell the high jump, Kennedy the half mile and Grazioso the javelin.

INDEPENDENTS HIT 100

Bob Walsh had 30 points, Doug Grutchfield 23 and Jack Crowley 21 as the North Quincy Independents, the only team to hit 100 points twice in the Charlestown Boys Club tournament, did it a third time with a 104-62 victory over Somerville.

Central, Point, Beechwood Win

Central and Atherton Hough finished as the bottom two teams in the seven-week season of the Quincy Recreation Department senior high school hoop league, but both came ready to play in the single elimination tournament to crown a league champion.

Atherton Hough, winless in league play, took second place finisher Beechwood Knoll to overtime before bowing, 50-46. Atherton sent the game into overtime by outscoring Beechwood, 12-7, in the fourth period.

Steve Austin had nine of his total 17 in that quarter. The top scorer for Beechwood was Mike Murphy who had 19. Murphy scored two in the overtime. Kevin Duffy had two in overtime and ended with 14 total. Atherton's other scorers were Frank Freedman 13, Steve Gardner six, Tom Elsmore and Larry Brennen four, and Rich Callahan two. Dennis DeCoste played excellent defense while Jack Joyce and Mark Farrand contributed timely rebounds for the team coached by Joe Cullen and Margie Crisiani.

For Beechwood, Mike Sullivan had eight, Steve Morad six, and Joe Nelson three. Coach Jack Kelly also praised the ball handling of Colin Power, the rebounding of John Maloney and the two way hustle of Mike McDonald.

Central's first win of the season came in its last game as it stayed close to Montclair for three periods then outscored the favorites, 20-16, in the final period for a 56-53 upset.

Seventeen seemed to be the lucky number as Montclair's Ted Stevenson and Mark Kubera and Centrals Billy Palmer all scored 17 to lead their teams. For Montclair, Jeff Morris had 10 while Angelo Kaptankus had three, Gary McNamara had four, Kevin Segalla rounded out the scoring with two points. Brian Flukes drew praise from Montclair coach Dean Zoia for his clutch rebounding while Mark Bilton was key defensively.

Central's Ted McCarthy was instrumental with seven points in each half for 14 points while Larry Taglieri had nine, Eric Pulsifer seven, Kevin Nichols six, Scott Sacchetti two, and Sean Pohl one as seven persons contributed to scoring in Coach Brian Buckley's balanced attack. Danny McLaughlin, Don Green and Ed Calley were praised for the rebounding and ballhandling particularly in the crucial 4th period.

Point Center rallied from a 24-20 half time deficit to defeat Merrymount, 61-53, in a battle of two teams with only one loss. Mark Malloy led all scorers with 22 for Merrymount. Point's balance proved too much as Jim Rier had 18, Dennis Cronin and Fran Garvey 12, Pat Nee nine, Mike Snow six, Mike Cronin four. Ron Reichart was the top rebounder.

For Merrymount, Chris Meyer had nine, Paul Canavan seven, Bill Roche, Mike Hayes and Dan McCloskey all had four and Bob Keddy three. Bob Roche was top rebounder while Brian Canavan led the team in assists. Two Curry College students coached the spirited contest. Pudge Gill had Merrymount while Mike Cronin assisted Ed McArdle on the Point bench.

Central plays league champ Squantum while Point plays Beechwood in the next round of the single elimination tournament.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Mgr.

DANGER OF WRONG PRICING

QUESTION: Doesn't it make sense for a home owner to set the selling price for his own home?

ANSWER: Since human nature is predictable, there is a better than even chance that you'll put the wrong selling price on your home. You may price it far above its fair market value because of sentimental attachment or expenditures you have made. A home remaining on the market for months due to overpricing, frequently becomes a "White Elephant." It eventually sells for a much lower figure.

Or, you might under-price it. Your safest bet is to list it with a Realtor who will help you price it correctly.

AN OVERPRICED HOME that remains on the market for months frequently becomes a "White Elephant."

Former Quincy Resident In 'Space' Series

David L. Richards of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, will play the part of a 1958 news photographer in the CBS mini series "Space" which begins Sunday, April 14, on Ch. 7.

The series, based on the novel by James A. Michener, will continue through April 18.

Parts of the series were filmed at Kennedy Space Center, Florida, this past summer.

Richards' role as a photographer in "Space" was to photograph the military generals, senators, senators' wives and VIPs as they entered the viewing stand on camera.

Stars playing the parts were James Garner and actress Maggie Han.

In the continuing scene, Richards walks from the press site directly under the camera followed by Han and actor Bruce Dern.

Actor Michael York stands besides Richards, while close up still photos are taken of him.

Between scenes, Richards had time to talk to Michael York about the

Vito Barresi Confirmed On IDFA

The City Council recently confirmed Mayor Francis X. McCauley's appointment of realtor Vito Barresi as real estate representative to the Industrial Development Finance Authority.

Barresi will serve a five year term which will expire April 1, 1990.

R. PETER WHITMORE
(Tom Jones Photographers)

sponsors many youth programs.

The city of Quincy has accepted an invitation to participate in a health insurance cost containment project scheduled to begin in May under the sponsorship of the State Department of Revenue.

Mayor Francis McCauley said the city spends about $6 million a year on health insurance for its employees and is always seeking ways to cut the costs without cutting benefits.

Kathleen Yaeger, benefits coordinator in the city's personnel office, noted several things the city has done to trim the expenses of health insurance.

A complete audit of the health insurance membership as conducted in the fall of 1983 with the end result of 73 people being removed from the plans due to ineligibility.

"Another step," she said, "was taken in July, 1984, when the city retirees were given the opportunity for the first time to choose from more than just Blue Cross-Blue Shield for their health insurance needs.

$250 Damage By Smoke Bomb

Suspected arson in a rooming house at 185 Billings St. North Quincy, Saturday turned out to be a smoke bomb. Fire Lt. Robert Kelly said.

Police said they suspected that an ejected tenant left the device behind in his third floor room in the house owned by Wayne Keith of East Weymouth.

Kelly said damage from smoke was estimated at $250.

Quincy To Participate In Health Cost Cut Study

"The resulting 71 people who changed to alternate health plans saved the city in excess of $30,000 in fiscal 1985 alone and put another $27,500 back in the pockets of the 71 retirees.

"In February of this year, the city changed its financial arrangement with Blue Cross-Blue Shield of Massachusetts from a premium paying arrangement to a cost plus method.

"Had the city remained with the premium paying arrangement the fiscal 1986 budget would have been increased 20 percent instead of the projected 8.73 percent already submitted to the city Council.

"Plans are currently underway to reevaluate the present master medical plan and investigate a more cost-effective means of insuring city employees at the same or better level of benefits at a reduced cost."

McCauley said the two toughest items to deal with in the city budget are health insurance and pensions, fixed costs that keep rising year by year.

Kelly Urges Tour For MDC Takeover

Former City Councillor Leo J. Kelly has invited Commissioner William Geary and members of the MDC board to tour the West Quincy quarry area which the MDC has been urged to take over.

Kelly is now chairman of the city's Environmental Control Commission.

"It is my feeling," he said, "that the commissioners would gain an invaluable insight into the importance and beauty of the quarry terrain."

Kelly also invited the MDC people to a buffet luncheon with him and other city officials so that they would get "an opportunity to sense the local support for the pending takeover proposal."

The luncheon would be hosted by Planning Director James Lydon.

Answering Service Stolen At Pound

A telephone answering service valued at $300 was reported stolen from the city dog pound on Broad St. apparently by a small person who crawled through a hole in the fence.

Acting Dog Officer Phyllis Berlucchi said a hole 2 1/2 feet by one foot was cut in the six-foot picket fence by someone who kicked open the door to the pound.

The answering service was owned by the New England Telephone Co.

Hope Seen For Settlement In School Dispute

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The head of the Quincy Education Association is hopeful that the contract dispute between the teachers union and the city can be settled before students return to school Monday after a week's vacation.

Mary Curtin, QEA president, expressed that hope as attorneys for the School Committee met with the state Labor Relations Commission Tuesday to ask that agency to order the teachers to return to school. No decision had been reached by press time Tuesday.

"I'm hopeful that things can be solved before next Monday," said Mrs. Curtin, "or we'll have some tough decisions to make."

The majority of the 725-member Quincy Education Association voted an illegal strike last Friday after the school committee and teachers union negotiating teams failed to reach agreement following an all-night meeting.

School teachers are prohibited from striking according to state law.

Schools remained open, staffed by principals and non-striking teachers, as pickets marched in front of the city's nine elementary, five middle, three high schools and Quincy Junior College.

Mrs. Curtin said the action was taken for the respect of the teachers and the good of the school system.

As a result of the strike, said Mrs. Curtin, morale among teachers is good.

"Teachers feel that they stood up for themselves, they took a stand, and they feel good about," said Mrs. Curtin.

Prior to the strike, they felt "demoralized and depressed, and that had to be reflected in the classroom," she said.

A QEA meeting is scheduled for Monday at 6:30 a.m. and Mrs. Curtin is optimistic that the membership will be voting on a new contract rather than whether or not to return to work.

Mayor Francis McCauley said the wage package offered to the QEA was a three per cent increase effective Jan. 1, 1985, three per cent Sept. 1 and a half per cent Feb. 1, 1986.

The average classroom teacher's salary of $27,500 per year would increase by some $2,700 to $30,200, said McCauley.

Mrs. Curtin said that the one and a half per cent salary increase the first year is "psychologically very upsetting" to the QEA.

She said the "low key" response of the mayor to the strike gives her hope that the contract dispute can be resolved.

"He did not rise to the level of anger," she explained, "he was low key."

"He sent a signal that he wants to get this thing resolved."

Adult Book, Movie Ordinance Faces Supreme Court Test

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council recently passed a zoning ordinance that makes it difficult, if not impossible, to open an adult book store or movie house in Quincy.

But the city may have to wait until June to see if the ordinance is constitutional.

The U.S. Supreme Court has agreed to consider the constitutionality of similar zoning restrictions passed by the community of Renton, Wash.

"It may well be that our ordinance will not fit in with the Supreme Court decision," said Council President James A. Sheets.

"We should have a decision in June."

The Quincy ordinance bans adult book stores and movies from within 1,500 feet of a residential area, a bar or another porno store.

It permits such establishments only in industrially zoned areas and then only with a permit approved by a two-thirds vote of the City Council.

"As a practical matter," said Jay MacRitchie, the assistant city solicitor who drew up the ordinance, "there would be no place to put one in Quincy, except possibly in the middle of the General Dynamics shipyard."

MacRitchie said the ordinance fulfilled requirements of state law.

In a 1976 decision, the Supreme Court ruled that the city of Detroit could disperse its adult theaters by passing an ordinance that two of them could not be located within 1,000 feet of each other.

"That ruling said you can't ban such stores and theaters but you can control where they locate," said Sheets. "This time the court will decide how far a city can go to restrict the location."

Wahlberg Resigns From Hospital Board

Rosemary Wahlberg has submitted her resignation from the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers, acknowledging that she is too busy to do the job justly.

"My professional responsibilities have increased and I cannot give the amount of time necessary to meet the responsibilities as a member of the board," she said in her letter of resignation.

Wahlberg is also executive director of Quincy Community Action Organization, Inc., and serves on the Quincy Housing Authority Board of Commissioners, an appointee of Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Her letter of resignation to Mayor Francis X. McCauley was dated April 17.

Foley Chrysler Granted Gas Storage Increase

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

After being assured that differences with neighbors had been worked out, the license Board voted Tuesday to grant a request from Foley Chrysler-Plymouth, North Quincy, for additional gasoline storage.

The car dealership at 330 Hancock St. was granted permission to store 280 gallons of gasoline in tanks of cars in addition to present storage.

The storage increase is for 14 cars to be housed on a deck to be constructed to the rear of the building.

Neighbors had complained at an earlier meeting of problems with the car dealership regarding car break-ins and youths congregating.

At the suggestion of Ward Councillor Joanne Condon, a meeting was held between residents of the area and representatives of the business.

A neighbor reported at this week's meeting that an agreement had been reached.

The request was granted with the stipulations that a seven foot fence be installed and maintained; an exhaust fan be pointed to the north; no lights be shone on adjacent property; the garage be locked; drainage be worked out to the satisfaction of neighbors; and shrubs be installed and maintained.

Oriental Rugs Worth $100,000 Stolen In Van

A van containing more than $100,000 worth of Oriental rugs owned by a New Jersey gallery was reported stolen Monday from the parking lot at the Quincy Bay Inn, 29 Hancock St., North Quincy.

Herman L. Fields, 22, of Paterson, N.J., who is employed by Dryer's Rug Galleries, Fairfield, N.J., told police there were 100 or more rugs in the 1983 Ford step van when it was taken.

Fields said he and his assistant, Evans Dock, had conducted auctions of rugs in Falmouth and Andover over the weekend and checked into the Quincy Bay Inn about midnight Sunday.

When they checked out about 11 a.m. Monday the van was gone. The van was described as white with New Jersey registration number XC27H2.

Interfaith Shelters Serve 217 Homeless

Since the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition opened its first shelter for the homeless in Quincy nine months ago a total of 217 people, mostly men, have been served.

The figure was reported to the City Council Tuesday night in a statement by the Rev. Frederick Barr of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount.

The Council was considering a one-time appropriation of $12,480 for the Public Health Department to fulfill a contract with the Coalition to operate the shelters.

The Coalition is a union of 45 churches, synagogues and related service groups joined together to provide shelter, food and other help to people who have no homes but the streets.

Fr. Barr is president of the Coalition.

The first shelter was opened July 9, 1984, at the Salvation Army on Baxter St., Quincy Point, and a larger one was opened last December at St. John's Church on Phipps St.

"By means of the very good community relations we have established in the community, we have discovered that some funds could be available for a one-time financial assistance from the city," said Fr. Barr in his statement.

"We know the pressures of the city. We read the newspapers. Proposition 2½ and other fiscal problems seem to be over-whelming."

"As president of the Coalition I do ask that you seriously look at our request and take seriously our promise to request this only one time."

Tax Volunteers To Be Honored Next Week

Next week will be Volunteer Tax Assistance Week in Quincy, designation that may take some explaining.

It was proclaimed by Mayor Francis McCauley to honor those who donate their time to giving free income tax services through the Tax Counseling for the Elderly (TICE) program to Quincy taxpayers.

"Volunteerism is an integral part of the fabric of our society and this desire to help one's neighbor through volunteer service continues to distinguish the American people," said McCauley.

"Each year Quincy residents freely give their time and energy to assist their neighbors with the preparation of federal and state income tax returns."

"We believe that people who care working together for a better community can make a difference."

Evidence Analyzed In Bakery Fire Probe

By TOM HENSHAW

Evidence gathered by investigators in the arson-homicide probe of the staff of Life Bakery fire has been sent to the State Police laboratory in Boston for analysis.

Capt. David Rowell, head of the Quincy police detective bureau, said the evidence consisted of clothing taken from the bodies of the two victims and pieces of wood from the fire scene in Quincy Point.

The wood, said Rowell, will be examined to determine the type of accelerant used by the person or persons who set fires in five different locations in the building.

Rowell said witnesses are being interviewed by Quincy Det. Kevin Murphy in an effort to develop more evidence in the blaze that destroyed the building at 567 Washington St. on April 5.

Later this week, he said, Quincy detectives will meet with those from the district attorney's office, the state fire attorney's office, the state fire marshal's office and federal agents to coordinate their findings.

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt said investigators from the Treasury Department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms and the U.S. Attorney's office are helping state and local officials in the case.

They became involved, said the district attorney, under a relatively new law that gives them jurisdiction in some arson cases even though interstate commerce may not be involved.

"If criminal charges are developed," said Delahunt, "they could be either federal or state or both."

Last Friday, Delahunt declared the case to be a homicide under the so-called "felony murder rule" in which any death that occurs during the commission of a felony is a homicide.

Two bakery workers, Joseph Houeiss, 35, of Roslindale and Wissam Saba, 22, of Arlington, both Lebanese immigrants, perished in the fire. They were buried Saturday in their native Lebanon.

Their bodies were found in the basement of the bakery some 12 hours after the fire started.

One man was heard calling for help when firefighters arrived. He was at a small basement window but could not get through it.

QUINCY CENTER Professional Building groundbreaking is scheduled for Tuesday at the corner of McGrath Highway and Washington St.

Ground To Be Broken for McGrath Highway Office Condo

Groundbreaking ceremonies will be held Tuesday, April 23, at 10 a.m. for the Quincy Center Professional Building, a four-story office condominium at 21 McGrath Highway at Washington St.

Each floor of the building will feature six office modules varying in size from 703 square feet to 1,991 square feet with a building width total of 34,000 square feet of office space.

It is scheduled for completion in December, 1985.

The developer is Twenty-One McGrath Associates; the architects are Joseph Donahue Associates of Quincy; the contractor is Endicott Construction Co., and marketing by Key Realty of Quincy.

Quincy Seeks To Rejoin Mosquito Control Project

Quincy is moving to rejoin the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project, which it abandoned several years ago in order to save money.

An order on the City Council agenda Tuesday night authorized Mayor Francis X. McCauley to enter into an agreement with the project for fiscal 1986.

Pizza House

Granted License

The License Board voted Tuesday to grant a common victualer license to Stilianos and Arnyro Staras of Woburn for the Wollaston House of Pizza, 311 Newport Ave.

Hours of operation will be 11 a.m. to midnight every day, according to the application, and there will be a delivery service.

George Markakos, owner of the building in which the restaurant will be located, said that the pizza shop site has been vacant for a while.

Police Capt. Paul Nestor, acting chief in the absence of Police Chief Francis Finn, cautioned Staras that there are problems with parking in that area.

1987 and 1988 at a cost of $33,000.

The money would not be appropriated from city funds but would appear as a charge on the cherry sheet of state aid.

"The county control project is more than just spraying for mosquitos," said McCauley. "They clean ditches and work in the marshes, jobs that the city does not have the staff to handle."

Since leaving the project a few years ago, the Public Works Department has conducted spraying in mosquito prone sections of the city twice a year, usually in May and August.

"This will help us keep up with it," said the Mayor. "This is a more detailed program. It makes sense to get into it for at least three years."

The project commissioners voted March 24 to readmit Quincy to the program for three years.

Negotiations Underway For Hospital Contract

The city has begun negotiations with Hospital Corp. of America for a new contract under which HCA will continue to manage Quincy City Hospital.

The Nashville-based HCA has been running the hospital since January, 1981, under a five-year contract at a fee of $640,000 a year, which includes five executive salaries and fringe benefits.

"We have had a good relationship with HCA," said Mayor Francis X. McCauley. "The five years have gone quickly. I assume we will continue on with a new contract."

Early negotiations with HCA are being carried on by Chairman Gerald Marquis, John Kane and Rosemary Wahlberg of the Hospital

Board of Managers and Arthur Foley of the Mayor's office.

"They are reviewing the present contract to see if there is any need for changes," said McCauley. "I'm sure they'll work something out before the current contract expires on the first Monday in January."

Reader's Forum QEA Strike Long Time In Coming

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Hopefully, the action taken by the Quincy Teachers will make everyone aware of how very serious the situation has become.

Surely people must realize the level of desperation which has forced decent, hardworking, law abiding educators to take an action which they realize puts them in a position of defying a law. Much soul searching and real guts went into that decision.

The situation has been building for many years now, not just since 1979. It goes back before that and has continued unabated to the present time. Not only does it have to do with money but with educational decisions effecting what goes on in the classroom. For ten years the teachers have gone along, tried their best under very trying circumstances and done nothing to disrupt the educational process because their over-riding concern has been for their students.

They have patiently, over and over again, used all the legal means available to call attention to the inequities. However, when one feels that one is constantly stepped on both professionally and economically, one's self respect demands one must stand up and fight for what one believes is right. That is the sorry pass we have come to in Quincy.

The Mayor's words about fairness and fiscal responsibility do not address the facts that public school personnel, as well as the schools, have unfairly borne the brunt of all the economic cuts. Furthermore, despite social factors beyond their control and educational decisions made without seriously considering recommendations from the teachers on the firing line, the teachers have taken the brunt of all the blame for all the publicized ills in education.

I hope people took to heart the letter written by John Buckley which recently appeared in the Ledger.

Education is everyone's business - not just that of parents and teachers. Hopefully before the Quincy schools go further down the drain, to the detriment of the entire city, the rest of the Mayor's constituency - the corporate and individual property owners, business people, the elderly, realtors, contractors, etc., will prevail upon the Mayor to take the necessary actions to bring about a settlement to this deplorable situation.

The teachers have laid themselves on the line. Let the Mayor do the same and show the same guts. It's not easy for anyone.

No Cheney-Johnston Rematch

There'll be no rematch between Michael Cheney and Robert Johnston in Ward 1 this year.

Johnston, headmaster of the Woodward School gave considerable thought to challenging Cheney for the Ward 1 City Council seat but has decided against it.

"This just is not the time to make the run," he says. We (Cheney and himself) have some political differences but Mike Cheney is doing a creditable job."

The pair hooked up in one of the better political duels in recent years in last year's special election to fill the seat vacated by long-time incumbent Leo Kelly who resigned to take an administrative post with the Quincy Housing Authority.

JOHNSTON

CHENEY

In the special preliminary election, Johnston edged Cheney by eight votes in a five candidate field.

Cheney, however, came back in the one-on-one final to win it by 79 votes.

Johnston not only has eliminated himself from this year's Ward 1 race but also the City Council at-large picture.

But . . . he's looking over the School Committee situation.

"I am giving some thought to that," he admits. He indicates, however, he probably won't get into that race unless there is an open seat.

Incumbents Joan Picard, Mary Collins and Nick Verenis are up for re-election bids this year.

There's been some speculation that Verenis may decide not to run this year. And observers are waiting to see if Collins gets into the Ward 6 race for the City Council seat being left open by Joanne Condon to challenge Mayor Francis McCauley.

MEANWHILE, Hank Pasquerella, former president of the Quincy Education Association, reportedly is inching closer and closer to the mayoral ring.

Pasquerella, unhappy with school teacher contract talks, said here a couple of weeks ago that he was "75 per cent" sure he would run.

Latest report is that he is working on an announcement.

PASQUERELLA

CONDON

A FUNDRAISER for mayoral challenger Joanne Condon is set for Tuesday, April 23 from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Gazelle Restaurant atop the Howard Johnson building in the State Street complex. There will be an open bar and hors d'oeuvres.

Tickets are $100 per person. For further info call 328-1837.

This will be Condon's first big fundraiser.

State Hearing Today On GD Payback Loan

The Joint Legislative Committee on Local Affairs will hold a public hearing today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. on a bill authorizing the state to loan Quincy $17.7 million interest-free to pay its tax debt to General Dynamics.

The hearing will be held in Room 136 in the State House.

City Councillor Joanne Condon, who introduced the bill as a home rule petition in the Council, urged as many people as possible, particularly representatives of city employee unions, to attend the hearing.

Passage of the bill and the state loan, she said, can save the city more than $1 million a year for the next nine years in payments to General Dynamics in settlement of a court-ordered tax abatement. Right now, the city is paying a negotiated settlement of $28 million, including interest on bonds, at the rate of $2.8 million for 10 years. The state loan would be repaid at the rate of $1.7 million a year.

One year of the $2.8 million payments has been paid.

Condon said she deems the bill of such importance that she will arrange transportation to the State House for the hearing for anyone who calls her through the Council office at City Hall, 773-1380.

The bill was sponsored in the Legislature by Sen. Paul Harold and the Quincy legislative delegation, Reps. Michael Morrissey, Thomas Brownell and Robert Cerasoli.

Meanwhile, Gino Sacchetti of Braintree, formerly of South Quincy, is still collecting names of South Quincy veterans of World War II for inclusion on a granite memorial in the park.

The park is located at Liberty and Trafford Sts.

Liberty Square Committee To Meet

A committee planning rededication activities for Liberty Square Park in South Quincy will meet

Wednesday, April 24, at 7 p.m. to organize its efforts.

The site of the meeting has yet to be determined.

Lincoln-Hancock PTC Meeting

The Parent-Teacher Council of the Lincoln-Hancock Community School will meet Tuesday, April 23, 7:30 p.m. in the Media Center.

Nominations will be accepted for next year. Jim Trelease's film "Reading Aloud: Motivating Children to Make Books into Friends not Enemies," will be shown.

City Councillor James A. Sheets said the target date for the rededication festival is late June or early July, depending on any conflict with other city activities.

Sheets said a full day of

City Officials Urged To Fight Federal Cuts

The leaders of the Massachusetts Municipal Association have warned its membership that they must band together to fight proposed cuts in federal aid to local governments.

"We must report to you that the situation is grim," reported the association's officers, including Quincy City Council Joanne Condon.

Condon, who is president of the Massachusetts Municipal Councilors Association, and the other officers returned from the recent National League of Cities convention in Washington.

They told their membership in a letter that general revenue sharing, wastewater treatment grants, transportation assistance, community development block grants and urban development action grants are among the programs scheduled to be eliminated or cut in fiscal 1986.

"We are prepared to do our fair share in reducing the federal deficit but the current proposals place a disproportionate burden on municipalities," they said.

They expressed their support for a plan sponsored by the National League of Cities, which proposes an across-the-board freeze on virtually all federal spending programs.

"Our congressmen and senators need to hear an emphatic message from local government," said the MMA leaders. "Tell them what will happen in your community if important federal programs are discontinued.

The MMA placed the probable loss to Massachusetts cities and towns as a result of the potential federal budget cuts at least $285 million and possibly $325 million.

"This, coupled with the continuing restraints of Proposition 2-1/2 would create a severe economic crisis at the local level," they said. "State resources will not be able to offset this fiscal effect."

Unemployed Demand Public Projects Work

Unemployed city workers, angry over the delay in starting the city's construction program, were planning to descend en masse on a special City Council meeting in an effort to force the city to begin immediately public projects on which they could work.

"We should be back at work right now and we want to know why we are not," said one worker who declined use of his name for fear of reprisal. "We don't know what we will have to do to get some action but we intend to do something."

"The Council wastes time on a lot of foolish debates but delays action on the most important thing before it, which should be furnishing work for unemployed men."

It was pointed out that, if a $100,000 loan order pending before the Council were passed at the special meeting, the money would be available around May 20 and it would be another month before projects could get underway and put the unemployed to work.

Hundreds of unemployed men visited the offices of acting Mayor Leo J. Mullin and Public Works Commissioner Angelo P. Bizzozero daily in their unsuccessful search for work and a pay check with which to feed their families.

FINNISH WIFE SOUGHT

A Maine man, who said he had 51 lobster traps and a good rowboat, wrote to the Quincy Chamber of Commerce seeking to wed a Finnish girl who "should be honest, good natured, kind and lovable with good habits, healthy and a shapely form, easy to please."

He wanted the Chamber to put him in touch with a girl of "some means, one who is willing to make a personal or private loan of $175 at once and receive $5 or more each month as payment on the $175 until it is paid."

"I prefer a brunette," he added, "but a blonde is o.k."

FLYER RESCUED

Tom Lockery of 34 Turner St., Houghs Neck, and his boatbuilding partner, Edward Butts of Dorchester, rescued John W. Greene, the black flyer from Boston, after he parachuted from his disabled airplane into the Neponset River.

Lockery and Butts sculled out into the river from their boatyard and pulled Greene from the water after he had gone under twice and was being dragged downstream by his parachute.

South Shore Chamber Against Long Island Plant

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has given its support to a legislative measure that would direct the MDC not to build a sewage treatment plant on Long Island.

The Chamber also announced its support for another bill that would prohibit the disposal of sewage effluent, sludge or residue within the boundaries of the city of Quincy.

"We believe the only logical place to site a new sewage treatment plant is Deer Island," said the Chamber in comments prepared for the Legislative Committee on Housing and Urban Development.

"We do believe that a number of methods should be examined in order to attempt to mitigate the impacts on the town of Winthrop.

"We do believe that a headworks should be constructed on Nut Island.

"We do believe that a primary sewage treatment plant should be constructed on Deer Island.

"We do not believe that Long Island should be used for any construction of any sewage treatment plant in any form.

"It is our belief that construction on Long Island will only move the environmental impacts from Nut Island to Long Island. This is unacceptable."

Environmental Affairs Secretary Hoyte Against Nut Island Site

Secretary Jamie Hoyte of the state Environmental Affairs Dept. has joined the regional head of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in speaking against Nut Island as a site for the expanded sewer plant to clean up Boston Harbor.

But Hoyte stopped short of saying that Nut Island should be ruled out, as did Michael Deland of the EPA.

Hoyte said he didn't want to draw a final conclusion until the final environmental impact statement is issued.

He did say that information so far suggests that Nut Island could not be an appropriate site.

Hoyte also said there are major legal and political problems with Boston's Long Island as a site for the plant.

The project could not move forward without the cooperation of the mayor of Boston and the city council, said Hoyte, and both are on record as strongly opposed.

An environmental impact report is expected to be issued by the state this summer, when a similar report by the federal EPA is also awaited.

Nut Island Improvements Please Condon

City Councillor Joanne Condon, a candidate for mayor, visited the MDC's Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant recently and said she was pleased to find that improvements are being made in spite of money and staffing problems.

"Now that the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority is taking over the plant even more improvements should be forthcoming," she said.

But, she added, she is still concerned about the siting of future wastewater treatment facilities and labelled Nut Island and Long Island "inappropriate as either primary or secondary treatment sites."

Condon noted that there is a new building under construction at Nut Island so that chlorine used at the plant can be stored more easily and safely and holding tanks are being modernized to decrease the odors.

"Perhaps the best news," she said, "is that there has been a decrease in the amount of storm water entering the plant, resulting in less untreated sewage being dumped in the harbor."

She also said she noticed a "strong sense of professionalism" among the plant's employees.

"They have shown initiative and concern on many of their inhouse projects, saving the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars," she said.

Condon was accompanied on the tour of Nut Island by Supt. George Marcham and Asst. Supt. William Smith.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Does revenge ever serve a good purpose? Did you ever want to "get even" with someone who did you a wrong? Most people would probably say, "yes" - especially if a bad business deal was involved ... or an insult occurred ... or a snub on family or friends was experienced. Whatever the reasons, often times a deep seated desire for revenge surfaces.

Regardless of circumstances, vengeance is harmful and should be avoided ... When a desire for revenge is felt, the words of St. Paul should be remembered. In his Epistle to the Romans, he said: "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord."

We are taught to turn the other cheek when injured because reprisals serve no good purpose. It has been proved time and again that evil will punish itself. It is a fact of life that a victor often becomes his own victim when he tries to "get even" ... Is this not a fact we should remember more often? ...

Hide ugly stoop with deck

Does that concrete stoop at your home look like something from a construction site? Do discolored, uneven chunks of cement leading up to the doorway mar the beauty of your family's residence?

Breaking up and removing a stoop can be hard work, so consider something easier. Make it disappear beneath a deck of pressure-treated lumber.

A wooden deck is a much more inviting entry, and can be constructed at little cost and only a small investment of your time.

Pressure-treated lumber is surprisingly low in cost. You get all the usual advantages of wood — durability and natural attractiveness that blends in so well — plus the extra advantage of pressure treating: Built-in resistance to decay and moisture.

You may wonder just what pressure treating means. Simply put, the lumber has been protected by a vacuum process that forces preservatives deep into the cells of the wood. When you first see pressure-treated lumber it may have a yellow or green color. That's a result of the special treatment.

Pressure-treated lumber will fade to silver-grey when exposed to weather. You can allow it to go gray or stain it.

A few things to remember:

- Use and maintain an effective sealer on all pressure-treated lumber projects. Georgia-Pacific, the nation's largest manufacturer and distributor of construction materials, recommends only CCA or ACA type pressure treatment — the type is stamped on the lumber.

- Dispose of treated wood scraps in trash collection or burial, don't burn it.

- When choosing hardware, know that non-galvanized nails rust if exposed to rain and snow. To prevent rust stains, use galvanized nails.

- Check local building codes and follow common sense safety rules when undertaking any construction project.

To get photos, diagrams and detailed instructions about planning, materials and building techniques for many other deck projects, send $2 to Georgia-Pacific Corporation, The Deck Book, Dept. M, P.O. Box 48408, Atlanta, GA 30362.

For more information about building construction and materials, call your local Georgia-Pacific Registered Dealer. To find one of the over 15,000 dealers near you, call toll-free 800/447-2882 (except Alaska and Hawaii). In Illinois call 800/322-4400.

WAY TO HIDE AN UGLY STOOP — This 7½ x 9½ foot deck is an example of a project you can build to cover a concrete stoop. It's entirely supported by a ledger anchored to the house and by three 4x4 posts. The understructure and skirt are made of 2x8s; the decking is 2x4s. For information on deck projects, send $2 to Georgia-Pacific Corporation, The Deck Book, Dept. M, P.O. Box 48408, Atlanta, GA 30362. Copyright Meredith Corp., 1983

Great barrier grief?

Decorative lattice fences it out

A project needn't be expensive to be a major home improvement. Backyard fences or sunscreens for a deck, says the Wood Moulding and Millwork Producers Association, are good examples. Build them as do-it-yourself projects and you'll save some money.

Lattice, one of the most popular wood moulding types, can be used to build a fence to act as a visual barrier or as a barrier against wind, an unsightly view or unwanted animals.

It also makes an excellent screen for blocking the sun, adding privacy or architectural interest. It can also serve as an interesting backdrop for flowers or shrubs.

Since lattice is decorative, make sure the framework and posts are constructed of sturdy lumber. Be sure the lattice, frames and posts are properly weather-proofed with a good finish.

Among the more popular lattice patterns that can be used as decorative fences or sunscreens are horizontal and vertical crosshatch and diagonal crosshatch. Other handsome patterns include horizontal, vertical, diamond and herringbone.

For more information on a variety of lattice projects, send 75 cents for a copy of "How to Work With Lattice" to WMMPA, Dept. HP, P.O. Box 25278, Portland, OR 97225.

GET AVAILABLE INSULATION FACTS

Adding insulation to walls, ceilings and floors is bound to save money on the cost of heating and cooling your home.

But, says the Mineral Insulation Manufacturers Association, savings vary. Find out why in the seller's fact sheet on R-values, which show that higher R-values mean greater insulating power.

Insulation fact sheets can be obtained from building material dealers as well as from insulation contractors.

LOOKING FOR CONTRACTOR? ASK AROUND

Looking for a contractor to upgrade the insulation in your home? Start by asking friends and neighbors who recently upgraded their insulation.

The Mineral Insulation Manufacturers Association suggests these other sources: your local utility, home improvement association, or the "telephone book" under "Insulation Contractors — Cold and Heat," or "Energy Conservation — Products and Services."

Hot Water "Dome"™ Beats Getting An Ordinary Heater For Free!

Ordinary hot water heating systems are among the least heat-efficient going — especially costly when they use gas or electricity.

Circle Hot Water "Dome" makes and stores more hot water than any other system of comparable size.

Triple shield storage tank insulation originally designed for NASA stored water stays hot enough to shower in for a full 10 hours without a heating boost! Matches the capacity of a 100-gallon gas heater — on half the energy costs!

Warranted for 15 years — 3 times longer than most other units. By then, it should have saved you many, many more dollars in heating bills than its moderate cost to install.

*For larger capacities ask about Circle Combustion's Commercial Hot Water Domes.™

Heat Your Home With A Boiler No Bigger Than A TV Console!

The low mass principle: Heat smaller amounts of water much faster — and far more efficiently. Capacity is only one-fifth that of a standard boiler, but the Circle heats it almost 10 times faster!

Super seasonal efficiencies* approach 90% efficiency with a perfectly clean fire. Priced to compete with ordinary, far less efficient boilers.

Solar screens can help keep cooling costs under control for a comfortable summer

Summer's hot days are not far away, and with the summer sun will come those high utility bills associated with air conditioning.

The secret in controlling the summer sun is to keep the heat and glare from striking and entering your windows.

One simple solution that is helping millions of homeowners from coast to coast is SunScreen® solar screening, the product selected for use on The Energy Saving House at both The 1982 and The 1984 World's Fairs.

SunScreen solar screening is a replacement for your regular insect screens, but with one important improvement.

Solar screens not only keep out the bugs, they stop most of the sun's heat and glare as well. In fact, SunScreen solar screens stop up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare from reaching your windows and entering your home.

There are lots of additional benefits to having SunScreen solar screens too. . . for example, improved daytime privacy.

Homeowners report they can leave the shades up or the drapes open and still enjoy their privacy with SunScreen solar screens installed. The unique weave of SunScreen solar screens affords good outward visibility too.

Since most of the sun's ultraviolet rays are stopped, fading of carpets, drapes and furnishings is greatly reduced when SunScreen solar screens are installed.

Unlike films or other types of sun control products, SunScreen solar screens work with the windows open or closed, a nice feature during those times of the year when you want windows open for ventilation. Gentle breezes enter through the open SunScreen mesh.

SunScreen solar screens make interiors more comfortable by reducing glare from water, pavement, adjacent buildings or other shiny objects.

Exterior shading, such as solar screening, has been proven effective for years in such hot climates as Arizona, California and Texas. In those climates, shading is almost a must for east, west and south-facing windows.

In fact, many state and local building ordinances in California now require some type of shading on all new home construction. SunScreen solar screens are recommended and endorsed by many utility companies in those areas.

Woven of long-lasting fiberglass yarn, SunScreen solar screening is available in a choice of several colors to blend with any building exterior.

If your home has storm windows, you may have already discovered that they do very little to protect you from the sun's summer heat.

Tests have shown that the solar screens will improve the thermal performance of storm windows in winter as well as offering summertime shading.

Adding SunScreen solar screens to your existing storm windows can make windows year-round energy-efficient. The pay-back on a storm window equipped with SunScreen solar screens should be considerably shorter than for a conventional storm window alone.

Many homeowners prefer to have SunScreen solar screens installed by local dealer/installers. To find a dealer, look in the telephone book under "Screens — Door and Window" or "Storm Windows and Doors."

Chances are your local screen shop is already familiar with SunScreen solar screens and may even be able to reuse your existing screen frames to install solar screens.

The SunScreen solar screen material is also available in many hardware and home centers, and replacing your existing screens is not difficult for the do-it-yourselfer.

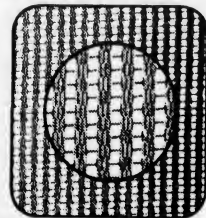

To be really effective, though, solar screens should cover the entire window area. So, if you have half screens or no screens at all, you may be better off to contact an installer to begin with.

The pay back period for SunScreen solar screens should be three years or less, even if custom installed, and that's based on today's utility rates, which will surely rise in years to come.

The modest cost of SunScreen solar screens might fit your budget better than other window treatments available and can offer year-round comfort.

For additional information, contact Phifer Wire Products, Inc., Dept. M., P.O. Box 1700, Tuscaloosa, AL 35403. Enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

THE SECRET behind SunScreen solar screens is this unique patented mesh design, which blocks up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare.

TURN PORCH INTO SUNROOM

Converting a little-used porch into a sunroom is a good way to get extra living space year round.

Properly planned, says Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn., a leading manufacturer of windows and gliding patio doors, a sunroom can also function as a family room, dining area or den.

Windows are basic. Their ability to conserve energy as well as open rooms to views determines the success of a sunroom.

Power tool manufacturers respond to growth in the do-it-yourself market

Approximately 84 percent of homeowners today consider themselves to have at least some do-it-yourself experience, according to a recent study conducted by a home center trade magazine.

In response to this large do-it-yourself market, power tool manufacturers are designing products to meet a variety of consumer needs, according to John Mawdsley, advertising, communications and accessory products manager at Skil Corporation.

"Skil conducted extensive marketing research before designing new editions to its consumer tool line and we learned do-it-yourselfers today demand increased power, ease of use and versatility from their power tools," Mawdsley said.

New technologies make it possible to increase a tool's power while maintaining an affordable price. This is particularly important as home handymen tackle more demanding household projects. The Skil model 5350 circular saw, for example, has a unique distributed wound field coil motor that provides more horsepower per cubic inch than conventional motors.

"User friendly" tools

Frequent use emphasizes the need for "user friendly" tools. Lightweight, balanced and compact power tool designs make tasks easier to perform and less tiring.

For example, the pistol grip design on the new line of Skil drills was preferred by a large percentage of consumers in tests by an independent research firm.

In designing its new model 7313 belt sander, Skil placed the motor over the sanding pad for improved balance. Front and rear handles also were included to provide the user with more control and comfort.

Do-it-yourselfers favor versatile tools because they are cost efficient, providing the consumer with a wider range of applications. Skil has responded with several new versatile tools, including the world's only Vari-Orbit Scroll Saw that blends quality and versatility at consumer prices.

It is actually three tools in one that can be set into auto-scroll to automatically follow the operator's movement or put into vari-orbit for different types of cutting action. Lastly, the blade can be locked into a straight line mode for a more traditional use.

Versatility, plus!

Skil also developed a new line of its Xtra-Tools, which is a power drill, chisel and hammer drill all in one.

The newer power tools have other conveniences that help do-it-yourselfers get the jobs done with a minimum amount of frustration, Mawdsley said.

Ask about special features

He advises consumers to ask about features like built-in blade wrench storage on circular saws and key storage for drills. The compartments keep blade-wrenches and keys with the tools so they won't be misplaced.

EASY DOES IT: the Vari-Orbit Scroll Saw can be set in auto-scroll to automatically follow the operator's movement, making intricate cuts and tight curves much easier to handle or it can be put into vari-orbit which allows the operator to select the optimum type of cutting action depending on whether he or she is cutting wood, fiberglass, metal or plaster.

"These and other features are available on new power tools this spring," Mawdsley added. "Do-it-yourselfers should take the time to examine all of the options and select tools that best meet their needs."

ENLARGE YOUR ROOMS WITH COLOR

Wishing for a larger room but can't afford the luxury of added space? Painted on color can work big wonders in small spaces by giving rooms a larger appearance.

Because light colors reflect more light than dark colors, they enhance the feeling of spaciousness by making the walls and ceiling appear to recede.

In addition to light wall color, pushing out the boundaries of a small room can be done with the use of equally light ceiling, trim and woodwork colors. The uniformity of shade will open up the room even more.

Quincy Loses 2 But Does Turnaround

Although the Quincy High baseball team, under first-year coach Bob Sylvia, was 0-2 going into yesterday's (Wednesday's) game with Medford, Sylvia was pleased with the complete turnaround in Monday's 5-4 loss at Malden.

The Presidents will be at Peabody Friday at 10:30 and will host Revere Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field.

Quincy was pounded, 19-1, by Weymouth North last Thursday but it was a far different team that dropped Monday's squeaker.

Veteran Joe Conti pitched all the way for the Presidents and did a fine job.

Joe Ciardi had two hits, Mike Draicchio played an excellent game at second base and reached base three times and Tom Logan also played strong defense at first base.

"The boys played an excellent game today and I think we are really getting there," Sylvia said. "I am still learning along with them and I think we are ready to win some games from here on."

"The opening game was a nightmare. Conti was unable to pitch due to a sore arm and Larry Taglieri, also came up with tightness in his arm so we had completely inexperienced pitchers. You had to have the arms in this game and we just didn't have them at Weymouth."

Weymouth, led by a three-run homer by Pete Donahue and a two-run triple by Mike Marini, led, 9-0, after three innings and the Maroons added six runs in the fourth and three in the fifth.

North Drops Pair Hosts Revere Friday

The North Quincy baseball team, loser in its first two games, sought its first win yesterday (Wednesday) when it played at Peabody.

The Raiders will be home to Revere Friday at 10:30 at Adams Field and will play at Somerville Monday.

North, under new coach Tom Fitzgerald, lost to Medford, 12-6, Monday at windy Adams Field, following a 6-3 loss to Weymouth South last Thursday.

The Raiders, short on pitching, fell behind, 4-0, early Monday but scored three runs in the bottom of the third. Medford added three in the fourth but North cut the lead to 7-5, in the fifth. Medford put the game out of reach with five runs in the seventh inning.

In the bottom half, North's Chris Rossi belted a home run over the fence in left center, near the 400-foot mark.

Mike Kubera made his first start for North but gave way to Jack Outerbridge, the Raiders' only seasoned pitcher, in the fifth.

Rossi had a single in addition to his homer. Outerbridge had two hits and a walk, Chris Ricciuti and Rich Brooks had two hits each and Dave Zuroms, Bill Connolly and Kubera one apiece.

"We definitely need pitching," said Fitzgerald. "Outerbridge is our only experienced pitcher. Kubera didn't look bad today, but we need another pitcher badly, as my number three man, Chris Cody, is out with mononucleosis."

"I am going to have to look at our junior varsity pitchers and see if I can get another starter from them. I was pleased with the way we came back a couple of times today and if we continue to hustle, we will win some games."

Against Weymouth South, in a well-played game, Outerbridge pitched all the way and, except for the third inning, when Weymouth scored all six of its runs, he pitched well.

North had taken a 2-0 lead in the top of the third when Zuroms walked and scored on Kubera's long double to dead center. He came across on Rossi's blast off the left field fence. In the fifth Zuroms singled, stole second and third and scored on Rossi's sacrifice fly.

Weymouth's six-run third was highlighted by Steve Campbell's tremendous three-run homer over the left-center field fence.

Brooks and Outerbridge had two hits apiece and Zuroms, Kubera, Rossi and Connolly one each.

Quincy Golfers Top Classic

Quincy golfers finished 1-2-3 recently in the fifth annual Myrtle Beach, S.C., Classic tournament.

Sixteen took part in the handicap event.

Gerald Phelan and Jim Bourden took first, defeating Barry Sullivan and Joe Boyd by two strokes.

North Quincy High Basketball coach Eddie Miller and his partner, Roger Hohmann, finished third.

Other Quincy golfers competing were Ken Furfari, Steve Melic, Dave Haight, Don Smith, Paul Cadigan and Brian Buckley.

The 54-hole tournament was held on three championship courses, Bay Tree Country Club, Indian Wells Country Club and Eagles Nest. C.C. awards were presented to the champions after the final round of play.

QUINCY HIGH principal Lloyd Hill, left, and Sen. Paul Harold, chat in Hopkinton before the start of the Boston Marathon. Both men finished but Harold was disappointed with his time of 3:53. "I did 3:27 a year ago, but the heat affected me, as it did all the runners, this year," he said.

First Ladies Win E-Mass. Tourney Opener

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy girls' softball team made the Eastern Mass. Tournament a year ago and the First Ladies with virtually an all-senior team, is off to a good start this spring with an 11-4 opening day victory over Weymouth North.

"Our team is all seniors so we need a good junior varsity squad," said Coach Barbara Webster. "We had our biggest turnout, 38 girls, and there is some pretty good talent with a lot of ninth and 10th graders, most of whom will play on Hank Conroy's jayvee squad."

Miss Webster has an all-senior starting lineup with Cyndy Callahan at first base, alternating with sophomore Terry Duggan; Colleen Phillips at second.

Beth Veneto at shortstop, Chris Cucinatti at third base, Debbie Herron in left field, Mary Ellen Thomas in center and Karin DiNardo and Patti Leonard sharing the right field spot.

Andrea Griffin is the catcher and Kathy Thornton and Kathy Keeley are the pitchers.

"Terry Duggan has really come along very quickly and will see a lot of action at first base," Miss Webster said. "Kathy Thornton looked very good in right field when Kathy Keeley came into pitch in a practice game with Milton. Debbie Herron has moved from right field to left replacing Karin Eames, who is not playing this year."

Thornton, who had a good season last spring, pitched a five-hitter in the opening day win at Weymouth North. Quincy overcame a 3-1 deficit and displayed good power in coming from behind for an impressive non-league victory.

The First Ladies will host Everett Monday at 3:30 at Faxon Field and will be home to Arlington Wednesday at the same time and place.

In addition to their Suburban League opponents, the Quincy girls will play Everett and Arlington of the Greater-Boston League, Latin Academy of the Boston League, opened against former league rival Weymouth North, now of the Old Colony League and will play Weymouth South, another former rival now in the Old Colony.

WINNERS in the annual Hough Neck Legion marathon were Maureen Kelly, women 15-25; Susan Emerson, women over 25; Tom Vecchione, men 20-30; Tom Elmore, men 15-19; Dennis Murphy, men over 30; Jennifer McArdle, girls 1-8; Laura Trubiano, girls 9-14; Brian O'Donnell, boys 1-8, and Robbie Allen, boys 9-14.

Chrisom's Debut As North Girls Coach Spoiled By Newton N.

The debut of Peter Chrisom, Jr., son of the North Quincy High principal, as coach of the North girls' track team proved disappointing last week as the Raiderettes lost to Newton North, 86-41, their worst defeat in years.

The North girls hope to rebound when they face Brockton at Brockton's Marciano Stadium April 29 at 4:30.

The Raiderettes, coming off another outstanding winter season, had six winners against Newton North, but Newton, in addition to winning nine events, swept three events and had a number of valuable second and third places.

North Quincy's winners included double winner Georgia Traficante, who won the long jump at 15-8 1/4 and the javelin at 118-4 1/2.

Also winning their events were Teresa Collins in the 440 (66.2), Lisa Fitzgerald, 880 (2:33.9); Mary Ann Kelleher, mile (5:34.6); and Tricia Barrett, two-mile (11:23).

Second places were taken by Jennifer Rafferty, 110 low hurdles, and Collings, 220 and high jump.

Taking third places were Killian, 330 low hurdles and Meg Leary, two-mile.

Newton swept the 100, shot put and discus and won both relay races.

St. Moritz Hockey Tryouts April 27-28

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Mgr.

A GREAT FUTURE

QUESTION: Why is the investment in land such a good, long term investment?

ANSWER: Subject to the law of supply and demand, land is the greatest "product" of them all. Its supply is fixed and the demand is ever-growing.

Although land is not expandable, population certainly is. By the year 2000, the population of the United States is projected to be around 300 million. What this means is that every month from now to the turn of the century, we will be adding to the population enough people to fill a city the size of Toledo, Ohio. By the year 2000, half of the population will be living in dwellings that have not yet been built and on land that has never been used for dwellings.

LAND SUPPLY IS FIXED, but demand for it is ever growing. This makes it an outstanding long term investment.

WEEK OF: APRIL 18

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19

Your independent streak surfaces; it's up to you to make it work positively. Unexpected letter or phone call can solve a recent mystery. Sports and recreation are spotlighted.

PISCES — February 20-March 20

Joint efforts can bring positive results, but financial advice can be misleading. On the homefront, persistence leads to a vastly improved situation. Favorite relative offers valued support.

ARIES — March 21-April 20

Last-minute patchups lead to a romantically upbeat week. Don't underestimate the value of rules and formal arrangements, no matter how casual your working arrangements may be.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22

Around the house, try not to neglect everyday maintenance tasks. Financially, enjoy some modest gains. Property matters benefit from several topnotch opinions. Renewed friendship is highlighted.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21

An unhappy friend perks up, thanks to a combination of cheer and empathy on your part. Low-key approach is favored in romance, but on the job keep a high profile. You're under observation.

CANCER — June 22-July 22

Key intellectual achievement is within reach. Decorating ideas may be too bold or offbeat; it's wise to put related tasks on hold. Career may include some travel after the weekend.

LEO — July 23-August 22

Surprise gifts arrive in pairs, and surprise guests are a way of life by Tuesday. Competitive streak surfaces and can lead to on-the-job conflict — or advancement.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22

Seek out new mediums for expressing yourself creatively. Promotion may be delayed, but commitments come ahead of schedule. Enthusiasm is partner's middle name from the weekend onward.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22

Financial planning is key activity this week. Behind-the-scenes happenings can lead to advancement in the near future. Family ties strengthen because of the role you are taking.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21

The key this week is to learn when to volunteer, when to say no. Friend is easily influenced by what you say. In romance, you have a clear idea of where the relationship is headed.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22-December 22

Emphasis is on the new, if traveling, you may consider an all-new destination. Bargain-hunting is favorable through the weekend. Tuesday-Wednesday find you promoting some choice ideas.

CAPRICORN — December 23-January 20

Key task this week is to make sense of the bits of information that arrive daily. Fashion sense is keen. This is a superb time for buying clothes and putting together a new look.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Although some say you're bullheaded, it's really your determination and commitment to a goal that people admire. You're a natural host — making guests feel very much at home. Appropriately, you can expect large numbers of visitors through the next eight months.

City Worker Wins $64,322 Back Pay

The Civil Service Commission has ordered the city to pay Thomas F. Blasi $64,322.90 in back pay for the 3-1/2 years in which he was laid off from the Veterans Services Department.

The Commission also directed the city to credit Blasi with 60 sick days, 12 personnel days, 20 weeks of vacation time and 180 weeks in the retirement system.

Blasi was laid off on March 27, 1981, appealed the lay off and was ordered reinstated by Civil Service on Sept. 7, 1984, without loss of compensation or other rights.

City officials could not agree on the back pay and other rights and the decision went back to the Civil Service Commission for a judgement.

The ruling is that the city owes Blasi a total salary of $66,740.90, less $5,538 he received in unemployment compensation, plus $3,120 in longevity pay for a total of $64,322.90.

Quincy Awarded Water Conservation Grant

A $1,210 grant is being awarded to Quincy for 50 per cent of the costs of a water conservation project in a municipally owned building, Sen. Paul D. Harold reports.

Harold said the grant, awarded by the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering, is for the installation of water saving devices to reduce water consumption in public buildings.

Funding is provided through the Public Building Water Conservation Grants Program established by the legislature in 1982.

Reikard Backs 'Just Cause Eviction' Bill

Jane Reikard, executive secretary of the Rent Grievance Board, testified recently at a State House hearing that without the so-called "Just Cause Eviction" bill "the other rights of tenants are almost worthless."

Many tenants, she said, are afraid to report code violations by their landlords for fear of reprisal, thus negating many years of work by individuals, agencies and legislators to secure such legislation.

"It's like putting a dish of candy in front of a child," she said, "and saying, 'I worked hard to get you that, but don't dare touch it or you will be punished.' "With the just cause eviction bill their fear will be eliminated."

Reikard called the bill "fair to both sides."

"The causes that are listed for approval for termination of tenancy, no landlord should have to be subjected to," she said.

"It gives the landlord the right to evict unwanted tenants who engage in the kind of operations no landlord wants to tolerate and at the same time it protects the tenant who does exercise his or her rights as a tenant under the applicable laws."

QHA Monitor Still Awaited

The Quincy Housing Authority is still awaiting the appointment of a monitor to supervise compliance with a consent decree in which it agrees to select 25 per cent minority families to fill vacancies in public housing.

Federal Judge David Nelson has not yet made the selection, his clerk, Cathy Lehane, told The Quincy Sun Tuesday.

The names of about a dozen persons have been submitted to the judge by the QHA and the Greater Boston Legal Services, which handled the discrimination case against the QHA which resulted in the decree.

MARYANNE TOWLE of Wollaston takes it upon herself to repaint a roadway marking at Elm Ave. and Briggs St.

Tired Of Waiting

Wollaston Woman Paints Roadway Marking Herself

By JANE MORRISSEY

Upset by what she says has been unsuccessful requests to the Quincy Maintenance Paint and Sign Department to have roadway markings repainted, Wollaston resident, Maryanne Towle armed herself with a can of spray paint and did the job herself Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Towle, of 11 Briggs St., spray-painted the faded marking 'slow' near Elm Ave. and Briggs St. She said she planned to paint a similar marking at the opposite end of the street Wednesday.

Her concern, she said, is because eight children under the age of four live on Briggs St.

"Children are children and are going to run out in the street. People drive very quickly down our street."

Mrs. Towle said she had the support of most of the parents on the street.

"I'm not a pushy person," said the mother of two young children, "I'm just trying to make a point."

Mrs. Towle who said she had been calling the department repeatedly for six months called again Tuesday morning and spoke to Superintendent Edward Lynch.

Lynch told the Quincy Sun he had never spoken to her before but learned from a foreman that she had called previously.

His understanding of the conversation, he said, was that she would wait two weeks for the markings to be repainted. Lynch said he was unaware Tuesday afternoon that she had gone ahead and done the painting herself.

Lynch also said he had spoken with Mayor Francis McCauley Tuesday and they had decided to have warning signs installed Wednesday.

Mrs. Towle's request was also put at the top of a priority list, Lynch said.

Mrs. Towle said that during her six months of calling she had received "no cooperation and only excuses."

"They said the staff had been reduced from eight men to five. They were busy doing crosswalks. It was winter. The paint machine was broken and so on. What I want to know is why they didn't paint the slow signs when they were painting the crosswalk."

Lynch said that Mrs. Towle's request had not been acted upon yet because of a lack of manpower and the weather. "That part of our job is seasonal. You can't paint over ice and snow."

Lynch also said that it is not possible to paint roadway markings and crosswalks at the same time because of the heavy template needed.

MFT To Challenge QEA

Union Fight Looms For Teachers

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy teachers apparently have settled their bitter contract dispute with the city but the after effects linger on.

The Massachusetts Federation of Teachers (MFT), rivals to the Quincy Education Association (QEA), are on the verge of seeking a Labor Relations Board election to oust the QEA as bargaining agent for the Quincy teachers.

"We have authorization cards from more than the 30 per cent of teachers under contract required by law to file for such an election," said Mary Margaret Tivnan of Salem, an organizer for the MFT.

"We are holding two meetings this week to determine the mood of Quincy teachers after the agreement was reached and see if we should continue our groundwork or file for the election now."

And other city employee unions whose contracts have not yet been settled are watching developments with the teachers closely.

"We are under a closure order as far as publicity goes," said Joseph McParland, negotiator for the police union, whose contract differences with the city are in the hands of a mediator.

"But," he added, "I am encouraged by the strong effort that was made by the city to make a settlement acceptable to the teachers. We'll have to see what they say next to us."

"Normally," said John Keefe, head of the Hospital, Library and Public Employees Union, "if one major union settles, a pattern is established. I anticipate the city will make the same offer to the other unions."

Mayor Francis X. McCauley agreed -- almost.

"The overall policy of this city is to settle contracts in the same area," he said. "The doctrine of fairness is still in force. We want to be fair to everyone. History says that when big unions settle, others follow."

Mary Curtin, president of the QEA, announced the terms of the agreement that was finally worked out after a marathon negotiating session that lasted from 10 a.m. Sunday to shortly after midnight Monday.

Members of the QEA, who staged a one-day work stoppage Friday, April 12, in support of their demands, met at 6 a.m. Monday, listened to the settlement terms and voted to go back to the classrooms that same day.

Curtin said the membership will vote on ratification of the new three-year contract within 10 days.

Settlement terms, she said, are these:

Teachers will get a "cash in hand" raise of 12.8 per cent over three years or 15.8 per cent on the base salary for the life of the contract.

The raises are broken down to 1.5 per cent retroactive to September, 1984; another 1.5 per cent May 1, 1985; a straight 6 per cent for the second year; another 4 per cent in September, 1985, and 2 per cent more in February, 1986.

Curtin said the teachers' vote to return to classes was unanimous but, she added, "I don't think there was ecstatic dancing in the streets on the way back to their schools."

Council Moves To Meet Postal Hike

The U.S. Postal Service's two-cent hike in postage rates last February has put the Quincy tax collector in the red.

Treasurer - Collector Franklin Jay appeared before the City Council last week asking for $16,500 so that he can keep up correspondence with Quincy taxpayers. The fund was down to less than $1,000 he said.

The Council gave quick approval, by a 5-1 vote, with Councillor Joanne Condon voting against it.

Break Through Wall

Someone broke through the wall into the men's room of the Rite Aid Store at 126 Scammel St., Saturday morning but it was not determined if anything had been taken.

The alarm at the store sounded at 3:35 a.m. but at that time the building was thought to be secured.

Squantum To Logan By Commuter Boat

Marina Bay Commuter Co. will offer four round trips from Squantum to Boston to Logan Airport this summer as part of a four-month test of rush hour water taxi service.

The new service will begin July 1 and run through October, according to an announcement by David W. Davis, executive director of Massport, sponsor of the test project.

"As the operators of Logan Airport," said Davis, "we have a clear interest in making life easier for airport commuters by freeing up traffic trying to reach Logan.

"Travelers to Logan during the morning and evening rush hours will find this new ferry service is a very attractive alternative to fighting traffic on the Expressway and in the tunnels."

Marina Bay will offer two early morning trips from Squantum to downtown Boston and on to Logan, returning to downtown Boston and Squantum. Two more trips will be scheduled for the evening.

Precise schedules will be available in late May.

Massport will provide passengers with free, direct shuttle bus service from the new $2.5 million fireboat-ferry dock at Logan South-Harborside to all airline terminals.

The ferry part of the trip is expected to be made in 25 minutes.

Bay State Spray and Provincetown Steamship Co. will also take part in the test, running four round trips a day from Long Wharf and Commonwealth Piers in Boston to Logan.

Action Postponed On $75 M Hospital Bond

City Council action on a $75 million bond for the construction of a new hospital, expected Monday night, was postponed when the councillors decided they did not have enough information.

"This is probably the biggest building project the city has ever been involved in," said Council President James A. Sheets. "Ultimately it may involve as much as $65 million in bonds."

"There are still a lot of questions that need answers."

One of the questions, said Sheets, would require a search of the deed to the hospital land to see if there are any restrictions as to changes in zoning.

"The city solicitor (Dean Nicastro) did not get the documents until Monday and he did not have time to review them before the Finance Committee meeting," he said.

Sheets said there is also a question about rezoning part of the land to planned unit development (PUD), which would give the Council some control over future development, such as a parking garage.

Had those and other questions been answered, he said, the Finance Committee had been prepared to recommend passage Monday night and he would have reconvened the recessed Council meeting and passed it.

Then the order is to go to the State Legislature in the form of a home rule petition asking permission to borrow up to $75 million with the bonds being repaid over 40 years.

"There are some strings left dangling that have to be tied up before we pass it," said Sheets.

Board Continues Request From Papa Ginos

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
Papa Gino's would like to open a second restaurant in Quincy, but the License Board wants to make sure there would be adequate parking at the proposed location.

The board also wants to consider whether the area is already saturated with restaurants.

The request from Papa Gino's for a common victualer license for 120 Granite St., Quincy Center, was continued to April 30.

The restaurant chain is to provide the board with a breakdown of parking spaces for the business block which also houses Grossman's Lumber, a bank, and another proposed business.

Atty. Howard Wayne, who represented Papa Gino's at the meeting, said that he believed there would be adequate parking for the restaurant which will have 98 seats.

Wayne also said that "unless there is a hue and cry", there are no plans to request a beer and wine license as did the Wollaston Papa Gino's restaurant.

That request was withdrawn without prejudice after overwhelming opposition by neighbors and city councillors.

Atty. Brooks Whelan represented four area restaurants, Taso's Pizza, Napoli Pizzeria, Nick's Lunch and Pilgrim Restaurant, who feel that it would be detrimental to them if Papa Gino's is granted the license.

Whelan said the businesses were concerned that the area would be oversaturated with restaurants, and he also questioned whether there would be adequate parking.

Papa Gino's would be located in part of the former site of Anderson Little, said Whelan, and would generate more traffic than that business did.

Another building may be constructed in that parking area, according to Building Inspector Allan MacDonald.

"Competition is the American way," said City Clerk and board chairman John Gillis.

"It's not morally right for us to decide who should compete," said Police Chief Francis Finn, "but we are concerned with oversaturation and traffic."

Summer Start For Office Building Construction

The Ricciardi Co. expects to start construction of a $6 million, five-story office building at the corner of Granite St. and Parkingway sometime this summer.

Developer Stephen Ricciardi told the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Tuesday that the steel frame building will take from nine months to a year to finish.

The building will have 45,000 square feet of office space on the top three floors, 3,000 square feet of retail space in two or three stores and a parking area for 74 cars.

"We hope it will be a landmark building that will uplift that whole end of the downtown," said Ricciardi.

The site of the future building is currently occupied by Photo Quick, the former Handshakes Restaurant, Grogan's Business Machines and the Goodwill store.

It is directly behind the Greenleaf Building, the former hotel and boardinghouse that the Ricciardi Co. remodelled into an office building four years ago at a cost of $1 million.

Ricciardi told QCBPA that Photo Quick probably will be one of the tenants of the new building.

As to office space, he said, the company is interested primarily in large users who will occupy 15,000 square feet, a full floor.

$1,187,465 Construction

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald reported that his department issued 54 permits for construction estimated to cost $1,187,465 during the month of February.

He collected $4,357.50 in permit fees and $573 in fees for public safety inspections.

The new construction included one branch bank at $180,000, 26 residential alterations at $160,580, 10 other alterations. Alterations added 29 new dwelling units.

There were also three removals, six signs and eight miscellaneous construction projects, including the conversion of the Mass Field School to condominiums.

Domino's Request Continued

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue to May 7 a request from Domino's Pizza for a common victualer license for 231 Parkingway, Quincy Center.

The matter will be referred to the Traffic

Commission.

Joseph Murray and J. Michael Hatfield of Domino's told the board the take-out business would be able to lease parking from Paperama.

"Parking is horrendous in that area," said City Clerk

John Gillis.

Board members agreed and noted that traffic is backed up in that area because of construction on the Water St. bridge.

Gillis suggested the board take the request under advisement.

License Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Continued to May 7, at the request of the attorney, a hearing regarding conditions at Piccarini Auto Sales, 20 Raymond St., Quincy Point.

- Granted a request from Covenant Congregational Church, 315 Whitwell St., Quincy Center, to conduct a flea market Saturday, May 11, at the church. No used clothing is to be sold.

- Continued to April 30 a request from St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox Church for liquor licenses to be used during its festival Friday June 21, noon to 11 p.m., Saturday, June 22, noon to midnight, and Sunday, June 23, noon to 7 p.m.

- Granted a request from Tully's Cafe, Inc., 33a Cottage Ave., for change of manager from John J. Tully to his son, Mark M. Tully, Police Chief Francis Finn cautioned Tully to be aware of a more disruptive crowd that has been patronizing the establishment.

- Granted a request from the Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., to conduct its third spring auction May 1, 7 to 10 p.m.

- A request from Mrs. Ann Marie Nathan of East Boston for a one day alcohol license for a 40th anniversary party Saturday, June 15, 8 p.m. to midnight will be rescheduled.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL LANDLORDS AND TENANTS

RE: Hearing Before Housing and Redevelopment Committee

There are presently several bills before the legislature, as an example Senate #227, and H.946, which will prevent the landlord from protecting the good tenant who he wants to keep as he has been doing from the bad tenant who either violates rules or creates abusive problems to the property or to other tenants, or even physical problems.

These bills with their "just cause" eviction title were bunched together for a hearing on April 8, 1985 in the Gardner Auditorium.

One person who spoke identified herself as "a long time tenant in public housing," and "a member of the Rent Grievance Board of the City of Quincy, appointed by the Mayor" and "which is a mediation service between tenants and landlords." Favoring this tenants sponsored bill certainly is not mediation.

She also said, "The landlords can evict you at any time for any reason whatever, or no reason." That's dead wrong! They can't be evicted without "due process."

Another tenant identified herself as "The Executive Secretary of the Rent Grievance Board of the City of Quincy." She also pleaded with the committee to approve the "just cause" eviction bills and gave a group of reasons very partial towards tenants and bordering on fantasy.

The Executive Secretary informed the Committee that she initiated this tenants bill about six years ago.

Is it correct that the Executive Secretary of the Rent Grievance Board is given authority to create policy?

Who is authorized to give her office that authority?

Who authorized the Executive Secretary to spend so much of her time in court on Thursdays with tenants?

Are these actions unauthorized?

If the board can continue to show partiality toward the tenants, how then can it fairly mediate landlord-tenant disputes and offer an unbiased opinion?

These proposed socialistic laws will continue to discourage the private investor from building desperately needed new housing, the small apartment house owner, and the good tenants when they understand these bills.

A landlord will lose control of his building to an undesirable tenant who can do damage to the property, disrupt the peace and quiet of other tenants, can take in guests and sublet the apartment, and including other issues, and delay legal action for about a year. The good tenants wouldn't dare testify against the bad tenant, if they haven't already moved away.

Landlords and tenants, write your State Senators and Representatives, and ask them to request the Housing and Urban Development committee to reject S 227 and the other "Just Cause" Eviction Bills.

"This is a critical position and by allowing us this person to work for a period with Mr. Melanson will lead to a smooth transition in our communication unit," said Lynch.

New Parking Garage Hancock St. Catalyst

ARTIST'S CONCEPTION of Quincy Fair, retail mall complex, at former Sears Roebuck store in downtown Quincy. Rehabilitation and remodeling will cost an estimated $4 million.

The prospect of a state-financed $1 million parking garage in the Parkingway behind the old Sears building is being viewed as a catalyst for the further development and upgrading of the south end of downtown Quincy.

"It will be very helpful to us," said Arthur W. Stavris, vice president of Messina Enterprises, which is spending $4 million to develop the old Sears building into "Quincy Fair," a mall with 90,000 square feet of retail space.

"Parking is a real big problem in the area. This will help us to market the building. We are negotiating with a large tenant now who wants 25,000 square feet of space and this should help him to make a decision."

"This will benefit not only the people in the old Sears building but the stores all around it," said Mayor

Francis X. McCauley.

"The spinoff effect of this garage will be 10 times in the private sector," said Sen. Paul D. Harold. "This will further secure Quincy as the business capital of the South Shore."

It was Harold who announced last Friday that initial approval has been given for a $1 million state grant for construction of the garage, which would provide an additional 150 parking places.

Planning Director James Lydon told the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Tuesday that, once the state gives final approval to the grant, the city is prepared to start work on the garage this summer.

"We envision a deck from the second level of the Ross Parking Garage utilizing the Ross ramp system to save money," he said.

We now have 110 ground parking spaces in the area that was laid out in the 1950s. If we restripe, we could increase that by 20 percent to 120 or 130. The second deck would have as many spaces again, giving us 220 to 260.

"We are ready to put the project out to bid once the state gives us the word. We will be looking for a package deal with the architect and contractor in the same bid."

Eden Milroy, the architect for Messina Enterprises which is already deep into rehabilitation work at Quincy Fair, told the QCBPA that exterior work on the building is expected to be finished by the end of July.

Then it will be ready for interior improvements to the specifications of tenants with the grand opening schedule for September in time for the Christmas season.

The building will have an "internal street" extending from the Hancock St. front to the parking garage at the rear with 10 to 12 stores built around one major tenants in the 20,000 square foot range, said Milroy.

"Very quickly now we will see the Hancock St. facade go up," he said. "We are holding the marketing until then."

Harold said government funding for the garage had been in the works for some time since the city had applied unsuccessfully for a federal Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG).

"There were 40 grants statewide," said Harold, "but only money for one or two. We were told Tuesday (April 16) that the money would be available for Quincy is the city certified matching funds of about $250,000."

The city plans to donate the land as its part of the deal and the garage will be owned by the city and operated by Kinney Systems as part of the municipal parking system.

Harold called it "the final project to complete the downtown development" with the Burgin Parkway extension open in October and Quincy Fair opening at the same time.

$450,000 Grant For Downtown Traffic

The city's new Community Development Block Grant will include $450,000 in federal funding earmarked for the improvement of downtown Quincy instead of the usual neighborhood target areas.

But, Planning Director

James Lydon hastens to add, the neighborhood programs will not suffer under the new plan.

The city has some $3 million in state Chapter 90 funds available for neighborhood work just as new federal restrictions have trimmed the size of target areas.

Lydon said the CDBG budget will be presented to the City Council in May in the form of a request to authorize the mayor to make application to Washington.

"Generally," said Lydon, "we get $2 million a year and traditionally we have spent it in the neighborhoods on public projects and housing rehabilitation."

"Now HUD (the Department of Housing and Urban Development) has put new demographic restrictions on us so we can't do as much in the neighborhoods."

"I see significant cuts in the future under the Reagan administration."

Lydon said most of the $450,000 that will be earmarked for downtown development will be spent on traffic problems such as improved signals and channelization of traffic flow.

"We will use the $3 million in the Chapter 90 funds to buttress and expand the traditional neighborhood programs," said Lydon. "It will give us more flexibility than the CDBG grant."

Dirty Streets Blamed On Fast Food Stores

"We criticize the MDC for polluting the bay," said City Councillor James A. Sheets, "but we are polluting our own city ourselves. Our city is becoming increasingly dirty."

The subject of the dirty city came up Monday night while the Council's Finance Committee was hearing

Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson expound on his budget for fiscal 1986.

Anderson blamed the problem — he called it "litter" not "dirt" — on "the proliferation of fast food restaurants" in the city.

"Students in my classroom say Quincy used to be a clean city, now it's just plain dirty," said Sheets. "I hear it consistently. We need to get a handle on it before it goes further."

Sheets suggested that maybe Mayor Francis X. McCauley should put together a task force on litter similar to one he named to study traffic problems.

Councillor Joanne Condon said she thought the Mayor's office should get together with the "people responsible, Burger King and McDonalds, etc." and get them to provide barrels.

"Maybe their licenses should be based on the commitment to clean the streets beyond the area of their stores," she said.

Pills Taken In Pharmacy Break

More than 16,000 narcotic pills and $1,900 in cash were reported stolen Sunday in a break at the Presidents Pharmacy, 157 Franklin St., South Quincy.

Police said the thief pulled a plywood covering from the front window, which has been broken earlier, and took the pills from behind the counter and the money from a safe in the rear of the store.

Among the pills were the drugs Percoset, Darvon, Darvoset, Valium and Tylenol with codeine.

Concerned Over Wollaston Beach Condos, Future Developments

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a newcomer to the Wollaston community, I have read The Quincy Sun with great interest in hopes of getting the feel of my new community and I have found The Sun to present a good reflection of Quincy. However, in the April 4 issue, I take great exception to the placement of a news release of great concern to anyone living in the Wollaston Beach area.

News that a 56-unit condominium development will take the place of the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome should not have run on Page 21 of a 28 page newspaper. This is a major news story for Wollaston Beach and its future course.

As someone who came here from Charlestown where people have had to learn the hard way about condos and how they impact on neighborhoods, I found it hard to believe that public meetings were not publicized and held to give neighboring residents a chance to listen to the developers, ask questions and get their points of view aired.

In Charlestown, I served on two neighborhood-elected boards, the JFK Family Service Center and the Charlestown Economic Development Corp., and in this capacity, heard firsthand from developers as to their plans and how they impacted upon the community.

Charlestown had long been the victim of development interests and now various community groups have been formed to gain maximum control over what Charlestown becomes in the face of pressures of developers.

Maybe, I am over-reacting but once variances are gained for one condo development, then variances will come again and again until Wollaston Blvd could turn into a Miami Beach, lined with oceanfront condos and no longer community committed to staying in Quincy.

Condos bring in the so-called Yuppie generation, a mentality of staying for a short time before moving on to bigger and better things. Quincy politicians should be making sure that working people, family people and the elderly are not priced out of the housing market, whether it be homes or rentals.

Quincy is rushing into a development state that better be controlled by community people or Quincy will turn into nothing more than a mini-Boston and lose its own character.

Community pressure on City Hall to control future development of the Wollaston Beach area (in fact, all of Quincy) is needed.

Already, the soon-to-be Marina Bay condo complex is creating two Squantums, just as the condo-ing of the old Charlestown Navy Yard created two separate Charlextowns.

A housing mix is both good and necessary but controls must be applied early on. Quincy is at the gate and now is the time to make sure that condos don't eat up the rental market and displace poor and working people from a community they have long been a part of and worked to build.

No new condo development should even be considered unless there is 1.5 parking spaces for each condo unit. How many parking spots will the Wollaston Bowladrome development be mandated to provide so as not to push more cars onto neighboring streets?

Before someone decides to say that I'm opposed to progress, let me say: decent affordable housing is also part of progress.

I have learned first-hand, in Charlestown that developers may not like heated community meetings but they come and present their cases at them and politicians in Boston's District setup have become voices for a community but only if it speaks up.

Community pressure upon City Hall is a necessary fact of life, if a community wants to survive progress!

Thomas Skudder Burgin, Quincy's one time "boy mayor" celebrated his 83rd birthday the other day.

"It was a very quiet celebration because it was only my 83rd," he says. "I'm waiting for my 90th to have a real celebration."

Burgin, now Quincy's elder statesman, was called Quincy's "boy mayor" when he was first elected at age 33 in 1935.

He went on to serve four terms as Plan A mayor to 1942 when he resigned to serve in the Navy during World War II and was elected Quincy's first Plan E mayor in 1950.

He has been working on a book — "Remembering Quincy" for a couple of years now.

"I haven't done anything on it for the past couple of months," he says. "But I plan to get back to it soon."

He has a lot to remember and write about of his years as mayor of Quincy.

Like the depression when some 10,000 people in Quincy were on relief rolls and another 1,800 on federal WPA and PWA projects.

"It was pathetic and I will never forget it," he recalls. The Hurricane of 1938: "There were 3,900 trees down and all the fire alarm boxes and police boxes were out of commission. There was no electricity."

Pearl Harbor attack: Burgin rushed back from a Cape Cod vacation and went 72 hours without sleep readying the city for World War II. A day later, 1700 troops were sent to Quincy and he had to billet them by that night.

"We had to commandeer Masonic halls, Knights of Columbus halls, church halls — but we did it."

And a humorous anecdote like the day Franklin D. Roosevelt visited Quincy in 1936 campaigning for reelection against Alfred Landon.

Burgin's daughter, Claire, then six, was to present a big bouquet of roses to Mrs. Roosevelt.

But just before the presentation, her father noticed she had a Landon button pinned to her dress.

"You can't wear that, dear," Burgin told her. "Why can't I wear it," she wanted to know. "I'm for Landon."

"So am I," Burgin — a Republican — said. "But he's running against the President of the United States, the man you are going to greet and it wouldn't be nice for you to wear that button."

Claire gave in moments before the Roosevelt motorcade arrived in front of First Parish Church in Quincy Sq.

A Secret Serviceman swung her up into the open car in which the President and First Lady were sitting in the back seat and plopped her in the President's lap.

Roosevelt smiled at her and said, "Aren't those lovely roses?"

Claire, apparently still thinking about the Landon button she had to give up, clutched the roses close to her, glared at the President and said: "These aren't for you, they're for Mrs. Roosevelt."

Roosevelt tilted his head back and roared with laughter.

'Boy Mayor' Turns 83

Eleanor Roosevelt leaned across to her husband and mused: "That should take care of you."

The memories are many as the years have flown by. A half century has come and gone since he first took office as the "boy mayor." Fifty years. Zip; just like that. Burgin, who now calls himself "the old gray mayor," says:

"I'm not as active as I used to be. But I still want to keep abreast of the times."

He's looking forward to the completion of the Hon. Thomas S. Burgin Parkway — formerly Upland Rd. renamed in his honor.

The extension will link downtown Quincy with Rtes. 128 and 3 at Braintree — something that could have been done — and should have been done — years ago when those two new vital highways were constructed.

"It is going to be a good thing for the city," says Burgin.

He plans to be there when they cut the ribbon.

Burgin and present Mayor Francis McCauley share a Quincy historical and political footnote: they are the only two mayors in Quincy's history to run for re-election unopposed. Burgin in 1940 and McCauley 43 years later in 1983.

How would they have fared against one another?

"We'll never know. "I'm not planning to run for mayor this year," Burgin muses.

WHO WAS THAT beautiful blonde Sen. Paul Harold was with the other day? She looked like a movie star but it was Queen Noor of Jordan. Harold was asked by Washington to host a reception for her in his capacity as a director of the Boston Center For International Visitors.

The queen, the former Lisa Halaby and an American by birth, was in Massachusetts as part of Jordan's efforts to further strengthen cultural and friendship ties.

months working to form a Quincy Teachers Union in opposition to the QEA, said she detects an undercurrent of unhappiness with the QEA among Quincy teachers.

"There is a significant feeling that it was not until the MFT responded to them that the MTA (Massachusetts Teachers Association, parent of the QEA) took notice of the Quincy teachers," she said.

The MFT, which has 20,000 members to 80,000 for the MTA, is affiliated with the AFL-CIO and thus, said Tivnan, has great appeal to the labor-oriented urban centers. It represents teachers in Boston, Lowell, Lawrence and Salem.

Mayor McCauley said he was reluctant to negotiate a three-year contract since the third year is "beyond the time for which I have firm figures for the state on aid."

"The figures are guaranteed for fiscal 1986," he said. "I am counting on the probability that 1987 funding will come from growth revenues the state has been sending to the cities in increasing numbers."

"I am counting on a continued strong performance by the Massachusetts economy that will translate into increased revenues on our cherry sheet. If that happens I'm confident we will meet the third year of the contract."

Both Curtin and McCauley pointed out that the raises are not subject to funding.

Intense negotiations for a settlement to the teachers contract began last Friday after a court ruled that the one-day strike of teachers was illegal and ordered both sides back to the bargaining table.

They negotiated from 12 noon to 5:30 p.m. Friday and "slight progress was made," said Curtin. They met from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday with "absolutely no progress," she said.

Then the state mediator ordered both sides to the Saltonstall Building in Boston at 10 a.m. Sunday and the contract dispute was finally resolved about midnight.

"There is a feeling of relief that the process is over," said Curtin, "a feeling of satisfaction that the issue of retroactivity to September is resolved.

"Retroactivity was the issue that kept us apart for such a long time. The School Committee was willing to move off that position Sunday afternoon and that enabled the rest of the pieces to fall in place."

"We do not have to go back to the bargaining table until the fall of 1986," said McCauley. "Now the teachers can go back to school and concentrate on the very good job they do teaching our students."

"It's an excellent settlement for both sides," said School Supt. John Osterman. "I'm pleased that it is all behind us. The three-year contract is helpful to all. We don't have to go back to the table for a year and a half."

Federal Aid Urged To Clean Up Quincy Bay

Health Commissioner Dr. Richard M. Ash urged that pressure be brought to bear on the city of Boston and the state of Massachusetts to seek federal aid in eliminating the Moon Island sewage disposal plant and the garbage disposal facility on Spectacle Island.

"So long as pollution remains in Quincy Bay our waterfront constitutes a potentially dangerous health menace," said Dr. Ash. "The Moon Island plant contributes, by far, more pollution to Quincy Bay than does the Metropolitan exit on Houghs Neck."

"The Metropolitan District Commission is eliminating the nuisance on Houghs Neck by the construction of the modern sewage disposal plant on Nut Island. If the Moon Island plant were modernized Quincy Bay would no longer be contaminated."

The pastor recalled some of the atrocities committed by Hitler's SS in the Bitburg area and said, "They have well earned their place in history as savages and butchers and it troubles me that any American president would do voluntarily what all the might of Hitler's army could not make us do; that is, to bend the knee at the altar of Nazi fanaticism."

Hymns sung during the service included "Christ the Lord Is Risen Today," "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," "O Beautiful for Spacious Skies," "God of Grace and God of Glory" and "Now, O Lord, Go With Us."

Salvation Army Open House

The Salvation Army Adult Day Services Program will host an open house to celebrate its sixth anniversary Thursday, April 25 from 1 to 4 p.m. at Six Baxter St., Quincy.

Interested people and agencies are invited to attend.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Did you ever wonder why the stalks, stems, leaves and flowers of weeds always look so healthy and green? It seems that weeds do best when you ignore them. They seem to do well without any human effort. But just plant a legitimate seed, something which would grow and bear fruit, and a battle royal breaks out! The four "B's".... BIRDS, BUGS, BEATLES and BEASTS ... do their best to torpedo the project.

Like the weeds and legitimate plants, there are great differences between men; between the weak and the powerful; the great and the insignificant. It is by determination, allied purpose. Like the weeds that grow, there are hindrances from without and within, but the outer hindrances never amount to much if there is no inner surrender to them.

Edwin Markham said it well:
"We are all blind until we see
That in the human plan
Nothing is worth the making if
It does not make the man."

Why build these cities glorious
If man unbuilds them goes?
In vain we build the world, unless
The builder also grows."

Beautify your outdoor wood and have long, lazy, carefree days all summer

You can prepare now for a carefree summer by sprucing up your outdoor wood decks, porches, railings and fences this spring with a fresh coat of stain or clear wood preservative. Advise the home improvement experts at Olympic Stain, a leading maker of paint and stain products for the home.

By following a few easy steps, the homeowner can prepare now for the long, lazy days of outdoor living that make summer the special time that it is.

The ravages of winter

Keep in mind, say Olympic experts, that your outdoor wood is more vulnerable to the ravages of winter than your home, since decks, fences and porches generally are unprotected from the direct effects of rain, wind and sun. They are more apt to deteriorate more quickly than the siding of your house.

A fresh coat of preservative stain or clear wood preservative at least once every two years will protect and preserve the beauty and durability of your outside areas, say the Olympic experts.

And the more beautiful your patios and decks are, the more enjoyment you and your family will get from them all summer and fall.

An easy weekend project

In most cases, an entire outdoor patio area can be given new life in just a single weekend, particularly if the following time-saving steps are taken.

First, plan carefully what is required to do the job right. Order a generous amount of the preservative stain or clear wood preservative you select well in advance.

Measure the area, plan out your steps, and remember to move your patio furniture, flower boxes and that barbecue before you begin.

Then, sweep the area thoroughly with a hard bristle broom, looking for signs of deterioration which may require scrubbing with a wire brush.

AN UNINTERRUPTED SUMMER of outdoor enjoyment is assured for homeowners who beautify and protect their outdoor decks, patios and fences this spring, say the home improvement experts at Olympic Stain, a leader in home care products.

Once swept and brushed, the wood should be washed with warm water and a household cleanser to lift out unseen patches of dirt and grime. Hose the area and let it dry thoroughly.

Protection and beauty

For the maximum in protection and beauty, it is important that you select preservative stain or clear wood preservative formulated for deep penetration of your wood surfaces.

Linseed oil is a preferred ingredient for both deep penetration and wood strengthening properties, say the Olympic experts.

Select a clear wood preservative for all unstained surfaces to strengthen the wood fibers while enhancing the natural look of the wood.

To add color, apply a coat of wood preservative, water repellent stain, such as,

Olympic Weather Screen semi-transparent stain in the shade of your choice. This adds color while allowing the natural texture and beauty of the wood grain to show through.

Find the color for you

An added tip — experiment with different colors of stains to find which one best complements your home and property.

Seek the advice of your Olympic dealer and try various stain colors on small samples of wood scraps or those hidden, unseen areas of your porch or patio to see the impact of the larger project.

Booklet available

Write to Olympic Wood Beauty, 1932 First Ave. — 800, Seattle, WA 98101, for your free booklet on protecting and beautifying your outdoor wood surfaces.

Presidents Get First Win As Conti Hurls 4-Hitter

Bob Sylvia, Quincy's new baseball coach, has been finding the going rough, but the Presidents finally entered the win column Monday with a 3-2 victory over Revere.

The Presidents (1-4) played at Somerville yesterday (Wednesday), will host Arlington Friday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will open their Suburban League season at Brockton

Monday at 3:30. Quincy's No. 1 pitcher, Joe Conti, went all the way against Revere and pitched a four-hitter. Quincy played a strong defensive game with Mike Draicchio making some excellent plays at second base and Steve Constas sparkling in center field.

"Our hitting was balanced and we have begun to come along offensively," said Sylvia. Last week the Presidents dropped a 5-4 squeaker to Peabody, the winning run scoring on an error in the seventh inning. Constas doubled home two runs in the fourth tying the score at 4-4. Sophomore Jay Lespasio's single drove in two runs in the first to give Quincy a 2-0 lead. Larry Taglieri pitched all the way for Quincy, giving up seven hits.

Raiders Have Battery Problems

Tom Fitzgerald, North Quincy's first-year baseball coach, is having trouble getting his team's battery charged.

First, Fitzgerald lost his No. 3 pitcher, Chris Cody, leaving him with one experienced pitcher, Jack Outerbridge, and a newcomer, Mike Kubera.

Then, in the Raiders' first win last week over Peabody, veteran catcher Rich Brooks suffered a hair-line ankle fracture, which will keep him sidelined for several games.

"I've had to shuffle my lineup continually and haven't been able to put the same team on the field two games in a row," said Fitzgerald. "Dave Zuroms, a veteran infielder, missed both games last week due to illness. With Brooks out, I had to move Chris Rossi to catcher and use Outerbridge at first base. We are still strong behind the plate as Rossi caught last summer for Wollaston Legion, but it would be nice if I could depend on a steady starting lineup."

As if things weren't bad enough, Outerbridge, pitching against Peabody, was struck by a line drive and knocked out. He was revived and pitched another inning and now is all right.

North Quincy's scheduled game at Somerville Monday was postponed until Tuesday because of the soggy condition of the Somerville field after the rain. Yesterday (Wednesday) the Raiders (1-3) hosted Arlington, they will be at Everett Friday and will be home to Newton North Monday at 3:30 at Adams Field in their first Suburban League game.

Chris Ricciuti's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning drove in the winning run and gave North its first win, 12-11, over Peabody.

The Raiders trailed, 7-6, after four innings but scored five runs in the fifth to take an 11-7 lead. In that inning Kubera's single and triples by Brooks and Ricciuti accounted for the runs. North couldn't hold the lead, however, and Peabody came back to tie it at 11.

Sophomore Chris Gray, up from the junior varsity, pitched the last inning and struck out two to preserve the victory.

Brooks had a big day with a home run, triple and two singles. Bill Connolly had two doubles and Ricciuti a triple.

After nearly overcoming a 6-0 deficit, North was edged by Revere, 7-6.

The Raiders scored five runs in the sixth but Revere added an insurance run in the seventh to seal the win.

Outerbridge, Rossi, Connolly and Greg McGlame had the big hits for North. Gray made his first varsity pitching start and allowed eight hits and struck out five in six innings.

QJC Rallies, Wins Opener

By PETE ZOIA

The Quincy Junior College baseball team finally opened its season and things looked bleak as the Jaguars trailed Cape Cod Community College, 4-1, going into the last inning.

However, Coach Dave Burke's team came back and scored four runs to win the opener, 5-4.

QJC will play its annual doubleheader at Blue Hills Technical in Canton Saturday, with the opener at 10 a.m. and the second game at 1 p.m.

Hits were scarce in the season's opener as QJC had only four and Cape Cod six. Bob Jaffarian pitched for QJC, striking out eight and not issuing a walk. Cape Cod had taken its 4-1 lead thanks to three unearned runs. Cape Cod returned the favor as errors enabled QJC to score its four runs in the seventh.

John Dolan singled to start the winning rally. Mark Chambers reached on an error, Mark Righini walked and Dolan scored on an error.

With the bases loaded, catcher Kyle Morton smashed a long triple to win the game.

"It was a nice game to win," said Burke, the only coach QJC has had. "It looked dubious for a while."

Save Gas and Money... Shop Locally.

He praised the defensive play of Downing, who had six assists, and Mark Loud, who had four. Loud also had two hits, including a double, and Jaffarian had a hit.

QJC had two previously scheduled games but New Prep and Keene, N.H., State were forced to cancel due to illness and travel problems.

Former Players Join Fitzgerald As Aides At Stoughton

By TOM SULLIVAN
Tom Fitzgerald, Quincy High's head football coach for five years after several years as North Quincy assistant, who was recently named head coach at Stoughton, has named two of his former Quincy players as assistants.

Fitzgerald has announced that Dave Austin and Vin (Bunky) Harte, will join him at Stoughton.

"I am going to keep one of the present assistants, Bill Cotter, and I will be naming another assistant soon," Fitz said. "When I was signed as coach, they told me I could name my own assistants and I am glad to have Austin and Harte with me. Both were fine players for me and had excellent college careers and I know they will make fine assistant coaches."

Austin, Fitzgerald's quarterback for two years and captain his senior year, received a full five-year scholarship to St. Francis Xavier College in Nova Scotia (they can play five years in Canada).

He played quarterback for five years and was captain for three seasons. He led the team to the Atlantic University Athletic Association (AUAA) title in 1982 and 1983 and was named to the all-conference team.

He completed 55 per cent of his passes, threw 40 touchdown passes and ran for two more scores and averaged 30 to 35 passes a game.

Harte played end for Fitzgerald and also captained the Presidents. Following an outstanding high school career, he starred for Bridgewater State College for four years and was named to the all-New England Conference team.

Raiderettes Defeat Malden, Everett

After losing its opener to Peabody, the North Quincy girls' softball team won its last two games, topping Malden, 9-3, Monday and Everett, 6-4, last week.

Mary Pratt's Raiderettes played Revere yesterday (Wednesday) and will open their Suburban League season Friday at Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

Peabody, Everett and Malden are three of the four Greater Boston League foes for North.

Ann Anderlionis was credited for both wins, although she was troubled with wildness in both games. At Malden Monday Noreen Connolly relieved and pitched hitless, scoreless ball over the last two innings.

Connolly, who plays shortstop when not pitching, leads the team in batting with a .500 average. Nancy Leonard, up from last year's junior varsity squad, has played steady ball at shortstop and third base and is batting .444. Another pleasant surprise has been Colleen Hannon, also a jaycee graduate, who has found a home at second base. Her long, bases-loaded triple highlighted a six-run second inning at Malden.

The team has also been helped by the hitting of Barbara Kelley (400), a senior playing her first year of varsity ball. She is currently the Raiderettes' designated hitter.

Women's Softball League To Open Friday

The Quincy Women's Softball League opens its 10th season with the fourth annual Patty Molloy Gauthier Memorial Tournament Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Rotary Field, open to all South Shore and North Shore teams.

The league season officially opens May 6 at the Collins Rest-a-while across from Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The league, started by the late Patty Molloy Gauthier, was the first legitimate adult women's recreation program in Quincy and started with only eight teams. Now, due to its popularity and success, it has peaked to 20 teams.

Because of its growth and competitiveness, the league was split into A and B divisions in 1980, thereby making it equal competition for both sides.

The players consist mostly of South Shore residents and the majority of the girls played for either recreation, church, high school or college teams. The age limit is 18 and up and each team must have a Quincy sponsor.

Patty Molloy Gauthier started it all and was the first league director. Her hard work and determination made the league what it is today.

In August of 1981, after a two-year battle with cancer at the Sidney Farber Institute, she died at the age of 29.

Her memory still lives on through the annual tournament and through the many friends within the league who remember her well. Proceeds from the tournament go towards a scholarship which is awarded annually to an A and B player in her memory.

Chuck DiNicole is the present director of the league.

ASBESTOS LUNG DISEASE

Asbestos dust causes serious lung ailments; the diseases appear suddenly, years after exposure. Today numerous SHIPYARD WORKERS, MASONS, and PIPEFITTERS of the 1930's-1970's have lung afflictions because they inhaled asbestos particles many years ago.

If you worked in one of those professions then and now have a lung disease, you may be eligible to receive money damages or workers' compensation. Relatives of living and deceased victims can also recover in some cases.

Kelley, Halloran Pitch Quincy To 16-2 Win

Dick Kelley and Al Halloran each allowed only one hit and one run in pitching the Quincy High School baseball team to a 16-2 victory over an All Service team of Quincy alumni in a five-inning exhibition game at Merrymount Park.

The high schoolers collected only 10 hits off the alumni hurlers, Jim Pena, Ed Daley and Paul Carey, but the three pitchers walked 12. Carey issued eight free tickets in the two innings he worked and, with four hits, they were good for 10 runs.

The varsity lineup included: McKinnon ss, Vargus ss, Mills 2b, DiAntonio 2b, Gambino cf, Salvucci cf, Marini 3b, Leone c, Stewart c, McDonald rf, Krabich rf, Wong lb, Babbitt lb, Curtin lf, Lomano lf, Kelley p, Halloran p.

The alumni lineup included: Allison 2b, M. Daley lf, Carrea 3b, E. Daley p-rf, Carey p-rf, Burnham lb, Ruutula lb, Pellegrini cf, Caulfield ss, Libertine ss, Osborne c, Stewart c, Pena p.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

TREES AND MONEY

QUESTION: Is it true that planting trees on vacant house lots can increase the value of that property?

ANSWER: A study in Amherst, Massachusetts indicates that, while planting trees on an average-sized lot can add between 7% and 15% to the land value, you can risk reducing the value by overdoing it.

The study shows that land value increases at about $300 per tree of six-inch diameter or more, up to a total of sixteen trees. The next ten trees increases the land value by only $200 apiece, and the 30th tree is considered "worthless." Any trees beyond the thirty may actually REDUCE the land value according to the study.

PLANTING TREES on a vacant lot can increase its value, but too many can reduce the value. For Complete Professional Service or Complimentary Market Analysis of your home, Call or Write: Delaney Realtors 12 Beach Street Quincy 02170 472-1111

Cheney Proposes $200 Illegal Dumping Fine

City Councillor Michael T. Cheney would like to end once and for all the problem of promiscuous dumping in Quincy by raising the fine to $200.

"In some places," Cheney told his City Council colleagues last week, "it's cheaper to pay the fine to dump in a marsh than to dump in our own city dump."

Cheney's proposal would amend city ordinances to read:

"No person shall use as a dumping area for the disposal of rubbish, trash, refuse, fill or other material any area not approved as a dumping site.

"The penalty for violation ... shall be $200 for each offense."

The order was sent to the Council's Ordinance Committee for hearing.

TV, Stereo Taken

Jean Maher of 49 Cedar St., Wollaston, reported to police that a television set and a stereo were stolen from her son's home at Prout St., South Quincy, while her son, Joseph Maher, was in the Veteran's Administration Hospital.

Concerned About School System, Says Condon

As a city councillor from Ward 6 and a citizen of Quincy, says Joanne Condon, she is very pleased that the teachers' contract dispute has been settled.

"However," she added, "as Joanne Condon the mayoral candidate, I must express my continued concerns about our school system."

"I am worried that one third of our high school students are failing two or more subjects. I am worried that, on standardized tests, Quincy scores are not among the highest."

"I am worried that it took months of 'work-to-rule' status, a censure by the Massachusetts Teachers Association, and ultimately an unprecedented strike by teachers before any serious bargaining was done."

Condon noted that the mayor of Quincy also serves as chairman of the School Committee.

"I think we need more leadership in that area," she said. "We must do whatever is necessary to ensure that an education in the Quincy public schools is a quality education."

"If it takes mandatory progress reports or strengthening the Parent Teachers Association or getting back to the basics, it must be done. There are many ideas that can and must be tried."

"I would give public education the high priority that it deserves."

Personal Property Values Update Starts

Real Estate Research Consultants, Inc., of Topsfield has begun the process of updating the value of all personal property in the city for tax purposes.

Representatives of the company began visiting business firms Monday for an interior inspection as the first phase of the project.

They will list all taxable personal property items such as inventory, furniture and fixtures as well as equipment and machinery used in the conduct of business.

The Topsfield company was hired under contract with a $50,000 appropriation by the City Council.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley urged Quincy businessmen to cooperate with the company representatives since firms that are not inspected will have a less reliable estimated value.

St. Mary's Boy Scouts Contain Forest Fire

Members of Boy Scout Troop 32, St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, saved the day while camping recently in Virginia.

The troop had gone to Fairfax County Park, in Reston, to camp and see the sights of Washington, D.C. during April vacation.

After arrival back at the campsite one night, some of the boys noticed a fire in an isolated wooded area of the park. While members of the troop cleared brush and carried water from a nearby lake to contain the fire, two members notified park staff who summoned county firefighting units.

"The alertness and quick reaction of these campers saved many valuable acres of parkland. Our thanks to Troop 32," said the Fairfax Park Ranger.

Boy Scouts involved included: Glen McKenny, trip driver; Peter Walsh, senior patrol leader in charge of the trip; David Abban; George Archer; Joe Hachey; Robert Grant; David Childers; Dave Francouer; Adam Auffero; Brian Campbell; Tony DeCosta and Steve Osborne.

Historical Commission

The Quincy Historical Commission will hold a public hearing Monday, April 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the Planning Department conference room on two proposed changes in Quincy Center properties.

The Quincy Savings Bank wants to install a flagpole on its building at 1200 Hancock St. and Bay State Ambulance Service proposes to add to its building at 1011 Hancock St.

To Replace Commissioner McCauley Seeks To Create City Health Board

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Francis X. McCauley will send a home rule petition to the City Council Monday, May 6, asking to replace the city's public health commissioner with an appointed five-member board of health.

The board, which would include at least one physician, would be named by the mayor to staggered five-year terms with the day-to-day operations of the department handled by a paid commissioner serving for three years.

McCauley said the difficulties he experienced finding a successor to the late Dr. M. Grace Hussey, who died in January, led him to the decision to go to the board of health form of administration.

Right now, the post of public health commissioner can be filled only by a medical doctor with a degree or experience in the field of public health who is willing to give up a lucrative practice for a $40,500 job.

McCauley said a nationwide search for a successor to Dr. Hussey turned up five applicants, only two of which were willing to work fulltime at the job. The field was narrowed to those two.

One of them, a woman from the Baltimore area, finally did not want to relocate and the other, a local physician who was about to retire, wanted more money than McCauley was willing to pay.

"There are not enough persons of Dr. Hussey's type around," said the mayor. Dr. Hussey was retired from the State Department of Public Health.

"I feel," said McCauley, "that because of the restrictions in the current state law the position would be difficult to fill. We were not getting a good range of people within the salary range."

The new commissioner, under the board of health, would be required only to have a masters degree in public health. The salary would be left open, but McCauley indicated that it would be in the $25,000 to $34,000 range.

"There is not as much need now for a medical doctor as commissioner," he said.

The home rule petition creating a board of health would have to pass the City Council and then the State Legislature.

"If the Council passes it before June 1 the Legislature could act on it by the latter part of July and we could have a board in place before the end of summer," said McCauley.

He said he would appoint the first five members to term of one, two, three, four and five years to start. He would also name the first commissioner for three years.

He selected a three-year term, he said, as the middle ground between one and five-year terms and that would not "saddle a future mayor with a long appointment."

The commissioner need not be a Quincy resident, he said, "but if a Quincy resident is qualified he or she would be encouraged to apply."

It is necessary to move quickly, said the mayor, because the commissioner sits on the city licensing board and, by law, there cannot be a substitute sitter.

Under McCauley's plan, one member of the board of health would have to be a medical doctor but there would be no specific qualifications for the other four.

Shipyard Outlook Bleak Even With New Contracts

"Even if we got all the Navy contracts we're seeking or even if we got a lion's share of them these layoffs could not be avoided," said Robert Sweeney, spokesman for the General Dynamics Quincy shipyard.

"If we got the best possible news tomorrow, there would have to be layoffs before there could be a recall."

The words appeared to stomp out all hope that the massive layoffs scheduled to start later this month at the shipyard can be reversed for many, many months.

General Dynamics announced by letter to its employees over the weekend that the current workforce, pegged at 5,267, will be reduced by 3,084 over the next eight months until it reaches 2,183 by the end of the year.

The shipyard is now in the process of finishing the last of five Maritime Prepositioning ships for the Navy's Rapid Deployment Force. When it is completed early next spring, there will be no work at the yard.

Vice President-General manager Gary S. Grimes said in the letter to employees that "there will be no slackening in our marketing and proposal efforts to win new business and support long-term employment at Quincy."

"We are determined to keep the nucleus of our skilled work force intact."

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly said he plans to continue lobbying Navy Secretary John Lehman to win more contracts for Quincy.

"I will re-emphasize to Lehman that Quincy has a modern facility and a skilled work force in place and it is terribly important for the industrial base of the country that additional work is forthcoming," said Donnelly.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley also contacted Lehman to emphasize the importance of keeping a skilled work force together

$4.8 - $5.5 Million Cost Consultants Suggest Expand Police Station Or Build New One

The architectural consultants who have been studying the Quincy police station have suggested two options for upgrading the facility.

Either renovate the building and add 10,500 square feet at a cost of $4.8 million or build a new station, possibly at a new location, for $5.5 million.

Mayor Francis McCauley said a third option — renovate the current station at a cost of $1.5 to $2 million — was discarded as inadequate.

The mayor said Public Works Department and Police officials will meet soon to examine the options and suggest a direction to the mayor.

McCauley said the study by the firm of DiNisco, Kretsch and Associates of Boston found that the current station is "basically sound but the mechanical apparatus — plumbing, ventilation, electrical — is in bad condition."

The study also reported that the amount of space in the station, 14,700 square feet, is not adequate for a department the size of Quincy's in the 1990s and the turn of the century.

It suggested that at least 25,200 square feet is needed.

"Simply to renovate the present building would not increase the amount of space," said McCauley.

Building an entirely new station, he said, would not necessarily mean a new location. The present building is at the corner of Sea St. and Southern Artery.

McCauley said he has no

new location in mind but he noted that, when it was proposed to convert the old Pollard School into a police station, neighbors rose up against it.

Any new location would have to consider the feelings of nearby residents, he said.

The renovations or rebuilding would have to be paid for out of a bond issue, said McCauley, although the city will examine the possibility of getting federal funds.

"The problem is that the economic situation in Quincy and Massachusetts is too good," he said. "Quincy is in good shape compared to cities in other parts of the country and the federal government likes to spend money where it is most needed."

McCauley To Send Extra School Budget

Mayor Francis X. McCauley will send a supplementary school budget of $1,937,861 to the City Council Monday, May 6, to cover recently negotiated raises for teachers.

School Supt. John Osterman told the Council's Finance Committee Monday night that the sum includes anticipated settlements by other unions for the same amount.

The Finance Committee approved the school budget of $26,175,000 for fiscal 1986.

Terranova Elected QHA Chairman

Frank Terranova, retired superintendent of maintenance for the Quincy Housing Authority, has been elected chairman of the QHA Board of Commissioners.

Terranova is in his fifth and final year of the term to which he was appointed by former Mayor Arthur H. Tobin in 1981.

He had served 10 years as superintendent of maintenance and prior to that he was foreman for a construction company.

"I am deeply grateful and honored to be elected chairman of the Housing Authority by the Board of Commissioners," said Terranova.

"Together with the QHA

FRANK TERRANOVA

staff which is second to none, we will continue to work as a team to our common goals of providing safe and sanitary housing for all our tenants."

B.C. High Goaltender's Equipment Stolen

Goaltending equipment valued at $1,785 was reported stolen from a car owned by Valerie Robertson, 136 Winthrop St., Houghs Neck, while it was parked at Atlantic Middle School.

The equipment was that of Kyle Robertson, who plays for the Boston College High School hockey team.

Taken were goalie pads valued at $600, skates at $225, blocking glove at $130, catching glove at $125, pants at $135, chest protector at $190, helmet and cage at $170, two sticks at $55, a B.C. High hockey shirt at $30, knee pads at $35, elbow pads at $40 and miscellaneous gear at $50.

The thief broke in through the rear door of the vehicle.

Shipyard Layoffs Stymie Sandwich Shop Request

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A Newton man applied to the License Board Tuesday to open a sandwich shop near General Dynamics, but board members cautioned him against starting such a venture in light of announced layoffs at the Quincy shipyard.

Francesco Cortina withdrew without prejudice his request for a common victualer license for Franco's Deli, 86 East Howard St. He can reapply.

General Dynamics recently notified its workers that up to 3,000 employees will be let go by the end of 1985.

Atty. David Butler, who represented Cortina, said that plans call for a 12-seat sandwich shop to be open 6 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Butler said the shop would mainly be a take-out restaurant with an expected 80 to 90 per cent of its customers coming from the shipyard.

"The shipyard is not doing well," said City Clerk and board chairman John Gillis.

Gillis also said he couldn't vote to put another restaurant in that area which has a number of such establishments which are barely surviving and are run by Quincy residents.

Ward Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro agreed that "it is not a good spot."

Joseph Hajjar of Joe's Pub, which has been located in that area since World War I, told Cortina that it wouldn't be worth his while to open such a shop right now.

Hajjar said there is no way to support a business in that area without the shipyard, and most businesses have had to get a liquor license to survive.

"We're not against competition, we're just against it at this time," said Police Chief Francis Finn.

"If things start to look better (at the shipyard), come back."

Barry To Retire In September

Fire Chief Edward Barry told the City Council Monday night that he was appearing at his last budget session before the Finance Committee.

"I appreciate all the people of the city who have been so helpful to me as fire chief," he said.

Barry, who turns 65 next Sept. 22, will retire at the end of September.

There is no Civil Service list in existence for his successor but it was indicated that the new chief would be chosen from four deputies, Thomas Gorman

EDWARD F. BARRY

Jr., Carl Valenti, Joseph Jackson or Herbert Rourke.

Norfolk Labor Council Endorses Condon

City Councillor Joanne Condon has won the support of the 13,000-member Norfolk County Labor Council in her campaign for mayor of Quincy.

Condon recently appeared before a meeting of the Council at which the importance of cooperation between the public and private sectors was discussed. "Government has an obligation to promote jobs," she said. "Development in my ward has created hundreds of temporary jobs and thousands of permanent positions."

"Not only are there more people working, but we have new tax revenues to help the taxpayers throughout the city."

Adams Shore Station Held Up

Attendant David Pearl said the man, with a woman passenger, drove the car into the station and asked for $5 worth of gas. When Pearl asked for the money, the man pulled his jacket aside and displayed a handgun in his belt.

He told Pearl to give him all the money and when Pearl complied the car drove off down Sea St. The car later was found to be registered to a Germantown woman.

The robber was described as about 26 years old with brown hair, wearing a cally cap and a brown leather jacket. His female companion about 25, heavy set with long brown hair.

Townhouses Planned For Beachcomber Site

Plans are in the preliminary stage to tear down the old Beachcomber Lounge on Quincy Shore Drive and replace it with some 20 attached, single family condominium townhouses.

The Conservation Commission was scheduled to discuss a conceptual plan for the townhouses yesterday (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. to determine if wetlands restrictions apply.

"This is all very preliminary," said Atty. Dennis Harrington, spokesman for Beachcomber Realty Trust, of which his law partner, Richard W. Barry, is trustee.

"The conceptual plan is not final and will have to be reviewed at all levels of government and require a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals."

Harrington said the site is not a wetland itself but there is a wetland across a paved road in the Strand area of Wollaston and construction might impact that wetland. The Beachcomber Realty

Trust proposal was described like this to the Conservation Commission:

"Removal of existing restaurant-lounge building, installation of new drainage system including underground detention tanks, relocation of existing drains and construction of residential townhouses with parking and landscaping areas."

The Beachcomber lounge changed its name a couple of years ago and is now known as Nostalgia.

Board Continues Vote On Papa Gino's

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The License Board said Tuesday it will decide May 7 whether or not to grant a common victualer license for a proposed Papa Gino's at 120 Granite St., Quincy Center.

The matter was continued to await the report of a traffic consultant hired by Grossman's which owns the business block where the restaurant would be located.

Atty. Howard Wayne, who represented Papa Gino's at the meeting, said that only 10 parking spaces are required for the restaurant's 98 seats, according to the Building Code.

However, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald said that there are an average of two people to every car, requiring a higher number of parking spaces.

Wayne contended there would be adequate parking for the businesses in the block which also houses Grossman's Lumber, and will house a bank and probably another retail store.

Police Chief Francis Finn said that the parking would be marginal and noted that Granite St. is "taxed very severely now."

Atty. Brooks Whelan, who represented four area restaurants opposed to the request, said there are not enough parking spaces for Papa Gino's.

Whelan said he passed the Grossman's parking lot Monday at 3:30 p.m. and there were only 33 parking spaces not being used.

He represents the owners of Taso's Pizza, Napoli Pizzeria, Nick's Lunch and Pilgrim Restaurant who feel it would be detrimental to them if Papa Gino's were granted a license.

City Clerk John Gillis said that the Burgin Parkway Extension, already under construction, will ease some of the traffic congestion.

Gillis and City Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro both felt that Papa Gino's would be an asset to the city.

MacDonald also said that Papa Gino's runs a good business, but cautioned the board about over saturating the area with restaurants and increased litter.

"We have to see what is best for the city of Quincy," said MacDonald.

ground floor lobby.

Lydon Escapes Serious Eye Injury

Planning Director Jim Lydon is back on the job this week after a close brush with serious injury when he was struck squarely in the left eye by a racquetball.

The fact that he was wearing slitted goggles may have saved him from permanent vision impairment. The ball was traveling at such speed that it broke through the slits in his goggles.

Lydon was playing at Ridge Racquetball Club in Braintree at the time, April 24, with real estate man John Barron, former member of the Planning Board, when he was struck.

"I couldn't see for a while," said Lydon. "That scares you."

Lydon was rushed to Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston where it was determined that there was no serious damage.

Public Meetings Were Held On Wollaston Condos

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I wanted to respond to the letter in last's week Sun by Sal Giarratani regarding the proposed 56-unit condominium at the site of the present Mount Wollaston Bowladrome.

Much of the contents of the letter I have little quarrel with regarding the general comments on the need for control over future development in the City of Quincy.

However, I must note my exception to the author's comments regarding this specific proposal.

Several public meetings were held prior to the recent vote of the Zoning Board of Appeals. When the developer contacted me last summer, I indicated that such meetings would be necessary to address the concerns of surrounding neighbors.

A meeting was held last October attended by some 50 neighbors. At the end of the meeting 46 people expressed general approval of the project. As a result of that meeting, the plans for the site were redrawn to increase off-street parking. The site as approved does require 1.5 spaces for each unit.

In addition, hearings were held before the Conservation Commission and the Planning Board. Neighbors were again notified when the actual Zoning Board of Appeals hearing was held in February.

Some 30 neighbors were in attendance at that hearing, and we met at length with the developer prior to the hearing. No one spoke in opposition at the hearing, and I believe it is safe to note that the community is very much in favor of the project.

As a result of the developer's responding to the concern for adequate parking, the only variance required from the Zoning Board of Appeals was for relief from the three-story height restriction. The new building will be four stories — the same height as the present structure. The mass of the building in relation to the size of the site is smaller than the present structure.

The site plan has excellent screening and landscaping provisions. In addition, it will remove a less than aesthetically pleasing structure from the scenic waterfront.

The project is an excellent one that will be an asset to our City, and I look forward to its completion.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Mgr.

WHAT GOES WITH HOUSE?

QUESTION: What stays with the property and what goes when you sell a house?

ANSWER: Real estate is usually defined as the land and everything attached to it, such as: buildings, trees, shrubs, etc. The buyer normally gets all the real estate, but none of the owner's personal property. The problem arises when personal property has become a part of the real estate. This is called a FIXTURE and DOES pass with the real estate. Usual fixtures might include: shades, heaters, ranges, screens, storm windows, lighting fixtures, etc. It is important that the seller spell out in the sales agreement what he intends to give to the buyer as part of real estate.

IT PAYS TO SPELL OUT in advance what stays and what goes when selling property.

So Long, Tom

Tom Henshaw and I go back a few years.

We both started at the Ledger when it was the Quincy Patriot Ledger. I was writing obits and church news and filling in once in awhile on the police beat. Tom was the office boy.

I always thought he was older than me. But if he was the office boy... hmm!

Those were lean days. Few of us had more than a quarter in our pocket by pay-day. A ketchup sandwich, on some days, looked pretty good.

Tom's finest hour at the Ledger in those days was a mercy mission.

My wife, Dorothy, was expecting our first child and the count-down was on. Finally, the call came on a steamy July 31st — about high noon:

"She's ready to go to the hospital. Hurry!"

I didn't have a car in those days. And just about everyone who did was tied up trying to get the edition out.

But there was Tom, sitting in the corner trying to mind his own business. He was more than just an office boy. He was a bachelor, and as such, could afford a car. It wasn't much of a car, but he had one. And it had four wheels and at least a half gallon of gasoline.

He looked panicky when I asked him to help but he rose to the occasion. Off to the house we sped. But, from there as we started for the Quincy Hospital, I didn't know which one of us was the most frightened. My wife tried to calm both of us.

He didn't think we were going to make it. "Please, not in the car," he pleaded.

But we got there in time. And, Gail, our first of our five children was born. (She's now married and the mother of two sons).

Tom was a sort of office hero for the day. Shakened, but a hero.

Well, the years began to slip by and we were both destined to leave the Ledger. But our paths kept crossing.

He did some work for The Braintree Observer and then, in 1952 hooked on as a reporter with the Boston bureau of the Associated Press. He then went to its New York City bureau.

During this time, while still at The Ledger, I was South Shore correspondent for the AP.

While in the Big Apple Tom wrote an outstanding series of Holy Week articles leading up to the crucifixion of Christ.

He did it in a newspaper style as though he were a reporter covering the events and filing daily reports datelined Jerusalem.

HENSHAW

I went to the Boston Traveler in 1956. A few years later, Tom came up from New York and joined the staff of the sister Boston Sunday Herald.

In 1968 I came back to Quincy to start The Quincy Sun. And seven years later, he rejoined me at The Sun.

So, as you can see, I've known him a few years.

To me he's one of the best writers to come out of Quincy. He can take the most difficult story and make it easy, interesting reading.

He's a history buff and statistician. He could probably tell you what John Hancock said when he proposed to Dorothy Quincy. And if you want to know how many votes Amelio Della Chiesa got the first time he ran for office, wait a minute, while Tom checks his little record book.

He can write under pressure. Deadlines don't faze him. He gets his facts straight and doesn't let personal feelings get in the way.

He has a sense of humor although not always appreciated or understood.

He got one reader upset when doing an article about odors from the Nut Island treatment plant — he identified her and referred to her as "the woman who raised the big stink about the big stink."

He did a series of articles on the drug problem in Quincy schools that won second prize in New England Press Association competition. It should have won first prize and would have but for the fact it was entered in the wrong category. The judges called the series a "blockbuster."

He played a major role in helping to get The Sun out during the Blizzard of '78.

Only emergency vehicles were allowed on the streets during those tough days. I was able to get a plumber's van from a friend and pick up key people at their homes.

No one stopped us, thinking we were out on a plumbing emergency. We put the paper together, got it to the plant, got it printed, and got it distributed... only one day late.

Tom did a lot of the writing for our Historic Quincy and other special supplements, as well as the "Quincy's Yesterdays" and "Sports Memories" columns.

But most important of all, down through the years he has been fair — a square-shooter.

If he's covering a controversial story and we had a few during Joseph LaRaia's stormy two-year term as Mayor — both sides are treated fairly. No slanting. Just the facts.

But now, it's time for him to move on. He was with The Sun longer than any other newspaper.

We're glad he had those 10 years here. And we'll miss him.

He's going to be a tough act to follow...

Shipyard Outlook Bleak Even With New Contracts

in Quincy. "The award of the fleet oilers would provide continued employment after the completion of the existing work at the shipyard," he said.

He also reminded Lehman of the outstanding contribution that the Fore River shipyard has made to the U.S. Navy since the beginning of this century.

Award of the fleet oilers contract, he said, would guarantee survival of General Dynamics into the next century.

General Dynamics Quincy currently has three proposals in for Navy contracts, one of which could be announced as early as May 10.

The yard has a bid in on one or two fleet oilers (T-AO) for the Navy at a cost of $174 million per ship. One T-AO is currently being built in New Orleans.

Several yards, including Quincy, are bidding on the other two.

"The bids should have been opened last year," said Donnelly, "but the Navy has been pushing it back. The latest deadline was last Friday but now it has been moved to May 10."

Quincy has also entered bids on two ocean survey ships (T-AGS) at $200 million each, with the winning bid to be announced in July, and on the overhaul of the submarine tender Simon Lake.

"With the preparation time needed," said Sweeney, "it would be many months before actual work would start at the yard."

Cong. Donnelly's office also noted that Quincy has a shot at a contract to build an $800 million multi-purpose stores ship (AOE) for the Navy but that's more than a year away. It is budgeted for fiscal 1987, which starts Oct.

Meanwhile, General Dynamics has opened a fulltime job placement center to find work for the 3,048 workers who will be out of jobs between now and the end of the year.

"Our objective is to find employment for all our laid off employees," said Grimes in a second letter that was sent to more than 8,000 industrial companies in the northeastern United States.

"We will have good people available from placement with a high degree of industrial and professional skills."

Grimes said the placement center, manned by General Dynamics, "employment professionals," will be at 10 Forbes Rd., Braintree, near the Sheraton Tara Hotel.

"This center," he said, "will provide a profile of skills, experience and education on each individual, conduct job matching with prospective employers and provide a facility where employers can meet and interview applicants."

Councillors Feud Over Appointment

When City Council President Myron N. Lane failed to appoint him to either of two standing committees, Councillor Christian A. Burkhard rose in the chamber, confronted Lane and called the move "an absolute slap in the face."

May 2-8, 1940
45 Years Ago
This Week

Burkhard, who had suggested the creation of the new City Hall and Collection and Disbursement Committees, reminded Lane that he had been a member of the Council for three years and it was customary to name the proposer to the committee.

Those named by Lane to the committees were: City Hall - Chairman Laurence J. Curtin, Aldo Della Chiesa, and William W. Jenness; Collection and Disbursement - Neil A. McDonald, Joseph J. Kendrick, and Louis A. George.

PUBLIC HEARING SOUGHT

Atty. Joseph Sugarman of the State Civil Liberties Union asked that the School Committee open to the public a hearing into the case of Elizabeth A. Graham, the Quincy Point teacher who was suspended for refusal to salute the flag.

Miss Graham, a member of the Jehovah's Witness sect, was barred from her classroom at the Webster School March 6 after she refused to lead the flag salute due to her religious convictions.

Meanwhile a petition was circulating among Quincy residents asking that the Graham case be put on hold pending settlement of similar cases before the U.S. Supreme Court.

WAKEMAN DIES

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin ordered all flags on public buildings to half staff in tribute to Samuel Wiley Wakeman, the Quincy man who became vice president in charge of the Shipbuilding Division of the Bethlehem Steel Co.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Recorded history dates back more than 4,000 years. During this time, and earlier, man has ever been learning.

The old saying, "We are never too old to learn" is most true. To the last day of our lives we should be learning something. If we are not learning something each day we are making something less than a success or our lives. It could be said that when we stop learning we stop living...

The age in which we live is the most interesting and privileged that any generation has ever experienced. There has never been a time when a person could learn as much as right now even with the unrest and turmoil going on all about us.

This thought was most aptly stated by Harvey Ullman: "Anyone who stops learning is old, whether this happens at 20 or 80. Anyone who keeps on learning not only remains young, but becomes more valuable regardless of physical capacity."

Let's keep on learning!

Richard Gaines, a GED examiner, will appear on the program with Alicia Coletti, director of the Quincy Junior College Women's Center, to explain how to get a high school diploma.

Helen Ross, director of career planning and placement, will speak to some people in the audience who have just received their general education diplomas and find out what it has meant in their lives.

The second program will be filmed at the German-town Service Center at Snug Harbor School Tuesday, May 14, at 7 p.m.

Dr. Carton's taped program on "The Real World," will be shown at 7:30 p.m. and the live followup show will feature Rosemary Wahlberg, director of Quincy Community Action discussing transitions from welfare to work.

to a previously filmed Dr. Carton show will concern Child Care.

Frank Santoro Announces For School Committee

Frank Santoro, citing the need for a stronger parent and community interaction with the schools, has announced his candidacy for the Quincy School Committee.

"During this crucial time for our children we must all ask ourselves, 'What more can I do?'" he told a gathering of supporters at his announcement.

"For me, the answer to that question has brought me here tonight to officially announce my candidacy to be part of the solution in helping to make Quincy's school system the great system it once was."

Santoro said that, as a teacher, he had seen other systems and, as president of the Citywide Parents Council, he has been the voice of the parents on the School Committee, so he has learned all the problems.

"During the campaign season," he said, "we should all remember that problem-solving is an ongoing process and not a permanent gesture because the needs change.

"The only common element in excellent school systems is mutual respect and cooperation among the whole community which it serves."

JEAN S. HEBENSTREIT

Christian Science," she discusses the healing work of Christ Jesus and relates instances of present-day physical healing.

"It is the change in a person's consciousness and life that makes all the difference, that brings the healing," she said. "And this change occurs through the power and practicality of the Word of God as we come to understand and utilize it."

Quincy Shocks Brockton, 10-8 In Opener

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's baseball team, which had been having an up and down season, opened its Suburban League season with a bang Monday, shocking unbeaten Brockton, 10-8, for the upset of the season to date.

Brockton, with an all-veteran lineup, had rolled to an 8-0 non-league record and is an odds-on favorite to win the league crown. The upset improves the Presidents' mark to 3-4-1.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team played Cambridge Rindge and Latin yesterday (Wednesday), will host North Quincy Friday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will be at Newton North Monday.

"This was just a great win for us," said a happy Sylvia. "Brockton is on a plateau above everyone else and I haven't seen a team this year that can compare with them."

"We just caught them at the right time when their pitching was off. We have had a few bad games, but when Joe Conti or Larry Taglieri are pitching, the boys play with confidence and they felt they could win at Brockton. These kids have a lot of confidence in themselves."

"No one gave us a ghost of a chance to beat Brockton, but, after falling behind, 5-0, the kids really began to hit and fought back in tremendous fashion. I have two sophomores in the starting lineup and they are playing like veterans. This win should give us a lot of confidence."

Conti went all the way on the mound for his second win and pitched much better than the score indicates. He gave the powerful Boxers only six hits and struck out six. A couple of costly errors handed Brockton a few unearned runs.

Brockton started with four runs in the first inning. Quincy came back with three in the top of the third and Brockton made it 5-3 with a run in its half.

Conti settled down and blanked the Boxers over the next three innings. Meanwhile, the Presidents added a run in the fifth, three in the sixth and took a 10-5 lead with three in the seventh.

Quincy had to hold off a Brockton rally as it came back with three in the bottom of the seventh.

Pat Calabro had two hits and three RBI, sophomore Tom Logan had two hits and three RBI, Joe Ciardi two hits and two RBI and Steve Conostas two hits and an RBI. Conostas drove in what proved to be the game winner and also played an outstanding game in the outfield.

Last Friday the Presidents made two big comebacks but had to settle for a wild 11-11 tie with Arlington in a game called because of darkness.

Quincy trailed, 8-0, in the fourth but a two-run single by Logan and RBI singles by Conostas, Jerry Frazier, Conti and Ciardi pulled the Presidents to within two runs.

Arlington led, 11-8, going into the bottom of the sixth but a single by Ciardi, a walk to Conti and a two-run triple by Calabro cut the margin to 11-10 and Steve Austin's sacrifice fly drove in the tying run.

Tom Ellsmore started pitching for Quincy and was relieved by Rich Pettinelli, who did a fine job over the last four innings.

Earlier in the week Quincy blanked Somerville, 4-0, as Taglieri pitched a two-hitter and had a no-hitter going for five innings. He struck out five.

Quincy got all the runs it needed on Jay Lespasio's two-run single in the fifth. Austin also drove in a run with a single.

More Problems For Raiders

North Quincy baseball coach Tom Fitzgerald continues to have headaches as ineeligibility problems have been added to illness and injuries.

The first-year Raider coach has lost a top pitcher to ineeligibility, leaving Jack Outerbridge to shoulder the pitching load. Fitz was forced to bring up two junior varsity players, who started Monday as North lost to Newton North, 11-2, in its Suburban League opener, making its record 2-6.

The Raiders played Waltham yesterday (Wednesday), will meet Quincy Friday at 3:30 at Adams Field and will host Brookline Monday at 3:30 at Adams.

Outerbridge, who has been forced to work more than Fitzgerald had hoped, was hit hard Monday but the Raiders handed Newton several unearned runs.

North was blanked until the sixth when Ted Shionis doubled high off the left field fence at the 385-foot mark and scored on an error. In the seventh Chris Ricciuti doubled to deep center and scored on a single.

Ricciuti also had a single. Bill Connolly had two hits and Peter Tufts one.

Last Friday Shionis hit a two-run homer to tie the score and Connolly belted a solo homer to give the Raiders their second win, 6-5, over Everett.

Outerbridge pitched all the way, giving up six hits and striking out six.

Everett led, 5-3, going into the last inning.

Earlier in the week North lost to Arlington, 8-2, being held to four hits. Injuries and inexperience continued to plague the Raiders.

"That's probably the best team we've faced," said Fitzgerald. "Our kids are hanging tough. We've had to move people around because of injuries and we'll be all right if we ever get some pitching and we get healthy. However, I now have lost a good pitcher to ineeligibility on top of our other problems and things continue to be rough."

Outerbridge had a triple and double to lead the Raiders. Sophomore Chris Gray started on the mound and was the victim of five unearned runs. Mike Kubera pitched 4 1/2 innings of two-hit relief.

In its previous game North was defeated by Somerville, 10-4.

Greg McGlane had three hits and two RBI, Chris Rossi and Ricciuti two singles and an RBI each and Outerbridge, batting well over .450, had a hit.

Quincy Girls Bow To Brockton

The Quincy girls' softball team, which found hits far and few between in two of its last three games, lost to Brockton, 7-4, Monday, dropping its record to 2-4.

Barbara Webster's First Ladies played at Cambridge yesterday (Wednesday), will face North Quincy Friday at 3:30 p.m. at Faxon Field. They will be home to Newton North Monday at the same time and place.

The Quincy girls were held to three hits Monday in its Suburban League opener, singles by Chris Cucinattia, Colleen Phillips and Andrea Griffin.

Last Friday the First

Ladies exploded for an easy win over Latin Academy of Boston as Debbie Herron had a big day with five hits.

Earlier in the week Quincy was the victim of a one-hitter as it bowed to Weymouth South, 5-0. The lone hit was by Cyndy Callahan.

Kathy Thornton pitched a gutsy game for Quincy. She was struck by a line drive off the leg in the early going, but stayed in the game.

Jaffarian Hurls QJC To 6-0 Win Over Blue Hills

By PETE ZOIA

Bob Jaffarian pitched his second straight win as the Quincy Junior College baseball team blanked Blue Hills Technical, 6-0.

Dave Burke's Jaguars played at New Prep yesterday (Wednesday) and will be at Cape Cod Community College Saturday at 11 a.m.

Jaffarian, a former Xavierian High star, gave up only three hits, struck out 10 and walked four.

"He was in great form," Burke said. "He seemed to get stronger as the game progressed."

QJC lost no time in getting on the scoreboard, scoring three runs in the first inning. The runs scored without a hit, three walks, a double steal and a costly error accounting for the runs.

Two more runs scored in the fourth when Sean Morrell and Mark Righini walked and both scored on Mark Chambers' ringing double.

QJC added a run in the sixth when Steve Ondrick and Kyle Morton doubled.

Jaffarian appears to be one of the best pitchers QJC has ever had, always coming up with strikeouts when they are most needed.

First Ladies In Track Win

The Quincy girls' track team, after a disappointing 80-47 loss to powerful Brockton in its opener, bounced back Monday to defeat Brookline by the same score.

John Franceschini's First ladies will host Waltham Friday and Cambridge Rindge and Latin next Tuesday at 3:15 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Led by Kris Mullaney's three wins in the mile, high jump and relay, Quincy took 10 first places in rolling to its first win.

Tina Eaton and Laurie Pitts won the shot put and javelin respectively in both meets.

Freshman Janet Morrell is improving steadily in the javelin and Deanna Crespi continues to impress in the high jump.

Jennifer Golden celebrated her return to action with a win in the discus and a second place in the low hurdles against Brookline.

Diane Parry and Renee Gaura are gaining respect early by placing in the first two meets and Marylou Wirtz is again off to a fine start, proving again to be one of the best in the sprints in the Suburban League.

Sharon Steen has looked good in the 880, winning against Brookline and taking a second against Brockton.

The biggest surprise has been the performances of Denise DeCoste, who has become a threat to all in the long jump and low hurdles.

She is Quincy's leading scorer, followed closely by Wirtz, Julie Coste, Sarah Lemos, Sheila O'Connor, Sue Parry, Theresa Kenney, Gayle Morrell, Patti Morrell, Suzanne Shea, Maria Poliano and Debbie Thompson have continued to perform better and will be a contributing factor this season.

The Quincy girls will travel to Falmouth Sunday for the Falmouth Invitational Meet and expect to do well.

Raiderettes Defeated By Newton North

The North Quincy girls' softball team's record fell to 3-3 Monday when it dropped a 15-12 decision to Newton North at Newton.

Mary Pratt's Raiderettes played Waltham yesterday (Wednesday), will host Quincy Friday at 3:30 at Faxon Field and will be at Brookline Monday.

Newton collected 12 hits off the combined offerings of Ann Anderlonis and Noreen Connolly. Newton took an early 3-0 lead but in the second inning Melissa DeAngelo sparked a three-run inning for North when she led off with a long triple. The lead changed hands again when Anderlonis gave up five runs in Newton's second.

Connolly pitched strong ball through the next two innings, but ran into trouble in the fifth when Newton North combined five hits and three walks for seven runs.

The Raiderettes fought back with seven runs in the sixth, highlighted by Connolly's bases-loaded triple. But Newton held on to pull out the win.

Anderlonis pitched a three-hitter last Friday as North defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 6-2.

She also had a big day at bat and her three-run homer in the fifth enabled North to overcome a 2-0 deficit. The Raiderettes scored two more runs in the seventh when Connolly, Ann Duggan and Anderlonis had back-to-back hits. Anderlonis struck out eight.

Tozzi In Tribute To Roncarati

Dr. Alfred Roncarati, fitness director of the South Shore Health and Fitness Complex of Quincy, has tended to the needs of many Quincy and North Quincy High School athletes.

He and his staff have supervised summer sports conditioning programs for the Quincy and North Quincy football teams and the North Quincy girls' cross country and track teams, among others.

One of his greatest boosters is Lou Tozzi, North Quincy girls' cross country and winter track coach.

"I want to thank Dr. Roncarati for all the work, time and consideration he has given the North Quincy track teams," Tozzi said. "This past winter we were fortunate enough to win the Massachusetts state Div. I championship for the fifth time in the last six years and we did it because of some remarkable performances from Lisa Fitzgerald, Meg Leary, Mary Ann Kelleher and Georgia Traficante."

"It is no secret, nor coincidence, that each of these athletes has been a patient of Dr. Roncarati in the last year. He has provided us with a service of the highest quality and his genuine concern and follow-up in each case has been outstanding.

"Lisa won the 600-yard run, Georgia was second in the high jump, Mary Ann second in the 1000 and Meg third in the two-mile. I attribute a great deal of their success to Dr. Roncarati. The rehabilitation programs and guidance he provided were an integral part of my planning and coaching strategy, and the athletes' success."

The other staff members of the Fitness Center are John W. O'Halloran, athletic trainer and exercise technician; Denise Morrell, exercise technician; Jack Bowen, exercise technician; Susan Kennedy, exercise administration and head aerobic instructor, and Deborah Flanagan, physical therapist and exercise technician.

Dr. Roncarati, Dr. George McManama and Dr. Michael Berry direct the South Shore Sports Medicine and Physical Therapy Clinic.

STEVE NELSON, the Patriot's standout inside linebacker, will be the guest speaker at the Quincy Bowling Little Loop's 31st annual awards dinner May 8 at 6:45 at the Montclair Men's Club. Nelson started in the 1985 Pro Bowl in Honolulu.

Quincy Students In Greek Drama Festival At AWHs

Two Greek dramas presented in part by five Quincy sophomores at Archbishop Williams High School were chosen as outstanding productions recently at a Greek drama festival.

"Unchangeable Fate" was written and performed in part by Nancy Derrane, Bernie Haugh, Gail Saluti and Tricia Sheridan. "Octavia" was written and performed in part by Eileen McCluskey.

The purpose of the festival was to demonstrate the students' knowledge of the elements of Greek tragedy. Each presentation was written and performed by five to seven students. The assignment followed the students' study of Sophocles' masterpiece "Antigone". Other participating Quincy sophomores included Pam Deskins, Bob Furlan, Christine McSweeney, Matthew O'Brien, Maura O'Gara, Jackie Riley, Kerri Savage, Katie Wilson and Linda Naughton.

More Financial Aid Available For Students

A total of 689 students from Rep. Michael W. Morrissey's district are receiving $675,430 in state college scholarship money this year.

"There is more financial aid than ever before available to help Massachusetts students keep their plans for college," said Morrissey.

He noted that a $16 million increase enacted by the legislature last year means that there is now a total of $50 million in the aid budget, providing help for some 44,000 students.

considering a bill now that would increase state student aid funds by an additional $25 million," said Morrissey. "This would help 15,000 additional Massachusetts students."

He said 1,308 students from his district applied for a state scholarship last year. Information about how and when to apply for the state scholarship is available from high school guidance officers, college financial aid officers and the State Scholarship Office at 727-9420.

LaRaia To Introduce Dumpster Ordinance

City Council Joseph J. LaRaia said he plans to introduce an ordinance at the Monday, May 6, Council meeting that would regulate the visibility dumpsters, particularly in the business areas.

LaRaia said he has been conferring with the city solicitor's office and department heads on actions that could be taken to enhance the appearance of the city's commercial districts.

The Department of Public Works, at LaRaia's request, is also researching a strategy to provide refuse containers in appropriate locations to help reduce the problem of litter.

LaRaia, who is chairman of the Council's Committee on Downtown and Economic Development, said he welcomes suggestions from residents of Quincy on the matter of downtown litter.

Woman, 80, Hurt In South Quincy Mishap

An 80-year-old West Bridgewater woman was injured when she apparently lost control of her car while backing out of a South Quincy driveway, struck a tree, another car and a home.

Evelyn Niemi was in good condition at Quincy City Hospital.

Police said Mrs. Niemi, who turned 80 last Thursday, was backing out of a driveway on Alton Rd. when she hit the accelerator too hard.

The car leaped backward, struck a tree across the street, then a car driven by Stephen Hogan of Braintree and bounced into the front of John Orlando's home at 100 Alton Rd.

Quincy teachers should be receiving money from their new contract with the city this week.

The City Council unanimously passed a request Monday night from the School Committee for $315,982 so that retroactive checks for teachers can be processed on or before Friday.

The Quincy Education Association membership overwhelmingly ratified the recently negotiated contract last week.

Verbal approval of the contract was given by non-partial members of the School Committee even though the matter was not scheduled to officially come before the committee until the next meeting Wednesday, May 15.

School Supt. John Osterman told the Council that the School Committee intends to formally ratify the contract at its next meeting.

Osterman also said that the contract covers substitute teacher's pay which will increase from $35 to $50 daily in the fall.

He said that the pay raise retroactive to September will be paid this week.

"I'm happy to have it settled," commented QEA president Mary Curtin at the meeting.

Mrs. Curtin had thought that ratification by the school committee might be delayed for a month to a year when the Mass Federation of Teachers filed recently with the Labor Relations Commission for a consent election.

But Mary Margaret Tivnan, organizing representative for the MFT, said her organization waived its right to file the charge of unfair labor practices if the school committee ratified the contract.

The contract includes a "cash in hand" raise of 12.8 per cent over three years of 15.8 per cent on the base salary for the life of the contract.

Fire Station Renovation

The City Council approved an $8,000 appropriation for redesign of the Quantum Fire Station.

The work will make the station "more livable, practical and efficient," said Public Works Commr. Paul Anderson, who noted the goal is to complete work by winter.

Council Urges Navy To Give GD Work

By DAN CONNOLLY and NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The Quincy City Council has urged the Navy Department to consider awarding future shipbuilding contracts to General Dynamics.

The appeal followed the bad news the company lost its bid for a $222.5-million Navy contract that would keep the sinking shipyard afloat.

Action at the Council's Monday night meeting included passing a resolve, introduced by Councillor-at-large Richard J. Koch Jr., that the council request its legislative delegation to urge the Navy Secretary, John Lehman, to do all that is possible to see that government shipbuilding contracts are awarded to General Dynamics in order to keep the skilled work force intact.

Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia suggested the shipyard possibly convert to some other kind of work; and urged Congress and others who have influence, to promote work at the yard.

Councillor Michael T. Cheney said Quincy should join surrounding communities in a lobbying effort to get work for the yard, to insure workers will be unemployed for a short period, Quincy should take a leadership role in the lobbying he said.

Councillor Patricia Toland asked city Planning Department to find some industry that can come in to take up the slack.

Councillor Joanne Condon said reduction of tax dollars as a result of the layoffs will give the state more reason to help Quincy with fiscal aid.

Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro suggested sending a letter to the Secretary of the Navy urging him to name General Dynamic shipyard a recipient of one of the future Navy oiler contracts.

He also suggested Quincy meet with other communities in a lobbying effort.

Council President James A. Sheets voiced his approval of a joint community lobby. Sheets also expressed concern that General Dynamics did not receive just level of contracts because U.S. Senators Edward Kennedy and John Kerry voted against new defense weapons. Sheets said that senators not supportive of President Reagan's defense budget, administration, and Navy, are not going to take contracts away from the South where they support the present administration.

Mayor Francis X. McCauley said: "I'm very disappointed that the Navy did not see fit to award any or all the contract to General Dynamics, especially in the face of scheduled layoffs."

"It is an intensely competitive situation and there is not enough work to go

Funding for the street resurfacing projects comes from three sources: city appropriations, Chapter 90 funds and Community Development Block Grant funds.

McCauley said that work will begin within the next few weeks.

May Bicycle Safety Month

Mayor Francis McCauley has proclaimed May as "Bicycle Safety Month" with special attention given to safe driving practices.

Mrs. Buckley's appointment is effective immediately and will continue until Jan. 1, 1987.

Mrs. Buckley has been active in local affairs for many years.

She was an original member on the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Woman and served as chairperson for one year.

Mrs. Buckley was a member of the planning committee that raised funds resulting in the establishment of St. Boniface Parish and church.

Bridge Feasibility Requested

The City Council voted Monday night to request that the mayor and public works commissioner study the feasibility of erecting a structure from Star Market parking lot over to the Paperama parking lot similar to what was there prior to construction of the Burgin Parkway Extension.

David Peterson Candidate For Mayor

David J. Peterson, 36, of Willard St., West Quincy, a computer analyst, has announced his candidacy for the mayor's race.

Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon is also challenging incumbent Francis X. McCauley.

Peterson's entry assures a Preliminary election.

"My candidacy," said Peterson, "will revive the passions that once made Quincy the birthplace of American freedom, so that our depression-wracked city may trigger a second American Revolution."

"Our once proud city is seeing its industries shut down and our precious young people destroyed by dope."

"Rebuilding our ship-building industry is only the first step to open 10,000 to 12,000 new jobs at the Quincy Shipyard, immediately, and create a Superport facility here for use in exporting U.S. technology to Africa and the underdeveloped countries," claimed the candidate.

Peterson once ran for mayor of Hartford. His wife, Patricia, ran for state representative last fall against incumbent Michael Morrissey, D-Quincy, and garnered 18 per cent of the vote.

He and his wife are members of Lyndon LaRouche's National Democratic Policy Committee which he described as a "grassroots faction of the Democratic party."

"We must launch an economic invasion of Africa to prevent a holocaust of disease and starvation 100 times worse than the Nazi exterminations."

Peterson charged, "the outbreaks of cholera, now spreading in up to 22 famine stricken countries means we are entering the beginning of global pandemics not seen since the Black Death wiped out over one half of Europe."

"The World Bank and the International Monetary Fund (IMF) have targeted Africa and are implementing genocide to make the continent a depopulated game reservation as envisioned by Cecil Rhodes."

"The very organizations like Oxfam and the U.N. that purport to feed Africa, are in reality herding the population into Massive concentration camps to await certain death from diseases," said Peterson.

"One or two more years of the 'recovery', the U.S. will be completely unable to defend our nation against a Soviet aggressor, which now dwarfs us in steel and every category of production."

"During my campaign I will make it crystal clear to every voter that if the American people allow Africa to perish at the hands of IMF genocide we will have lost the greatness thru which we won the Revolution and the Civil War, and, like Africa, we surely will perish," he closed.

Condon Campaigning Door-To-Door

Mayoral candidate Joanne Condon continued her city-wide campaigning by going door-to-door in Ward 1.

She also attended coffee hours at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Adams of Sea St., Mr. and Mrs. John Menz of Stoughton St., and Alicia Hirl of Quadrant Circle.

Mrs. Condon met with dozens of area residents at these coffee hours to talk about local and city-wide problems.

The pollution of Quincy Bay, the state of the school system, and the decrease in manpower in the police and fire departments were the problems most frequently mentioned, Councillor Condon reported.

Con Com To Meet Regarding Nut Island

The Quincy Conservation Commission will meet Wednesday, May 15, to consider a request for determination of applicability filed by the MDC regarding the Nut Island Treatment Plant.

The request regards cleaning and rehabilitation of two sewage effluent outfalls which discharge the primary level treatment wastewater from the Nut Island Treatment Plant into Quincy Bay/Boston Harbor.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room at Quincy City Hall Annex.

Free Blood Pressure Clinic

City To Refuse MDC Trash

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

In an effort to prolong the life of the West Quincy landfill, the city is notifying the MDC it will no longer take its trash.

Public Works Commr. Paul Anderson told the City Council's Disposal and Sanitary Problems Committee Monday night that the city will no longer extend that courtesy to the MDC.

Anderson told the committee that the landfill still has another year of life and that the situation has not reached a total crisis state.

But, Anderson told the council's Disposal and Sanitary Problems Committee, action must be taken on a state level to deal with the landfill problem.

According to Anderson,

there are two weeks of life left at the Phase III area of the landfill, and nine months to a year at the Phase I and Phase II areas.

Beyond that, said Anderson, state approvals would be needed for three to five more years. The lease on the land expires in 1991.

"The landfill crisis in Quincy has not reached a total crisis," said Anderson.

"The city of Quincy is still legal. There are no violations of standards according to the state Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE).

Anderson said the alternatives to dealing with the city's solid waste are to have a landfill, to burn solid waste or to ship it out of town.

"But there are no licensed landfills that can take more than they are taking," said Anderson.

Council President James Sheets, in whose ward the landfill is located, said that "the problem with landfill is that you are burying trash and you are going to have problems."

Sheets also said he was concerned with the impact of the dump on development.

Councillor - at - large Patricia Toland suggested that the council draft legislation or an ordinance asking the Massachusetts Municipal Association to discuss the landfill problem at its October meeting.

"I think it has reached a crisis state," said Mrs. Toland. "It is a statewide problem."

Daniel Joyce of 95 West Quantum St. said that he owns property near the landfill and the situation is a "disgrace".

"Nothing has ever been done," said Joyce, "and I've been coming to these meetings for 15 years."

Anderson told the council, "there has to be a state mandated program."

"There are 83 communities with problems with landfill."

"The problem has to be addressed at the state level."

Condon GD Petition Gets Favorable Report

By DAN CONNOLLY

Quincy's home rule petition asking the state legislature for an interest free loan of $17,715,999 with which to satisfy a tax abatement judgement won by General Dynamics shipyard, has received a favorable report at the State House.

In a letter to Councillor

Joanne Condon who filed the petition in the City Council Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary in the House of Representatives, reported the petition had received a favorable report from the Joint Committee on Local Affairs. Brownell's letter said the next step for the bill is before the Senate Committee on Ways and Means.

Condon said "Brownell deserves an A-Plus for his efforts on behalf of this most important piece of legislation."

Condon added the loan amount would be paid back to the state in equal installments of $1,771,600 over a period of 10 years as a deduction in the amount of the city's state aid.

Condon filed the petition after he researched, found a number of instances in which the state has bailed communities out in similar situations.

"The money is available at the state levels," she said.

The State Legislature set a new policy recently of helping cities and towns that have gotten themselves in trouble with judgements.

There have been at least four cases, where the state has bailed out Everett, Taunton, Medford and Revere.

The Revere case, in which the city was judged to have over-assessed Wonderland dog track and had to repay $2 million, closely approximates Quincy's dilemma.

Dedham Student Killed In Motorcycle Accident

A Dedham High School senior who would have been graduated in the spring was killed when the motorcycle on which she was riding collided with a car driven by a Quincy man.

Susan M. Polito, 18, of 35 Lincoln St., Dedham, was thrown off the motorcycle into the wall of a house at 265 Whitwell St., Quincy Center, Saturday afternoon, police said.

She died at nearby Quincy City Hospital.

Jeff Park, 19, of 91 Forest

St., Milton, the driver of the motorcycle, was also injured. He was treated at Quincy City Hospital and released.

Park was charged with motor vehicle homicide, speeding and driving to endanger, according to police.

The driver of the car, John J. Black, 30, of 80 Newbury Ave., North Quincy, was not cited.

Miss Polito was senior class secretary.

Papa Gino's Request Continued Again

By LINDA WILKINS

The License Board voted Tuesday to continue for one week a hearing regarding the request from Papa Gino's of America, Inc. for a common victualer license at 120 Granite St., Quincy Center.

The request was continued due to the absence of Police Chief Francis Finn, who raised the question of traffic control.

A traffic report was provided by the restaurant chain at the meeting and the board plans to review the study before its May 14 meeting.

The report contains the transportation related impacts that Papa Gino's and a proposed drive-through bank would have on Grossman Plaza.

According to the report, there is a high volume of "cut-through traffic," which is caused by cars crossing between Grossman's Plaza and Star Market Plaza.

"This cut-through traffic, which uses either the cross-site aisle located directly in front of Grossman's Lumber or the aisle adjacent to the street, travels at speeds which are excessive for a parking lot facility and requires some enforced supervision to alleviate an unsafe situation for both pedestrians and vehicles backing out of parking stalls," the report states.

Construction of the Granite St. Connector to the Burgin Parkway extension will relieve some of this traffic, according to the report.

The parking space inventory referred to in the report states that "there is an existing surplus within the Grossman lot." It also states that "with redesign of the parking lot, the future parking demand with development of Papa Gino's and the drive-through bank facility can be accommodated."

Calls For Dialogue Between Quincy, Boston

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
With the shared problems facing the cities of Quincy and Boston, one wonders why an active dialogue hasn't been developed between the two to resolve those issues that cut across our boundaries.

Wouldn't it make sense if Quincy and Boston appointed liaisons from their respective mayoral offices to work on mutual issues.

For example, had such a relationship existed, the recent scare in North Quincy involving a possible bomb which had to be brought to Moon Island for demolition may have been avoided.
Had Quincy and Boston looked at this problem years ago, suspected explosives, today, may be transported by water or taken to a wide and enclosed place in Boston proper rather than through crowded communities.

In another case, despite all the rhetoric about where the sewage plants, needed to clean up the harbor, are to go, no one has yet answered the bottom line question of whether we and our children will be able to swim in the waters of Wollaston Beach this summer. Construction of a sewage plant, will take years. What are we to do in the meantime? I'm sure the residents of Boston would like to know the answer to that question as much as the residents of Quincy.

Also, there is another area we should be addressing on a collective level—the future of Long Island. Boston has proposed turning it into recreational space. That may be well and good but what of the traffic and public safety concerns that such a move would bring to Squantum and North
Quincy? Don't the residents of these areas have any say about the impact that would result.

It is time to look at these problems and other mutual concerns in a professional and managerial manner.
Quincy and Boston can better handle and respond to their mutual problems by working together rather than working apart.

McCauley: 'Record, Experience'

Mayor Francis McCauley will officially announce his campaign for a third term May 22.

That, of course, will come as no surprise to anyone.
The real news that night (7:30 p.m.) at the Quincy Neighborhood Club will be the disclosure of his campaign theme: Record and Experience.

He's putting the accent on his record as mayor and his experience in municipal government.

McCauley feels he has done a good job as the city's chief executive for the past three and a half years. And says he is happy to put his record up for public examination.

McCAULEY

And he wants the public to take a good look.

As for experience, he will note that he is in his 18th year in public office.

He has held all of Quincy's elective municipal offices:
ward councillor, councillor at-large, school committee member and mayor.

And, he also served one term on the Quincy Housing Authority board.

HAROLD

Senator Paul Harold, who served in the City Council with him, will introduce McCauley at the May 22 reception-kickoff.

And from then on, you'll be hearing "Record and Experience."

A BIRTHDAY PARTY fundraiser for mayoral candidate Joanne Condon is set for 7 to 11 p.m.
Sunday, May 19 at the National Fire Protection Association, Battery-

Tickets for the event, featuring music of the 1940's, are $10 per concerned with the scholastic and vocational education and ability of its members for their future happiness and success.

exist.

The Perpetual Fund has increased to $16,200.00 and continues to grow and will appropriated and committed a total of $28,000.00

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Steve Downing, Mgr.

A REALISTIC APPROACH

QUESTION: Does it make sense to buy real estate during inflation?

ANSWER: During inflation (and we're in it), there's an excellent case for investing in real estate.
Most of the investment is paid for with borrowed money. Whenever you can borrow money at a fixed rate during inflation, you are money ahead. Here is your chance to turn inflation to your advantage.
Your mortgage gives you full-price dollars to work with today. You then pay them back with "cheaper" dollars you will be earning for the next 20 or 30 years.
This is one of the reasons many wealthy individuals continue to make big real estate investments.

INVESTING IN REAL ESTATE is an excellent way to turn inflation to your advantage.

6 City Employees To Be Honored By McCauley

Six city employees will be honored at the Mayor's Third Appreciation Award ceremony in the City Hall Conference Room, Tuesday, May 14 at 10 a.m.

The annual employees recognition program was inaugurated by Mayor Francis McCauley to cite loyal and dedicated municipal employees whose performance to the City is outstanding and consistently exceeds what the job description requires.

Each recipient will be presented a framed certificate and a gift.

Families, fellow employees and friends have been invited to the public awards ceremony.

Recipients of this year's awards were nominated from among employees in the following departments: public works, assessors, planning and development, forestry and city hall.

This year's recipients:

- Frank McLaughlin, Edison Park, Quincy, a general foreman in the Forestry Department, who has been employed by the city for 26 years. He is being cited for "excellent communication with the public and the extra efforts he has exerted during emergencies caused by fallen trees and branches during storms or accidents, regardless of the time of day or night." McLaughlin is married and has four children, ages 13-23 years.

In his off duty hours, he trains pigeons for racing and enjoys hunting.

- Josephine L. Carnali, Liberty St., Quincy, a secretary in the City Clerk's office, who has been employed by the city for 25 years.

She is cited for her "dedication, prompt and courteous service to the public." Mrs. Carnali was the first woman clerk of Committee in Quincy's history and served as acting Assistant City Clerk from October, 1979, to January, 1982. Extremely knowledgeable, according to the mayor, she is often a source of information to fellow employees.

Mrs. Carnali is married and has one son, Daniel. She enjoys camping and cooking.

- Gemma Fertile of Taft St., Quincy, who is a head administrative clerk in the Planning and Development Department. She has been employed by the city for 20 years, 18 of which have been in the planning department and two in the school department.

She is cited for her years of dedication, her handling of general office problem, and her assistance to co-workers and the public.

She has risen through the ranks from the position of clerk and her experience has proven invaluable through many administrations, said the Mayor.

- Dianne E. Willard, PhD, is a teacher in the Elementary Laboratory Center of the Quincy Public Schools who has been a teacher for 16 years and is cited for her work with academically talented fifth graders from all parts of the city.

She has done independent research in the psychology of learning and she published articles on teaching the academically talented.

A graduate of Boston College, she is past president of Delta Kappa Gamma. She also has taught in the Quincy Junior College Institute for academically gifted/talented students.

- Steven B. Aluisi, of Lark St., Quincy, who works in the Department of Public Works administrative office.

He has been employed by the city for 11 years and is cited for developing programs that monitor energy, fuel use and telecommunications for the public works department and for the city.

Savings generated in street lighting alone for one fiscal year amounted to $125,000.

Aluisi is married and has four children. He has taken workshops at Worcester Poly-Tech Institute on boiler efficiency and managing telephone costs.

- Marion Fantucchio of Water St., Quincy who has been employed by the city for 32 years and was appointed Assessor in August, 1984.

She started her career as a clerk typist and has been recognized for her dedicated service to many administrations.

Her knowledge of assessing has made her a constant source of information to co-workers and the public, said the mayor.

An accredited assessor since 1976, she has taught seminars and classes throughout the state.

She was elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Massachusetts Association of Assessing for six years.

She has received the President's Award from the Massachusetts Association of Assessing as well as the association's Distinguished Service Award.

Fire Threat Closes Blue Hills

The entire Blue Hills Reservation was closed due to extreme fire hazard as a prolonged drought continued to hold Eastern Massachusetts in its grip.

May 6-12
1957
28 Years Ago
This Week

MDC Police Capt. Arthur E. Johnson said any person found in the Blue Hills woods would be arrested and motorists were advised not to stop their cars on roads in the Reservation.

Quincy firefighters were among those from 50 cities and towns fighting a forest fire that had raged out of control for days in Plymouth, destroying many summer cottages in an area of 18,000 acres.

All permits for outdoor fires were cancelled in Quincy and people were urged to keep garden hoses hooked up to outside faucets ready for instant use in an emergency.

The fire hazard was eased somewhat by 1.86 inches of rain that fell on the city over the weekend.

There are many misconceptions about funeral costs. That's not surprising, really, as there are other charges involved in a funeral, then those of the funeral director: cemetery or cremation charge; monuments or markers; newspaper death notices and flowers. Many also believe that funeral directors will not discuss funeral or burial costs frankly and specifically. Nothing could be further from the truth. Wickens & Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., adjacent to the Quincy Historical Society Home, stands ready to give you whatever cost information you desire at any time. Roger Hamel, Donald McCarthy and Joseph Thompson are thoroughly trained in the profession they have chosen and ready to discuss frankly, funeral cost information. ### A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Mother's Day is rightfully one of our most significant, sentimental days of the year. It is a day especially set aside to be thankful for her devotion; a special day to express love and gratitude to her. Many men and women for many years have publicly praised their mother. Read some of these quotes for example:

"The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world" . . . Wm. Stewart Ross. Napoleon, when asked what was the greatest need of France, replied "Mothers". Theodore Roosevelt said, "The mother is the one supreme asset of American life. She is more important by far than the successful statesman, or businessman or artist or scientist." Lincoln gave his mother credit for all that he ever was or hoped to become.

Countless other quotes could be mentioned . . . With it all, we sincerely hope all mothers everywhere share a delightfully Happy Mother's Day . . .

Students Visit QCH During Children And Hospitals Week

In recognition of Children and Hospitals Week, Quincy City Hospital hosted a group of elementary school students from the Daniel Webster and Furnace Brook Schools.

The students, from Grades 3 and 4, were the guests of the Pediatrics Department, under the sponsorship of the Division of Maternal and Child Health.

Ann Marie San Antonio, Assistant Director of Nursing for Maternal and Child Health, invited the participation of the schools in this special program.

Reilly, R.N., Pediatric Clinical Coordinator.

The program included a pediatric puppet show, during which the children were acquainted with the procedures of hospitalization from admission through surgery, recovery and discharge.

The presentation is expressive of the theory that the patient who is well-informed makes a faster recovery, with fewer complications.

This carries through to the young patient, also, who deals more easily with hospitalization when he or she is prepared and educated about the hospital experience, and what it means in practical terms, according to the hospital.

Star of the show is Emily, a three-foot puppet, who, in laymen's terms, explains the processes to the children. Students were able to relate to the hospital experience, with the addition of a slide presentation.

A tour of the hospital facilities followed the events, and included the Pediatrics Department, the Laboratories, the Splint Room, Physical Therapy and Sports Medicine, and the Dietary Department.

'Christ Comes To Us' Squantum Church Topic

"Christ Comes To Us" was the title of the pastor's sermon Sunday at the First Church of Squantum.

The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin preached on a text from the story of Jesus' resurrection appearance to the two disciples on the road to Emmaus: "When he was at table with them, he took the bread and blessed, and broke it, and gave it to them. And their eyes were opened and they recognized Him..." (Luke 24:30-31).

The sermon was preceded by a dramatization of that encounter on the road to Emmaus. Playing the roles were David Williams as Cleopas, Bonnie Adams as Cleopas' wife, and Steve Williams as Jesus.

Under the direction of Mary Ruth Scott, the Chancel Choir sang Marie Pooler's arrangement of "My Shepherd Will Supply

My Need."

After the sermon, the Lord's Supper was observed. Deacons Stewart Scott, Evelyn Ahearn, Tom Williamson, Kathryn Hansen and Cliff Mason sat with the pastor at the Lord's Table and assisted him in distributing the elements of bread and wine.

Hymns sung during the service were "Come, Ye Faithful, Raise the Strain," "Thine Is the Glory," "Christ the Lord is Risen Today," and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Sandra Stohberg, her daughter Deborah and her son David were greeters for the morning. Stewart Scott and Cliff Mason were ushers; Lorraine Josselyn and May Lewis hosted the Fellowship House after the service.

The Board of Deacons announced a drive to secure donations for new hymnals.

Each new book, which will be the same version the church is now using, will cost ten dollars. Persons wishing to donate the cost of one or more books are asked to contact Marie Meldram at 328-1366.

On Sunday, May 12, young people of the church will sponsor a Mother's Day Breakfast with serving to begin at 9:15 a.m. The menu will include orange juice, French toast, hash-browned potatoes and a beverage.

The worship service Sunday will begin at 10:30 a.m.

The 1985 Flea Market and Craft Show at the First Church of Squantum will be held around the church Saturday, June 15, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Rain date will be June 22.

Board Continues Hearing On Domino's Pizza

By LINDA WILKINS

The Quincy License Board Tuesday voted to continue to May 21 a request from Domino's Pizza for a common victualer license at 231 Parkway.

The license would be for take-out food only.

"I think it's the wrong place," said city clerk and board chairman John Gillis about the area where Domino's would be located. "It's been a tough spot through the years because of traffic problems."

Jane Dickey of Grossman Companies, realtors, and J. Michael Hatfield of Domino's said take out orders are not planned to start before 6 or 6:30 p.m.

"The chance of someone ordering pizza before 6 p.m. are slim. People are not going out and buying dinner pizza at 4 in the afternoon," said Dickey.

Mrs. Dickey said that because of the "general psychology of people" and their eating habits, traffic would not be effected too much during rush hour because of the take-out business.

"Even before the (Water St.) bridge was closed, traffic was bad there," said Fire Chief Edward Barry. "On the basis of traffic problems that exist and have always existed in that area, the chance of board approval is slim."

In response to the board's concern about available parking for Domino's customers, Miss Dickey said extra space will be available in Paperama and Bed & Bath's parking lot.

City Salutes Small Business Week

Sun Spotlight On Broad Meadows

Challenging And . . . Exhausting

A parent or guardian of an adolescent knows that raising a 12 or 13 year old is exhausting work. Any middle school teacher will tell you that working with a 12 or 13 year old is challenging, but exhausting.

The middle school students at Broad Meadows are extremely active. They expend an enormous amount of energy on all sorts of educational activities. This section of The Quincy Sun will describe how our students compete, create, compose, compute, research, explore, and question as they grow from childhood toward becoming young adults.

So, draw a breath and read all about the middle school student in action.

'All The World's A Stage'

By MARTHA CROWLEY Gr. 8

The Broad Meadows Youth Theater has been going strong for three years.

During this time, they have performed wonderful plays such as: Scrooge, The Little Match Girl, Oliver, and Coming of Age. At the present time, they are working on a production of Cheaper by the Dozen to be performed in May.

The students who are involved in Drama put a great deal of their time, effort and cooperation into what they do. They go to school a half hour early every morning. On Monday and Wednesday they stay after school until about 4:00. The students have good heads on their shoulders and when they practice they don't fool around. They get right to their work with a serious attitude.

For students who are not involved with the Drama Intramural, there is a group called Exploring Drama.

YOUNG THEATER Performers Charity Vecchione, left, and Lori Wise in "The Little Match Girl."

This group meets during sixth period on Mondays and Thursdays. They are working on a short version of Tom Sawyer. They hope to become a small touring company. The Exploring Drama program is not for everybody. It's just for about ten eighth graders, but the Drama Intramural is open for all students in the school.

There are other jobs in Drama for people who do not like to get up on the stage. The stage crew is responsible for lighting, curtain, and props. The actors do not just perform in plays. They learn about the theater, too! They learn parts of the stage, technical words of the theater, and they work on a lot of improvisation.

You may be wondering who is responsible for directing all of this. Well, they owe it all to their principal, Mr. Creedon. He has worked with these young people for the last three years. Since he started this program when he first came to Broad Meadows, he has watched it grow. Drama has given the students something to be very proud of.

Mini Explanatory Logo

By DEBBIE BROWN Gr. 7

From the middle of March until April vacation, some of the students of 7-6 at Broad Meadows Middle School are participating in a "mini explanatory called Logo, given by Mrs. Donna Miller. We are learning how to move the little turtle all around the screen using different commands. We are also learning to make all different shapes such as boxes, circles, etc. We are also going to create our own designs.

Previously in January and February we learned about computers and the different types of software.

Our group finds the computer exciting and stimulating. Our Group consists of Debbie Brown, Aileen Donahue, Chris Fay, Alina Mak, Scott Gillum, David Cipitelli, Erica Calligan.

Students Excel In Art Contests

By MICHELLE STARR

Gr. 7

PAM BLOWERS Gr. 8

ALINA MAK Gr. 8

Meadows' students have been busy with school work activities and explorations, yet they have somehow found time to excel in various artistic contests.

Richard Keddy, grade 8, earned a first place award and $100 savings bond in the Quincy Animal League's Essay Contest. His essay, "How To Stop The Abuse of Animals," was the best in the city. Kim Zupkolska had her art work selected for display at the Prudential Center.

The exhibit, entitled Youth Art, was sponsored through the Humanities Department. It was open to the public during March.

The following Meadows' students had their art work displayed at Quincy City Hall during the month of February: Robert Staton, Kerry Tolson, Lynne Swanson, Susan Faston, John Menz, William Van Dine, Elisa Sands, Sean McPartlin, Sean Ross, and John Killilea.

Future competitions include the Patriot Ledger Spelling Bee. (First prize will be a trip for two to Washington D.C.), the citywide Louisa May Alcott Dramatic Reading Festival. Voices of Quincy Student scripted and student performed ads for promoting the city of Quincy, and a fair housing essay contest. Look for us at the winners stand. Meadows will be there.

One last award must be mentioned because everyone has a chance to earn it. That award is Away Day. Away Days are held at the end of the year just to show students that they have done a good job all year and to give them confidence for the next year. At the end of the year, these Away Days take place. The sixth grade goes overnight camping at Camp Massasoit for a weekend under the directions of Mr. Crowley and other sixth grade teachers and chaperones. The seventh grade celebrates their successful year by going to an outing at Lincoln Park. Our outgoing eighth grade class goes to Lake Pearl. Having a big field trip at the end of the year is a tradition at Broad Meadows. Doing well is also a tradition at our school.

Authors At Work

By JENNIFER BROOKS

Gr. 7

Seventeen students at Meadows are writing a book about the effects of drugs and alcohol on the mind and on the body.

Each student will write one chapter in the book. Some are writing about pot, others are covering cocaine, beer, speed, LSD, heroin, and 14 other drugs.

Most information comes from library books and magazines. However, we have been aggressive as students and called in guest speakers. Our guest speakers include experts from the Governor's Alliance Against Drug Abuse, Alcoholics Anonymous, SADD, MADD, The Patriot Ledger, the South Shore Drug and Alcohol Clinic, and a spokesperson representing the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Rev. Jackson agreed to visit Meadows on April 4.

The visit was arranged by State Rep. Sandra Graham, but a last minute schedule conflict forced him to postpone his visit. We hope to have Jesse visit Meadows later this Spring.

I look for our book. It will be in the Broad Meadows Media Center under D.

Assistant Principal Laura DiTullio, we thank you for all your help.

Alcohol Is Deadly

By VERA PEPOJONOVIC Gr. 6

Alcohol is a deadly drug. It can kill people anytime and anywhere.

Kids usually drink because their friends push them into trying it. Then they get attached to it and it becomes a habit. A teenager whose idea of doing something is either to visit a bar or to buy a bottle of liquor is evidence that he or she has no control over the drinking habit.

A lot of people who can't control their drinking habit often go to programs that offer to help them. These programs help you to stop drinking and usually you never start again.

Any teenager who has tried even one drink knows that it's effect can be felt within a matter of minutes. Too much to drink can cause dizziness, confusion, coma, and even death.

So if you have a drinking problem go to one of the programs you know will help.

Meadows: A Middle School In Action

Mock Presidential Campaign

By PETER LESPASIO,
Gr. 7

In order to learn more about how Democracy works, Broad Meadows Middle School students held mock Presidential campaigns this fall.

Twenty-one seventh graders actually role-played democracy in action by participating in nominations, primaries, speeches, campaigning, media blitzes, and of course, A Great Debate and a final Presidential election.

Like the nation, on Tuesday, November 6, 1984 we held a seventh grade Presidential Election Day. Students who were chosen for this task were the victors of a schoolwide Presidential primary, held in September.

The two candidates on the Democratic ticket were Bruce McCarthy as Fritz Mondale, and Liz Proudeas Geraldine Ferraro. For the Republicans were Peter Lepasio, as incumbent President Ronald Reagan, and Melanie McPhee as Vice President George Bush.

As the day of the Debate came closer, videotaped commercials were created, posters were hung, candidates speeches were made, and we even made phone calls to and sought advice from the real life headquarters of Reagan and Mondale. The pressure was on.

BRIAN ULEVICIUS, and Cyndi Varnadore participate in the Presidential Debate.

The day of the debate finally came. The school auditorium was packed as students and parents listened carefully as candidates fielded tough student written questions. Student questions dealt with nuclear issues, USA-USSR relations, the role of American women, the deficit, inflation, Social Security and Civil Rights.

The Great Debate was held in the auditorium as hundreds of students, teachers, and parents watched the 12 year olds respond to the issues. The video cameras rolled.

As in real life, the Republicans won the Presidential debate and the election in a landslide. In this case, however, there were no losers. The entire school learned firsthand how a democracy works.

The 7th grade participants included LesPasio, McPhee, McCarthy, Proude, Barbara Kelley, Kerry Tolson, Sean Mahoney, Cynthia Varnadore, Jennifer Smith, Brian Ulevicius, Anthony Mitrush, Karen Scieszko, Tanya Keenan, Rich Kiesel, Kevin McPartlin, Steve McInnis, Fred Regan, Laurie Papkey, Christine Sutter, Tom Fratolillo, and Michael Kieran. Their guiding teachers were Ms. McCarthy and Mr. Adams.

Being New At Meadows

By NATASHA COWART,
Gr. 7

My name is Natasha Cowart. I am a brand new student at Broad Meadows Middle School, and from what I have seen, it is a great school. The other kids in this school treat me nice and they make me feel like this is the same school I left.

The teachers here are so nice and kind. But I am still different in a great way, and to me this is a great privilege. I am the only Black Person in the entire Broad Meadows Middle School. This is fun because I can show them different things and they can show me different things also.

Mr. Creedon is one of a kind. He is the principal. He is nice and is respected by everyone.

RITA SEEGRABER, left, media specialist, helps eighth grade students Kim Zupkofska, middle, and Sonja Gruchy with research at the Thomas Crane Library.

Drugs Are Bad

By SEAN McLEAN
Gr. 6
ROBERT STANTON
Gr. 6

Drugs are a bad thing to take and they affect your life. You should know the names like pot, cocaine, heroin, uppers, downers, speed, and LSD in case anyone offers you drugs.

If you are smart, you'll say no. People take drugs when they are feeling down or sad. They take them to be cool with their friends. Heroin is taken through a needle. You can tell because it leaves a mark in your arm. cocaine is taken through a straw. Cocaine is white and looks like powder. Pot is rolled in paper and has a weird smell. Uppers and downers are pills. They look like medication. Don't ever take them. Don't ever take LSD either. It makes you hallucinate and see things that aren't there. Glue sniffing endangers the lung, brain, liver and can cause death through suffocation or choking. Signs of drug use are a drunk appearance or a dreamy and blank expression.

Those In Need

The sight of starving people is so pitiful. Helpless, weak, starving, and dying. Yes! It's true. People crying out for help. They are those in need.

The food and water we take for granted. Never thinking of those without. Now is the time to show you care before it's too late for those in need.

By JOCELYN ARAVALO

Broad Meadows Is Special

By MELISSA FREEL Gr. 7

My name is Melissa Freel. I'm a seventh grader at Broad Meadows and a new student. I think Broad Meadows is special. When I first came here I was scared because of some rumors. I heard that everything and everyone at Meadows is real tough. But when I got here, everyone was friendly to me and not as rude as the people in my other school. Last year my grades were poor because of my surroundings. This year my grades are great and I like my teachers and fellow students. Broad Meadows has helped me a lot.

What The Earth Should Be

The earth should be beautiful and perfect. No violence, no crime. Those are the wishes on my mind.

Freedom and security. Everything at such purity.

The earth as beautiful as a flower. No threat of man's mighty power.

As vital as it seems. The earth and its streams.

The beautiful way the earth should be.

Huckleberry Finn Alive

By CYNTHIA VARNADOU
One hundred years ago, Mark Twain's great American novel, The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, was first released in America.

The novel dramatized racism, bigotry, child abuse, slavery, and freedom. The story of Huck and Jim and how they became the best of friends, remains a favorite in many schools across the land. Yet some school districts have banned the book. The students in 7-1 are presently studying the novel to find out for themselves what kind of a book it is.

Of course, these students will have to study the author, and the times as well as the novel. A videotape of the screen version will be seen by the students. After all that, the students might discover why Mark Twain is called either the Lincoln of our literature or a subversive. Happy hundredth Huck!

Intramural Sports

By BILLY BELLEW Gr. 8
Football, soccer, basketball, and floor hockey are the intramural sports offered at Broad Meadows Middle School under the direction of Mr. John Bogan.

Students who are interested in participating sign up in the gym.

Teams are made up and competition begins. Towards the end of each season, the two best teams meet in a championship game. Usually everyone in the school is invited to watch the finals. Students purchase a ticket for twenty-five cents. The contribution is put towards the Away-Day activity. A trophy case in the main office houses all the names of the winning teams along with any trophies that may have been awarded.

Provides Exciting Experiences

By KERRI CALLAHAN,

VIRGINIA FISHER, Gr. 8
ROBERT MILLER, Gr. 8
LYNN RIMOVITZ, Gr. 7

Thanks to grant monies from the Quincy Arts Lottery and the Institute for the Arts, Broad Meadows students have been treated to varied experiences in the arts this year.

First, a professional choreographer, Ms. Glenda Medeiros, worked with twenty students on dance improvisation, rhythm and music. After an afternoon of practice, the dancers presented their dance accomplishments for their classmates.

Our next visit was from the Boston Youth Theater. The Performance was entitled Survival. The Education Circus Survival was an enchanting musical theater journey including singing, dancing, and colorful characters. Survival was the story of what happens when a high school student fails to make the most of his education.

Our spring visitor was Ms. Julia Thacker. Ms. Thacker, a writer, used the lesson "The Story of Painting" to provide the students with an experience in writing in response to famous paintings. The students wrote the story behind the paintings they saw. The stories included dreams and fictions and included at least one color and one sound, as well as many other senses. After writing time, students read their stories aloud for group reaction and discussion.

Thank you Quincy Arts Lottery! Broad Meadows students have been enriched through the Arts.

Mondays become seven period days at Broad Meadows Middle School. This gives teachers an opportunity to offer a variety of activities to students. Some of the popular activities are:

Band:

At BMMS, the band is made up of seventy-eight people, and is led by Mr. Richard Striano. The Band is open to sixth, seventh, and eighth grade students. Practice takes place once a week for the band, and each section also practices once a week.

Three elementary schools: Atherton Hough, Merry-mount, Snug Harbor will hear a performance of band music. It is hard work, but it is fun!

WEEK OF: MAY 9.

AQUARIUS — January 21-February 19
A good week for looking into your genealogy or speaking to older relatives about family history. A small but meaningful award may come your way by Wednesday.

PISCES — February 20-March 20
Good week to review finances and refine budgets. Travel is likely on the agenda. If planning a trip, be sure you and companion have similar expectations and interests.

ARIES — March 21-April 20
Week may find you taking an interest in an all-new field — yoga, auto mechanics, or perhaps gourmet cooking. New relationship proves more rewarding than initially thought.

TAURUS — April 21-May 22
New source of information proves unexpectedly reliable. Calendar fills up quickly during a week that finds you socially in demand. Supervisor may reverse a recent decision.

GEMINI — May 23-June 21
Facts prove more interesting than fiction as you meet some fascinating people. Social skills earn you special praise. Writing tasks are highlighted after the weekend.

CANCER — June 22-July 22
Delays are a fact of life till Saturday, then it's smooth sailing in career endeavors and social activities. Avoid playing matchmaker. Travel plans require further discussion.

LEO — July 23-August 22
Insurance or accounting matters can dominate this period. Make sure policies and files are up to date. Long distance news — and various guests — arrive ahead of schedule.

VIRGO — August 23-September 22
The week stresses harmony in relationships, and an on again, off again feud can be settled amicably. Surprises may backfire. Independent streak surfaces after the weekend.

LIBRA — September 23-October 22
Cooperative ventures prove rewarding, provided all roles are clearly defined. If launching a new project, the key is to monitor its progress. Avoid extremes, especially in diet.

SCORPIO — October 23-November 21
Friends share some exciting news, then closely watch your reaction. Job responsibilities pile up quickly and it may be time to recruit some first-class assistance.

May 9th, actor Albert Finney; 10th, actor Fred Astaire; 11th, actor Phil Silvers; 12th, singer Francesca Rinaldo; 13th, singer Steve Wonder; 14th, singer Patrice Munsel; 15th, singer Trini Lopez.

QJC Bombs Blue Hills, 18-0

By PETE ZOIA

The Quincy Junior College baseball team unleashed its most potent offense of the season in bombing Blue Hills Technical, 18-0, for its third win in a row.

Bob Jaffarian pitched his third win in a row and his second shutout. He hurled four innings, gave up three hits, struck out five and didn't issue a walk. In three games he has given up 12 hits, struck out 24 and walked only four.

"He is our bread and butter man," said Coach Dave Burke.

Mark Lund took over on the mound and gave up only two hits over the last three innings.

Steve Ondrick and John Smith had three hits each, one of Smith's being a double. Sean Murphy cleared the bases with a tremendous triple.

QJC scored seven runs in the second inning, six in the fourth, four in the sixth and finished with one in the seventh.

Kyle Morton, Denis Downing, Mark Righini, Bob McCabe and Loud also had hits.

Blue Hills threatened in the fourth, loading the bases with one out. But what looked like a rally suddenly evaporated as Ondrick came up with a great stop, forced the runner at home and catcher Horton, who has an exceptionally strong arm, threw out the runner at first.

Burke lauded the defensive play of Mark Chambers, a former Quincy High and Quincy Legion player.

"This was one of the strongest lineups ever on the field for QJC," said Burke, who should know, being the Jaguars' only coach for 17 years.

QUINCY'S Gary DiNardo, left, a pitcher-third baseman, and pitcher Mike Marshall, right, have played key roles for the Suffolk University baseball team, which was 16-5 after 21 games. Coach Joe Walsh is shown with them. DiNardo won two games as a pitcher and played a strong third base, while Marshall has won three games for the Rams. Suffolk is shooting for its second straight Div. 3 Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference tournament bid.

Rainouts Add Quincy, North Woes

As if things were not bad enough for Quincy Baseball coach Bob Sylvia and North Quincy coach Tom Fitzgerald, with their extremely thin pitching staffs, successive rainouts Monday and last Friday, have put added pressure of the hurlers as the teams play nearly every day this week.

North Quincy will play three straight games on the road, at Cambridge Friday, at Weymouth South Monday and at Newton North next Wednesday.

Quincy will be home to Brookline Monday and to Brockton next Wednesday, both games at 3:30 at Adams Field.

North bowed to Waltham, 10-5, last week, dropping its record to 2-7. Greg McGame hit a two-run homer and Peter Tufts had a two hits for the Raiders.

Quincy following its shocking win over Brockton, was walloped by Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 11-2, being held to four hits while Cambridge pounded out 13. Mike Draicchio gave the Presidents their only lead in the first inning with a triple and he scored on an error. Jay Lespasio had a double for Quincy.

Quincy is now 3-1-1.

Sheriffs To Join Coast League

Al Julian, vice president of the Independent Youth Baseball Association of Massachusetts, announces that the league's Quincy Sheriffs will join the South Shore Coast League this season.

This became possible when the Scituate Sea Dogs dropped out of the Coast League.

Last year the Sheriffs won the IYBA championship with a 22-7 record.

The Sheriffs become the second Quincy team in the Coast League, joining the Quincy Merchants.

Others in the league are the Braintree White Sox, Rockland Royals, Weymouth Elks, Randolph T. T., Hingham Phillies and Canton Cubs.

The league schedule and the rosters of the two Quincy teams will be announced soon.

Quincy Girls' Team 3-3

Despite having its small squad ever, the Quincy girls' tennis team holds a 3-3 record.

Monday's scheduled match with powerhouse Newton North was rained out.

Shirley Laing's First Ladies will be at Brookline Monday and will play at Brockton next Wednesday.

"I was surprised at the lack of interest this year after having a winning season last year," Mrs. Laing said. "We are very thin with very little depth."

Quincy has three seniors, Maureen Seamans, Joanne Doherty and Kathy Egan playing singles. Egan is having a fine season with a 4-1 record.

The first doubles team is made up of veteran Beth Doherty and freshman Wendy Stirling, who have a 4-1 record.

Playing on the second doubles team are Kim Litterio and Karen Zupkowski. Jennifer Baer has also teamed up with Litterio.

Prior to the Newton loss, the First Ladies had defeated Brockton, 5-0, and Cambridge, 3-2, in the Suburban League, and Weymouth North, 4-1, in a non-league match. They had lost to Brookline, 4-1, in the league, and 3-2 to Weymouth South outside the league.

Placing third were Raftery, high hurdles; Killion, low hurdles; Mary Ann Kelliher, 880, and Sharon Barrett, mile. Brockton won both relay races.

Rainouts Cause Game Pileup For Girls

Successive rainouts Monday and last Friday resulted in an extra busy week for the Quincy and North Quincy girls' softball teams.

Weather permitting, the teams were to play four straight days this week.

Barbara Webster's Quincy girls will play at Latin Academy in Boston today (Thursday), will be at Brookline Monday and at Brockton next Wednesday.

Mary Pratt's North team will host Cambridge Friday, Weymouth North Monday and Newton North next Wednesday, all at 3:30 at Faxon Field.

The First Ladies edged Cambridge, 5-4, last week, improving their record to 3-4, as Kathy Thornton scattered eight hits in going the route.

Mary Ellen Thomas drove in two runs with a single and Andrea Griffin had two hits and an RBI.

The North girls bowed to Walham, 11-5, dropping their record to 3-4.

The Raiderettes had a 4-1 lead after two innings, but then the roof caved in as Walham scored in each of the remaining innings, collecting 13 hits off Ann Anderlonis, who also issued four hits. North was held to six hits, including two singles and a double by Colleen Hannon.

• Junior Baseball

VFW, Gear, Burgin Win

The VFW opened its Junior League baseball season with two wins last week.

The VFW won an 11-9 slugfest from Kwanis as winning pitcher Richie MacDonald struck out nine. Sean Donovan came on in the last inning with the bases full and one out. He struck out the first batter and got the next on a ground out to gain the save.

Scott Dunn had a double and two singles, Eddie Costello a triple and single and MacDonald, Mike Geddes, Robbie O'Connor and Chris Barrett a single each.

Brian Zimmerman's home run in the last inning gave the VFW a 5-4 decision over Keohane's. He also had a double and a single.

Dunn started pitching and hurled three strong innings, striking out six, and Donovan got the win with four innings of excellent relief, giving up only one run and striking out seven.

O'Connor had two hits and Costello, Kevin Malloy and Donovan one each. Keohane's Brian Ridge hit what looked like a sure home run but Steve Carroll ran the ball down and a quick relay from Carroll to Barrett to Zimmerman cut the run down at the plate.

Boston Gear walloped Keohane's, 9-1, in its opener as Sean Cafferty scattered six hits, struck out 10 and walked only three. He also had a double and single.

Gear's offense was led by catcher Freddy Regan, who had a triple, double and single and two RBI. He was also spectacular behind the plate, even after suffering an injury when he got a foul tip on the throat.

Billy Lydon had a double and single and Danny Duncan, George Walsh, Derek Happas and Mike Patch a single each. Peter Grippi, Chris Nichols, Patrick McDonough, Billy and David Skutel, Matt Riley and Walsh all played strong defense. Kearns pitched well for Keohane's, while Ridge had three singles and Robby Kiesel, Bob Kelly and Chris Desher a single each.

In another season's opener, Burgin and Plainer rolled over Rotary, 9-1, as Matt Smith pitched two-hit ball and struck out 15. He also helped his own cause with a triple off the right field fence.

Billy Warren had three hits, Ralph Bevilacqua, Tom Balsano and Mike Malvesti two apiece. Peter White made an outstanding defensive play for Burgin in center field.

For Rotary, catcher Tim Collins and John Kelly had the only hits and Mike McDougal and Dana Gurwicht played well defensively.

In a come-from-behind victory, the Elks defeated Colonial Federal, 7-5.

City Council Appeals To Navy For Shipyard Work

around. "The Navy has suggested that there might be another contract in the works and General Dynamics can bid on that."

"The Governor is looking for ways to find jobs for these people."

"If we do get people seeking help we'll do whatever we can to match people with jobs, but the Governor and the state are in a better position to do that."

"We are very supporting of the actions the Governor is taking."

In awarding the multi-million-dollar contract for two fuel tankers to Pennsylvania Shipbuilding Co. of Chester, Pa., the Navy rejected bids from Quincy and three other shipyards. It invited the losing facilities to submit new bids for a third tanker, whose award is expected within a month.

The chairman of General Dynamics Corp. said that the future is not bright for the company's shipyard in Quincy.

"The long-term prospects are not encouraging," David S. Lewis, chairman of General Dynamics, told shareholders at the company's annual meeting in Pomona, Calif.

Prior to the stockholders meeting the company announced its intentions to lay off 3,000 employees - half the yards work force. More layoffs are expected if the shipyard fails to win new contracts.

"We are competing aggressively for construction of Navy auxiliary and support ships, but so far we have not been successful in obtaining any significant amount of production work for the shipyard," Lewis said.

There are currently 5,800 salaried and hourly workers at the shipyard. Some 816 of these workers reside in Quincy. Most of the affected workers are skilled metal workers (machinists, welders, pipefitters).

The shipyard, a local fixture for 101 years is also Quincy's largest taxpayer, contributing $2.2 million a year.

"Obviously we are disappointed," said shipyard spokeswoman Evelyn Murphy, that Quincy was not selected to participate in the Navy's fleet oiler program.

"General Dynamics

shipyard in Quincy will continue, however, to compete aggressively for additional naval construction and overhaul contracts."

"We (General Dynamics) will continue to make major productivity investments in the Quincy shipyard and to develop proposals for additional business."

"We have presently submitted proposals for construction of two ocean survey ships (TAOS), and a proposal has been submitted for the overhaul of the submarine tender USS Simon Lake."

From Washington, Congressman Brian Donnelly, whose district includes the Quincy yard, said:

"We are really disappointed by the decision. But, there is hope that Quincy can win the contract for the third TAO ship. There is also a contract the Navy plans to award this summer for two TAOS survey ships that we hope goes to Quincy."

"I will be meeting soon with officials at the office of the Secretary of the Navy, to encourage them to bring work into the Quincy shipyard and to discuss the Navy's shipbuilding program with them."

One Washington source said the news "smacks of being shot across the bow of General Dynamics."

The company is one of several major defense contractors under investigation for fraudulent billing practices. The Pentagon, on April 5 froze all payments to the firm until it had recouped $154 million in contested billing.

Meanwhile, even if Quincy got all the Navy contracts they were seeking - or even if they got a lion's share of them the announced work layoffs could not be avoided said Robert Sweeney, another spokesman for the shipyard.

"If we got the best possible news tomorrow, there would have to be layoffs before there could be a recall," Sweeney said.

The extent of the layoffs on the local unemployment rate is not known because a large percentage of the shipyard workers live outside Quincy, many of them in Boston.

Quincy's jobless rate has been at 3.9 per cent, one of the lowest in the state until now.

American Agrees To Purchase Marlboro Cable System

American Cablesystems
Corp. of Beverly, parent company of Quincy Cablesystems, has agreed to purchase the 6,700-subscriber cable television system in Marlboro, from Prime Cable of Austin, Tex.

The purchase is subject to approval of Marlboro Mayor Kuson J. Haddad, who will be asked to transfer the license from Prime to American. No purchase price was disclosed.

The Marlboro system is the only one operated in Massachusetts by Prime Cable. American operates systems in two dozen Massachusetts communities, and in six other states.

The agreement to purchase the system was announced by David Keefe, American's Senior Vice President for Massachusetts Operations.

"We are very pleased to have the chance to buy and run the cable system in Marlboro," said Keefe. "We look forward to working closely with the Marlboro
Cable Trust, city officials.
Marlboro subscribers, civic groups and business people."

Keefe said that if city officials go along with the license transfer, American would take over the system this summer. Under the proposal, the Marlboro Cable Trust would continue to run the local access programming with funds supplied by the cable operator.

"We are also doing market research to determine whether to add new channels or services, and to learn what changes subscribers would most like to see," said Keefe.

The Marlboro cable system is a 6,700-basic-subscriber, 400 Mhz, 54-channel, non-addressable system that passes 10,000 homes. The channel line-up includes 5 pay services, and local channels which are controlled, programmed and operated by the independent, non-profit
Cable Trust.

American Cablesystems
Corp. is currently the 27th largest cable system operator in the country with more than 250,000 basic service subscribers in Massachusetts, New York,
Illinois, Virginia, Florida,
Tennessee and West Virginia.

CITY OF QUINCY

PROPOSED STATEMENT OF COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT OBJECTIVES

1985-1986 PROGRAM YEAR

I. Introduction

The City of Quincy will be receiving $2,134,000 from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to operate its community development block grant program in 1985-1986. This Proposed Statement contains sections describing the community development objectives of the City of Quincy; how funds were expended to date in the 1985-1986 program year, and how the City proposes to expend funds in the 1985-1986 program year. Public comments on this Proposed Statement are welcome and should be addressed to the Department of Planning and Community Development, Quincy City Hall.

II. Community Development Objectives

As the City plans for and implements its CDBG programs and activities, it attempts to enhance the quality of the living environment of low and moderate income persons residing in the City of Quincy. As a result, the City has established several objectives for its CDBG Program, which include the following:

1. Maintenance and revitalization of its low and moderate income neighborhoods;
2. Preservation and improvement of the City's housing stock;
3. Elimination of health and safety hazards within its residents' homes;
4. Improvement of the City's infrastructure;
5. Renovation and improvement of the City parks, playgrounds, and neighborhood recreational facilities;
6. Provision of basic and necessary human services;
7. Preservation and improvement of the City's non-residential building stock; and
8. Revitalization of the City's commercial areas, particularly those which provide goods and services to residents of its low and moderate income neighborhoods.

Through the establishment and pursuit of such objectives, the City of Quincy is making a firm commitment to all components of its neighborhoods: its housing, infrastructure, park and playground facilities, public services and commercial development. In addition, the City has attempted to give maximum feasible priority to activities which are benefiting low and moderate income families and aid in the prevention or elimination of slums and blight. The City's efforts have offered the residents of our low and moderate income neighborhoods the opportunity to work together to achieve all objectives, and make living and working in Quincy a more enjoyable experience.

III. 1984-1985 Program Year

Funds expended in the present program year (1984-1985) are as follows:

|                                                                 |                    |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------|
| Housing Rehabilitation                                          | $502,752          |
| Commercial Rehabilitation                                       | 19,600             |
| Public Works Improvements                                       | 217,171            |
| Parks & Playgrounds Improvements                                | 14,627             |
| Elderly Youth Outreach                                          | 112,460            |
| Neighborhood Recreational & Social Services (Community Centers) | 111,600            |
| LDC Operating Funds                                             | 12,000             |
| Public Housing Security Services                                | 11,111             |
| Planning & Engineering                                          | 62,926             |
| Administration                                                  | 261,936            |
| TOTAL                                                    | $1,326,183 |

As in previous program years, the City has assigned maximum feasible priority to projects and programs which principally benefit low and moderate incomes. In pursuing this priority, the City follows a planned approach in which geographical areas (block groups as defined by the U.S. Census Bureau) of the City containing a majority of low and moderate income individuals/families are identified. Projects which generally benefit an entire neighborhood, such as park and playground rehab and street improvements, are then pursued in these areas only. Other programs, such as the housing rehab and loan and grant program, are limited to low and moderate incomes by income eligibility criteria. Of the $1,326,183 expended to date in the 1984-1985 program year, well over 75% has been expended for the general benefit of low and moderate incomes.

LEGAL NOTICE

As the community development objectives listed above also apply to the 1984-1985 program year, one can clearly see that the City's CDBG expenditures follow its stated objectives. Three categories of expenditures in particular are indicative of the City's commitment to the stated objectives: Housing Rehab, Neighborhood Recreational and Social Services, and Elderly Youth Outreach. The first stated expenditure category, housing rehab, consists of approximately 38% of total expenditures and is a strong indication of the City's commitment to the preservation and improvement of the City's housing stock (Objectives 1, 2 and 3). The latter two expenditure categories constitute the bulk of the public services component of the Quincy CDBG program, a component which addresses the objectives numbered 1, 5 and 6 above. These categories encompass the operation of seven community centers; the elderly van transit program; social outreach workers; in three neighborhoods; and the staffing and management of the Council on Aging and the Youth Commission. While public service expenditures are capped by the regulations of the CDBG program, the City of Quincy has consistently been at or only slightly below the maximum expenditures allowed.

IV. 1985-1986 Program Year

The proposed budget for the 1985-1986 program year is as follows:

|                                         |                    |
|-----------------------------------------|--------------------|
| Housing Commercial Rehab Program        | $250,000          |
| Home Maintenance Weatherization Program | 190,700            |
| Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services    | 60,000             |
| Public Works Improvements               | 633,200            |
| Parks, Playgrounds & Public Spaces      | 100,000            |
| Professional & Business Groups          | 14,500             |
| Elderly Outreach Elderly Van Program    | 165,700            |
| Community Centers                       | 154,400            |
| Planning & Administration               | 426,800            |
| Contingency                             | 138,700            |
| TOTAL                            | $2,134,000 |

NOTE: The above budget is further broken down by the following targeted neighborhoods: Atlantic, Central Business District, Germantown, Montclair, Quincy Point, West Southwest Quincy, Wollaston. Individual neighborhood budgets are available upon request.

Of the $2,134,000, over $1,500,000, or approximately 71% of the total budget, is targeted to benefit low and moderate income residents.

In the 1985-1986 program year, the City is placing a greater emphasis on much-needed pedestrian and vehicular safety improvements in the Central Business District, or Quincy Center as it is commonly known. With the expected 1985 opening of the Burgin Parkway Extension, Quincy Center for the first time will have a quick and direct connection to Routes 3 and 128. Given the new accessibility of Quincy Center to the developing population of the South Shore, the presence of the extensive MBTA bus and subway network and a number of developable sites in Quincy Center, it is very likely that a downtown building boom will occur in Quincy Center in the late 1980's. The City is taking steps to not only deal with a future expected traffic volume stemming from this boom but also to address sometimes confusing and oftentimes dangerous existing traffic circulation patterns in Quincy Center.

While the results of a major transportation study to be undertaken in the Summer-Fall of 1985 will set the City's traffic improvement agenda for some years to come, the City is proposing to address two major intersections in the 1985-1986 program year: Hancock Street Dimmock/Adams and Hancock Street School Quincy Avenue. These two intersections serve as portals to Quincy Center and thus are important not only as traffic intersections but also as introductions to the Central Business District.

Notice is also hereby given that the City of Quincy undertakes all of its CDBG programs and activities in a manner which either eliminates or minimizes the displacement of persons. To this end the City has prepared and is following a displacement plan. A copy of this plan is available through the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development.

Health Board Petition Referred To Committee

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A home rule petition establishing a Board of Health in Quincy was referred to the City Council's ordinance committee Monday night to allow further study.

But at least one councillor has already expressed doubts that establishing a Board of Health is an appropriate action for the city.

"I'm not convinced that it is the way to go," said Councillor Stephen Mc-Grath.

"A Board (of Health) may be more appropriate to towns.

"I'd like to know what other cities and towns have. "We ought to restructure the requirements for Health Commissioner.

"I'm not convinced that a board is appropriate — it may be a step backward."

The request for a home rule petition, from Mayor Francis McCauley, would reorganize the Health Department from having an MD Public Health Commissioner to a five member, unpaid, Board of Health, with one member holding a medical degree.

The position of Health Commissioner would be a three year appointment by the Mayor.

The position of Health Commissioner has been vacant since the death of Dr. M. Grace Hussey in January.

400 Gallons Gas Storage Approved

By LINDA WILKINS

Quincy residents worried that the Mercedes Benz they purchased in Europe won't pass United States safety standards will soon be able to bring their cars to an automotive operation geared to converting foreign cars from European to U.S. standards.

The License Board granted a request Tuesday from European Automotive Engineering, 94 Franklin St., to store 400 gallons of gasoline for cars.

Cars will be delivered to the Franklin Street operation on flatbed trucks, one at a time, said Michael T. Doherty from European Automotive Engineering.

"All of the cars will be stored inside the building," Doherty said.

Doherty also said the cars will not be unloaded on Franklin St. Since the trucks only hold one car at a time, they can be unloaded on the company's property, he said.

In the past, there have been complaints from neighbors of noise due to operations in the front and rear of the building European Automotive Engineering will inhabit.

In granting the license, Fire Chief Edward Barry said European Automotive Engineering's employees will have to be considerate of their neighbors or they'll "be back here again."

Another stipulation was that signs and loading and unloading conditions be checked with the building inspector.

"Our operation brings European cars up to U.S. standards. We don't repair the cars, we do engineering and computerized testing of emission systems. We do have to run the car's motors to test the exhaust, but that will be done inside the building," Doherty said. "We will not be banging, all of the work is done inside the car."

"This is about the cleanest thing that could go in there," said chairman John Gillis.

Doherty said European Automotive Engineering will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Condon Critical Of Priorities:

Council Passes $80.6 M Budget

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City Council voted 8 to 1 Monday to pass a Municipal budget of $80,621,255 for fiscal 1986.

City Councillor Joanne Condon voted against the budget, saying it did not address the priorities of the people.

With the budget approved, Mayor Francis X. McCauley said he hopes to set a tax rate by late August or early September, and to have the tax bills in the mail no later than Sept. 30.

The bills would be due Nov. 1, McCauley said.

The budget is 5.48 per cent or $4,199,125 over last year's figure of $75,647,674 which has risen to $76,595,692 with additional expenditures.

"Obviously, I'm very pleased," said Mayor Francis McCauley. "This is the earliest the budget has been completed in the last four years."

Last year's so called "Battle of the Budget" dragged on until July.

The only cuts in the budget were for retirement pensions, $71,062; law expenses, $2,500; Judgments, losses and claims, $50,000 and reserve for salaries, $50,000.

"Those are not severe cuts. We can live with them," said McCauley.

Mrs. Condon, who has voted against the city's budget for the last several years, said the administration would rather pay back General Dynamics and give $8,000 raises (to Dep. Public Works Commr. David Colton) than be concerned with public education and public safety.

"You can't have two sets of rules," said Mrs. Condon, citing the 35 per cent raise for deputy public works administrator and the failure to fund public safety positions and the 1 and 1/2 per cent raise offered to city employees in the first year of the new contract.

City Council president James A. Sheets also said he was not entirely pleased with the budget.

"I'd like to see more public safety," said Sheets, "but the city has to have a budget."

Sheets explained that the council has 45 days to act on the budget, submitted April 1, or it becomes law.

"The most significant part of the budget process was that there were few cuts. It was a reasonably lean budget," said Sheets.

"It was the earliest we've passed a budget in the past few years, but it was submitted the earliest."

McCauley Wants QJC Under City's Control

By DAN CONNELLY

Mayor Francis McCauley feels the city's junior college should remain under local control despite published reports earlier this week the school may lose its local identity and become a state college.

McCauley told The Quincy Sun:

"I strongly support the college continuing under the direction of President Clayton Johnson in conjunction with the city's superintendent of schools and the school committee."

"Dr. Johnson has done an excellent job. I'd rather the school be kept under local control than have the state take over."

"In the past QJC has proved able to live without major support by the city. Also, the college has earned the right to get some state aid — but continuing in its present independent operational structure," said the mayor.

Dr. Johnson said any suggestion — by anyone — that the school is facing an uncertain financial future is incorrect.

He said his staff is studying the day school economy. Enrollment is slowing down. We must re-examine our day operations and reverse this trend.

The evening and community service programs are in an excellent position, said Johnson.

He would like to see some state aid to the college, because two-thirds of the schools enrollment does not come from Quincy.

He dispels any thoughts of relocating the school; it will remain a Quincy-run institution while he is in charge.

If Quincy Junior College becomes a state college it would mean Quincy could no longer claim the distinction of being the only city east of the Mississippi River with its own locally run college.

Published reports said state-aid plans being considered by the Legislature and the state Board of Regents include:

Merging the school with another state institution, such as Massasoit Community College in Brockton or the University of Massachusetts - Boston Campus.

Turning Quincy Junior College into a state-run community college with a

$10,000 Increase For Labor Negotiator

The city's labor negotiator will receive a $10,000 increase in fiscal 1986, after a move to reconsider the increase failed at Monday night's City Council meeting.

Councillor John Lydon sought the reconsideration which was seconded by Michael Cheney, but later failed.

Councillor Joanne Condon said she was not sure that the labor negotiator (David Grunbaum) has represented the city well.

She said $25,000 is more than satisfactory.

Council president James Sheets said he was not satisfied with the cases the administration has pursued, and more money available means broader options.

City Dump Open Saturday

City Councillor Patricia Toland, chairman of the Council's Beautification Committee, announces that the dump will be open Saturday, May 18, because of the Germantown Spring Cleanup.

Residents of the city with LaRaia said he thought a $10,000 increase was miniscule compared to a judgement against the city which could run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

proof of residency, such as a license, may also use the dump on that day.

In addition, Toland said the dump will also be open Saturday, June 1, to accommodate residents' spring clean-up efforts.

McCauley Appointed To MBTA Advisory Board

Mayor Eugene C. Brune of Somerville, chairman of the MBTA Advisory Board, has appointed Mayor Francis X. McCauley chairman of the Advisory Board Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee, comprised of 25 members of the 78 member advisory board, has all the approval powers vested in the Advisory Board with some exceptions.

The exceptions are power to approve the governor's appointments to the MBTA Board of Directors; power to approve changes in fares; and power to approve the annual budget.

The Advisory Board Executive Committee does have the power to reject the annual budget.

In accepting the appointment, McCauley said that the City of Quincy, which is served by the MBTA Red line as well as by bus service, has an im-stake in seeing to it that MBTA service in Quincy is both efficient and cost effective.

"My appointment as Chairman of the Executive Committee will afford me the opportunity to become more involved and more knowledgeable about the operation of the MBTA," the Mayor concluded.

Atlantic Neighborhood Social

The Atlantic Neighborhood Association will hold its Annual Social Friday, May 17, 440 East Squantum St., North Quincy, from 8

The social will include dancing, prizes, a cash bar and breakfast at 10 p.m.

Papa Gino's 110-Seat Restaurant Approved

By LINDA WILKINS

After weeks of continued hearings, the Quincy License Board voted unanimously Tuesday to grant a request from Papa Gino's of America, Inc., for a common victualer license at 120 Granite St., Quincy Center.

Papa Gino's plans to open a new, 110-seat restaurant in part of the former site of Anderson Little.

"There's not much choice in the matter. This is a good business and a legitimate one," said Police Chief Francis Finn.

Finn, who made the motion to grant the license, has been concerned about parking and traffic in the area.

"The only control we have here is issuing a common victualer license. If that's not done right, we'll be sorry we issued it," Finn said.

During the board's May 7 meeting, the restaurant chain provided a traffic report which contained the transportation impacts that Papa Gino's and a proposed drive-through bank would have on the area.

According to the report, construction of the Granite St. Connector to the Burgin Parkway extension will relieve some of the traffic and with the redesigning of the parking lot, future parking demand can be met.

"The plan, as regards parking, includes 167 parking spaces in the front and 14 in the rear. That's an increase over the 158 there now. We feel we've fulfilled the requirements and know we'll be a good neighbor," said Atty. Howard Wayne, who represented Papa Gino's at the meeting.

But a plan submitted Tuesday by Capt. Walter Frazier of the Traffic Commission was in conflict with the restaurant's traffic report.

"Granite St. has as much traffic as it can take," said Finn. "Papa Gino's is going to be a busy store, busier than they've predicted. It's a mall and if they haven't got enough parking there, they're going to hurt themselves."

"Mr. Grossman and company are entitled to a tenant in there, but at the same time, we are concerned with traffic flow, parking, and the location of a bank in front of the building. We don't feel these issues have been truly addressed," said Fire Chief Edward Barry.

"It's a tough situation not only because of the traffic, but also because of the pedestrians," said Planning Director James Lydon.

In granting the restaurant's request for a common victualer license, the board stipulated that a police officer be hired to conduct traffic in the area and all signs be subject to approval by the building department.

The License Board also voted at the meeting to send a letter to the city council and the mayor requesting that they restudy parking under the city's current zoning plan.

The board stated Papa Gino's as an example because under the present law, a Papa Gino's with 90 seats would only require 10 parking spaces.

Sagamore Grille License Suspended 10 Days

The License Board voted Tuesday to suspend for 10 days the license of the Sagamore Grille, 78A & B Sagamore St., North Quincy, because of alleged serving after hours.

The dates of suspension are scheduled to be June 3 through June 12.

A report by Officers Peter Flynn, John Haines, and Richard Potter of the Quincy Police Department stated that on March 31 at 3:50 a.m. they responded to 54 Berlin St., North Quincy, on report of an assault and battery.

The man who made the call said he had been in the vicinity of the Sagamore Grille a half hour earlier and while there was the victim of an assault and battery, according to the report.

He also said that about a dozen people were drinking after hours in the Sagamore Grille, police stated.

"There were bottles of beer on the bar and some males attempting to crowd the men's room," said Officer Peter Flynn during his account of his observations upon reaching the door of the building.

Flynn said five males and one female, who he said was intoxicated, were in the Grille at the time.

They were not connected with the establishment, he said.

Michael Dormandy said the beer bottles the officers saw on the bar were empty.

"We were cleaning up and my brother (Thomas Dormandy) said, 'there's a fight across the street,' so we went out to see," Dormandy said.

Dormandy said he and his brother broke up the fight and took some of the people who were there into the bar to give them a ride home.

"People have an obligation to call the police," said Building Inspector Allan MacDonald.

"There is no reason why anyone should have been there after 1:30. I think it was the worst thing to do to bring people in like that with a business at stake," said Fire Chief Edward Barry.

The Sagamore Grille has five days to appeal to the alcoholic beverages control commission (ABCC).

Blood-Sugar Screening

A pilot program for blood-sugar screening will begin today (Thursday) from 10 to 11:30 a.m. at the Ward 2 Community Center, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

The program, which is in conjunction with Quincy City Hospital, will be under the director of Arleen Ferretti, Diabetic Educator and a registered nurse.

Blood-sugar screenings will be held every Thursday along with blood pressure screenings, which will begin at 9:30 a.m.

Testing for sugar is a procedure in the diagnosis of diabetes.

Detoxification Center Issue $75 Million Hospital Bond Hung Up

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
No action was taken Monday night on a home rule petition for a $75,000,000 bond issue for replacement of a major portion of Quincy City Hospital.

And that may also be the outcome of next Monday's meeting, said the council president, if the future of the Quincy Detoxification Center at the hospital has not been resolved.

"I thought we were moving towards a consensus on the Detoxification Center," said James Sheets, "but I don't see them (the hospital) taking any action."

"The whole situation has destabilized."
"The majority of the council favors using Gordon House," (as a new location for the center when the new portion of the hospital is built on the current Faxon House site.)

The detoxification center, located at the Faxon House since the early 1970's, is seeking a lease agreement at the current rate of $1,000 per month, with annual review and a minimum of five years occupancy, according to center director George Donohue.

The center will consist of 20 beds and any increase in program size will be subject to approval of the Health Department, Division of Alcoholism with board review, he stated.

Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro said he wanted to be assured that the detoxification center is going to have a facility.

"They've done a fine job over the years," said DeCristofaro.

QCH director Mark Mundy said the hospital is determining whether there is an alternative to Gordon House that may better serve the detoxification center and the city.

Save Gas and Money...
Shop Locally.

Councillor Joanne Condon suggested that plans to put doctors' offices in Gordon House be consolidated with the detoxification center by locating the medical offices in the front of the building and the center at the back.

"It (Gordon House) is an enormous facility. Perhaps we could consolidate all of the city's drug and alcoholic services in one place."

Mrs. Condon suggested that Mundy returned to the council with plans for the detoxification center which she says provides a "very, very important service."

"I have the impression," said Councillor Michael Cheney, "that the detoxification center is being spun."

"You do not want the detoxification center there. You want to tuck it someplace else, and that rather upsets me. You'd rather have doctors' offices."

"The council is very much committed to the detoxification center, and we're afraid we're going to lose it."

"We want to see a lease," Mayor Francis McCauley commented later that "obviously, we're concerned. We want to see the program continue because it is a good program."

"But, of course, Mark Mundy's priority is that the hospital comes first."

"They're there to deliver hospital care to the citizens of Quincy."

"The state should take a more active role in finding another location (for the center) - a permanent location."

"I'm certain we can tide the detoxification center over for a number of years.

"But, quite frankly, once the new hospital is constructed, the Gordon House then becomes an important part of the long range plans for the Quincy City Hospital."

Councillor John Lydon also asked that no action be taken on the bond issue until two major changes are made.

Lydon said the changes involve a special order to be brought in regarding Planned Unit Development at the hospital site, giving the council more control.

An amendment is also being made to the home rule petition giving the City Council the power to appoint two additional members to the board of managers.

Burger King Extension Approved

The Burger King at 505 Quincy Ave., Quincy Point, was granted permission by the Quincy License Board Tuesday to extend the front of the restaurant and increase the number of seats.

Burger King is planning to remodel the building's front and extend it six feet to accommodate a new greenhouse.

Post Office Seeks Dog Owners Cooperation

Manager Kenneth E. Starr of the Quincy Post Office is requesting the co-operation from area dog owners in minimizing the threat of dog bites to the letter carriers serving the city.

According to Starr, incidences of dog bites increase dramatically as outdoor temperatures rise.

"Approximately half of the dog bites to letter carriers each year occur during the warm season," he said.

Postal service statistics reveal that an average of 7,000 letter carriers are bitten each year. During 1984, 147 letter carriers in the Boston area were bitten by someone's "best friend," and 55 bites have been reported to date in 1985. In Quincy, earlier this month, letter carriers were attacked by dogs on Norton, Albatross, and Rock Island Road.

"Dog bites are painful and costly," Starr said, "and they don't have to happen." Some simple precautions would alleviate the situation tremendously.

he added.

The Postal Service suggests that dog owners keep their pets in an area away from the mailbox and the areas used by the letter carrier for access to the property. If the pet is not kept behind a secure fence, the owner should restrain the dog on a leash or keep in inside the house during the carrier's regular delivery hours.

The Postal Service has the right to protect its letter carriers by refusing to deliver mail to a household with an unrestrained dog. In some areas where dogs roam loose, delivery to an entire neighborhood could be affected.

Postal customers should also be made aware that the postal service now seeks legal action against dog owners to recover costs incurred by dog bites.

"We hope a cooperative effort by dog owners to protect both their pet and their letter carrier will preclude this need," Starr concluded.

Iacobucci 'Official' May 22

Ron Iacobucci will make it official Wednesday, May 22.

He'll announce his candidacy for City Council at-large at a 7 to 10 p.m. reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

His announcement will come as a surprise only to those who have been out of the country for the past two years.

Iacobucci, who ran two years ago as the lone challenger to the three incumbents, lost that bid but was off and campaigning again the next day for this year.

He finished a respectable fourth — 1039 votes behind Patricia Toland, Richard Koch, Jr. topped the field and Joseph LaRaia was second.

Iacobucci has been campaigning since.

May 22 seems to be a popular date. Mayor Francis McCauley picked that same night (Quincy Neighborhood Club) to announce his candidacy for a third term.

Iacobucci picked it for his announcement, unaware of McCauley's plans.

Although Iacobucci finds himself in the position of competing for crowd turnout with an incumbent mayor, it apparently isn't bothering him.

In fact he wrote a note to McCauley inviting him to drop by.

THE ENTRANCE of David Peterson into this year's mayoral race guarantees a mayoral preliminary election for the first time in four years.

Peterson, a member of Lyndon LaRouche's National Democratic Policy Committee, says he's serious about running and definitely is staying for the preliminary and — hopefully — the final.

THERE MAY YET be a fourth mayoral candidate. Sabina Kavanagh, Quincy businesswoman who, we reported here a few weeks ago "is real serious" about running for mayor, apparently really still is.

She has taken out the necessary papers to form a "Committee To Elect Sabina Kavanagh Mayor" but has not filed them yet. And while in the office of City Clerk John Gillis she picked up copies of the voters list.

NOMINATION PAPERS for this year's city election will be available Monday, May 20, Asst. City Clerk Tom Burke reminds candidates.

Deadline for filing them is Tuesday, Aug. 6 at 5 p.m.

The preliminary election will be Tuesday, Sept. 10 and the final Tuesday, Nov. 5.

OBSERVATION via the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "It's the rich man who isn't afraid to ask the clerk to show him something cheaper."

Quincy Families Can Share In Low Mortgage Interest Rates

A new $25 million state-sponsored low interest home mortgage loan program-9.5-percent, to aid in the purchase and rehabilitation of one and four family dwellings in Quincy and other cities and towns has become a reality.

Starting today (Thursday) these mortgage funds will be made available to households buying and rehabilitating homes in specially targeted neighborhoods.

In Quincy, the loans will be made in conjunction with the City of Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development. Elizabeth McLaney, (at 773-1380, ext. 444), will help the prospective home buyer through the process of buying and rehabbing their home.

Quincy Rep. Thomas F. Brownell told the Quincy Sun the program, offered by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA), is making the $25 million available, statewide for neighborhood rehabilitation loans. Funds are offered at a fixed rate of 9.5 percent for a term of 30 years. A minimum down payment of only five percent is required.

Brownell added: "This is an excellent state program that will help make home ownership a reality for many people who otherwise might have difficulty in obtaining a mortgage. I strongly encourage those interested in buying a home to contact Quincy's planning department."

college's local supporters would like to keep it as a Quincy-run institution, with a little state money to expand and make improvements on the campus, which is located in an old school building and an old courthouse in Quincy Center.

Quincy Students Experience Art

The Quincy Public School System received $8,000 in grant monies from the Quincy Arts Council for the January to June 1985 funding period.

The grant money was used to provide Quincy Public School students with extended arts' experiences.

At the elementary school level, primary aged students attend performances of "Haunted House," by the Gerwick Puppet Company. Students in the intermediate grades attended performances by storyteller Judith Black. Additionally, these students worked with Ms. Black to develop their own story telling techniques.

Students in grades four and five developed puppet skits with visual artist Jorge Drosten.

At the Middle School level attended performances by the Boston Youth Theater. The Boston Arts Group, and The Eastern Nazarene Performing Group. Middle school students also observed and discussed the art of sculpturing with sculptor M.D. Morris and participated in writers' workshops with author Julia Thacker.

Reader's Forum Geary Warns Of Fire Threat In Blue Hills

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a devoted fan of the Quincy Sun, I especially enjoy reading the "Quincy's Yesterdays" column.

Last week's story entitled Fire Threat Closes Blue Hills was particularly interesting in that it reported a condition which was far worse than any in the recent past, but is quite ironically a cause for concern this season twenty-eight years later.

While today's Fire

Watch hopefully will not require us to close the Blue Hills Reservation to visitors, it is necessary to remind our readers of the need to exercise caution when visiting the beautiful Reservation so that the fire danger is lessened and history need not repeat itself. Best wishes.

Fair Housing Poster, Essay Contest Winners Announced

Student winners of the fair housing poster and essay contest held in the Quincy public schools were announced recently at a luncheon in the Three Season Restaurant at the Vocational Technical School.

All winners of the poster contest are pupils at the Snug Harbor or Squantum Schools and winners of the essay contest are students at Quincy High School.

"We are particularly pleased that Snug Harbor School and Squantum School had so many winners because both schools have the highest number of minority children enrolled there," said Alicia Coletti, affirmative action coordinator for the Quincy schools.

"In addition, George Smith at Quincy High School worked very hard with his ninth grade Civic class to explain the legal background of fair housing and the class had all three essay winners."

The winners in the poster contest were:

Second and Third Grade: 1. Danielle Perry, Snug Harbor; 2. Tat Man, Squantum; 3. John Richards, Snug Harbor.

The Quincy Savings Bank provided prizes for the winners and the contest was judged by Robin McGoff, arts specialist in the Quincy schools; and Jacqueline Roundtree, public affairs officer for the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Fore River Wins Contract For Jumbo Tanker

The Fore River Shipyard received a contract to build a 29,250-ton tanker, the largest such craft it has ever undertaken.

The 644-foot ship would be capable of carrying 254,800 barrels of oil with a maximum speed of 16 knots.

The owner of the tanker was not disclosed nor was the value of the contract but unofficial estimates placed it at $6,250,000.

Meanwhile, the American Export liner SS Constitution left its berth at Fore River for company trials off Cape Cod.

Officials denied that she would attempt to break the record of her sister ship SS Independence which did 26.105 knots during trials off Rockland, Me., in December.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

It has been said that the men who succeed are the efficient few. They are the few who have the ambition and the will power to develop themselves. Many times these men are asked "How can I - or others - do it, too?" One extremely successful businessman answered the question this way . . .

"Put ambition, determination and hard work into your daily routine. How? Refuse to be average. Never settle for anything less than the best you think you can accomplish. Keep telling yourself you can do anything you want to do."

"Get mad - but only at yourself. It puts your strongest emotions to work for you. The only catch is not to get mad at others. Controlled anger is one of the strongest factors in any one's success."

Generally speaking, ambition properly used, is a wonderful asset. Isn't it strange how some people have lots of it and others so little? . . .

Donnelly Requests Meeting With Navy Secretary On Shipyard

Cong. Brian Donnelly hopes to talk with Navy Secretary John Lehman in the next two weeks about the fate of the General Dynamics Shipyard in Quincy.

Donnelly said he requested that the meeting take place soon so that he can explain the urgent need to award new shipbuilding contracts to Quincy while a skilled work force is still in place.

The company recently learned that it lost its bid for a $222.5 million Navy contract. Prior to that, the company had already announced its intentions to lay off 3,000 employees, half the work force.

Donnelly said he will tell Lehman that what is good for Quincy is good for the Navy because the shipyard is one of several that the Pentagon and others say the country needs in a national emergency.

IACOBUCCI Councillor-At-Large

May 16, 1985

Dear Friends,

Two years ago, I ran for Quincy City Councillor-At-Large. My message was a need for new and energetic leadership to resolve issues and problems that face our community. I spoke out on the issues, presented alternatives and differences that provided the people of Quincy with a real choice. The people responded very well.

Now, two years of negative publicity about our City and concern over decisions made on certain issues has prompted me to announce my candidacy for Councillor-At-Large again. This is not an easy decision for me. Today, not too many people run for public office because of the sacrifice to family and work and the tremendous time commitment involved. But, as a homeowner and taxpayer of this community, I care about the quality of life in our City. I believe that my background in government, business and community service qualifies me to be an effective representative. More importantly, in the campaign ahead, I will once again talk about alternatives and present differences to the business as usual so that the people of Quincy will have a real choice.

So, now I need your help to put me over the top. On Wednesday, May 22, 1985 my committee has scheduled a reception. Money raised from this event will be used to pay for literature, signs and newspaper advertisements that will bring my message to every home in Quincy.

If you share my commitment for a thoughtful, progressive and efficient City government, please join me at the Sons of Italy Lodge Wednesday, May 22, 1985 at 7 p.m. If you cannot attend, any contribution no matter how small will be greatly appreciated.

I look forward to seeing you Wednesday, May 22nd.

Sincerely,

Ron Iacobucci

Toland To Attend Democratic Convention

Councillor-at-Large Patricia M. Toland will attend the 1985 Democratic State Convention in Springfield this weekend both as a delegate from Ward 5 and a member of the platform committee.

Former Cong. James Shannon, platform committee chairman, named Toland to the committee last winter to represent the Quincy area.

Mrs. Toland said that the Democratic State Committee has sponsored seven separate public meetings across the state to prepare for the adoption of a new party platform at the annual convention.

"Hundreds of rank-and-file Democrats," she said, "attended these hearings to voice feelings and concerns about the future direction of their party."

"Chairman Shannon," Toland said, "did a commendable job in encouraging the formulation of a broadly-stated document in contrast to recent years when the platform contained a laundry list of ideological statements on narrow concerns."

"The committee has focused on the need to expand the platform's scope and attract the interest of mainstream voters which the Democrats must recapture in order to gain national prominence."

"Convention delegates can look forward to debating a draft platform which aims at attracting popular support rather than discouraging it."

The Youth Choir and the Chancel Choir are directed by Mary Ruth Scott.

Dr. Langevin preached on the topic, "The Burden and The Blessing of the Christian Mother."

There will be two worship services at the church this Sunday: the guitar service at 8:30 a.m. and the traditional service at 10:30 a.m.

Quincy Defeats Brookline Behind Conti's 1-Hitter

By TOM SULLIVAN

If Joe Conti was ambidextrous, Quincy's baseball team could be among the Suburban League leaders.

Conti, a veteran right-hander, pitched a one-hitter Monday as the Presidents defeated Brookline, 6-2, improving their record to 5-6-1.

Conti has won four of those games, having pitched a two-hitter, a four-hitter against North Quincy and a six-hitter against Brockton's powerhouse as Quincy handed the Boxers their only loss of the season.

The Presidents faced Brockton again yesterday (Wednesday), will be at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday and will meet North Quincy Monday night at 7 o'clock at Adams Field.

"Conti is the ideal player to coach," said Coach Bob Sylvia. "He is a real leader, is not a rabble rouser, always keeps his cool and he is the type you'd like your son to be like."

"He is the finest athlete I've seen at Quincy in the last 10 years and I think he deserves more credit than he receives. When he pitches, the whole team perks up and the players have a lot of confidence behind him. If he could pitch every game, we'd be right up there in the standings."

"Joe will enter the Mass. Maritime Academy in the fall and plans to play baseball there. I know he will do well." He also plans to play football at the academy.

Sylvia also had good words for Mike Draichio, who has been hitting well and had two hits and two RBI Monday.

"Sophomore Tommy Logan has done a great job for us," Sylvia said. "He leads us in hitting with a .350 average and had a key hit and an RBI against Brookline."

"David Tocchio played an outstanding game at second base and was the most pleasant surprise. He doesn't play every game but he is a real team player and when he isn't playing, he keeps score, picks up the bats and does other things to help out. His attitude is contagious and he made the key play of the game against Brookline. We led, 4-2, and Brookline had men on first and second with one out."

"He made a diving stop, tagged second and doubled the runner at first. This took the steam out of Brookline and sealed the win for us."

Last week Quincy was forced to forfeit a game to Newton North.

Quincy trailed, 9-4, in the sixth inning and Sylvia ran out of pitchers. It was the Presidents' third game in three days.

Sylvia had started Steve Durante, turned to reliever Rich Pettinelli and Larry Taglier, who had pitched the day before, worked an inning and his arm stiffened. Conti took over but had soreness in his arm after an inning.

Catcher Joe Ciardi volunteered to pitch but that would have left Sylvia without a catcher. His backup catcher, Steve Austin, was the designated hitter and the rules prohibit the DH from taking over at any position.

Sylvia explained his problem to the umpire but the Newton coach refused to waive the rule and allow Austin to catch.

"I had no other choice but to forfeit," said Sylvia. "It was a choice of putting a kid in an unfamiliar position and possibly damaging an arm or embarrassing someone. I think you have to be a little flexible. All I want is to give as many kids as possible a chance to play and we're not out to win at all costs."

"With the situation we were in, we had, at best, a long shot of winning. We just don't have enough arms to cover the schedule."

Before the forfeit, Pat Calabro had hit a two-run homer for Quincy.

Earlier in the week Quincy had defeated North Quincy, 3-1, in a very well played game as both coaches went with their No. 1 pitchers and each did well.

Conti had a four-hitter and Jack Outerbridge a five-hitter for North. Conti struck out nine and walked two.

Quincy scored twice in the first inning. Draichio walked, went to third on Logan's single and Logan stole second. Draichio scored on a groundout to third and when Rich Brooks threw wildly trying to get Logan at third, the second run scored.

The only other run came in the third on hits by Austin, Draichio and Logan and a sacrifice fly by Ciardi.

Porro, 100 (13.11); Sherin Quintiliani, mile (6:20.25).

and Lynn Noyes, softball throw (106-0).

Raiderettes Bomb Brookline, 22-9

The North Quincy girls' softball team rolled over Brookline, 22-9, last week to improve its record to 4-6.

Mary Pratt's Raiderettes played Newton North yesterday (Wednesday), play at Waltham today (Thursday) and will face Quincy Monday at 3:30 at Faxon Field.

Noreen Connolly hit two home runs, including a grand slam, to lead the win over Brookline. Connolly and Ann McGuiggan had four hits each and Melissa D'Angelo and Ann Anderlonis had three apiece.

Anderlonis was the winning pitcher, going five innings, and McGuiggan finished up.

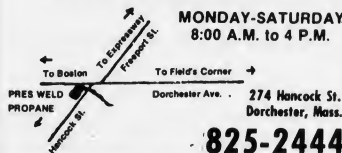

Earlier in the week North lost to Quincy, 4-2, scoring its only runs in the seventh inning on D'Angelo's two-run homer. The Raiderettes were held hitless for five innings by Kathy Thornton.

Baylis Fans 25 In 2 Games For Quincy Cable

Mike Baylis is off to an exceptional start in the Quincy Junior Baseball League, striking out 25 in his first two games as Quincy Cable defeated Colonial Federal and Kiwanis.

Baylis struck out 12 in a 15-5 victory over Colonial Federal. Cable exploded for 10 runs in the first inning and had clear sailing the rest of the way.

Pat Gallagher had three hits, including a grand slam homer. Manganaro and Gary Rawdon also three hits each and Baylis, Tony Stafford, Jason April and Chris Peck also had hits. Mike McDonald made an outstanding defensive play at second base.

Baylis added 13 strikeouts and pitched three-hit ball in a 3-0 victory over Kiwanis.

Manganaro had a home run for the only run Cable needed. McDonald cut down a run at the plate with a nice throw on a relay. Mike Kavanaugh made a fine play at third base and Aiden O'Donahue, Joe Check, Jim Ford, Mike Wood and Chris Murray all played well.

Boston Gear defeated Rotary, 12-7, scoring in every inning and rolling to a 8-0 lead after three innings. Gear is 4-0 for the season.

Mike Patch was the winning pitcher in his debut, scattering seven hits, striking out 10 and walking only two. He also had two singles, had two RBI and scored twice. The 10-year-old showed exceptional poise.

Chris Nichols had two key hits, a single and double, and drove in three. Shaun Cafferty had a double, Freddy Regan a bases-loaded double off the fence and Billy Lydon, Patrick McDonough and Derek Happas a single each.

Defensively David Skutel, Billy Skutel, Matt Riley, Kevin Glennon, Peter Grippi and Danny Duncan stood out.

John Kelly had two hits and Tim Collins had one, while playing well in the field, for Rotary.

Burgin Platner defeated the Elks, 9-4, for its third win of the year, with another fine pitching performance by Matt Smith, who struck out 11 and helped his own cause with a towering home run over the left field fence and two doubles.

Burgin Platner also edged Keohane's, 8-7, as White had three hits. Warren and Kelleher two each. White and Balzano pitched well.

Keohane's had the bases loaded and no outs in the last inning but fine defensive plays by Smith, Doherty, Bevilacqua and Gaetor prevented any scoring.

Boston Gear came from behind with six runs in the last inning to defeat State Street, 9-4.

McDonough and Cafferty pitched for Gear, which trailed, 3-1, after three innings. Gear tied it in the fourth, then came the sixth inning explosion. McDonough and Cafferty combined to pitch four-hit ball, struck out 11 and walked three. Only one State Street run was earned.

McDonough had four hits and Billy Skutel, Grippi, George Walsh, Regan, Patch and Happas all had hits.

Fitzgerald's First Season A Nightmare So Far

Tom Fitzgerald's first season as North Quincy baseball coach is one he won't soon forget.

Fitzgerald has had all sorts of problems. He has only one seasoned pitcher, lost his number two pitcher, has had a series of injuries and illnesses and hasn't been able to put the same team on the field two games in a row.

"Things only got worse Monday as the Raiders, with key players again sidelined, were trampled by Weymouth South, 17-1, dropping their record to 2-10.

North played at Newton North yesterday (Wednesday), will host Suburban League-leader Waltham today at 3:30 at Adams Field and will meet Quincy Monday night at 7 p.m. at Adams.

"This season has been a nightmare," said Fitzgerald. "I've had to use several pitchers and the only experienced one is Jack Outerbridge, who has done a good job. I never had to face so many injuries and various illnesses and I've had makeshift lineups in nearly every game. I just hope I can survive this season."

Last week North lost a chance at a possible win when it had to forfeit to Cambridge Rindge and Latin due to a shortage of players after having scored four runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to take a 7-6 lead.

"When a North player was taken ill on the field and had to be taken out of the game, Fitzgerald had no one to put in.

"I had made some substitutions and used some pinch hitters and I didn't have anyone to put in, so we had to forfeit. I felt badly for the kids, as we had a real shot at winning," Fitzie said.

A bases-loaded triple by Chris Ricciuti capped the sixth inning rally, scoring Steve McGlame, Chris Cody and Chris Rossi.

Earlier in the week Outerbridge had pitched his best game of the season but the Raiders dropped a 3-1 decision to Quincy in a well-played game.

Outerbridge pitched a five-hitter, struck out five and walked only one. Quincy's Joe Conti held North to four hits, struck out nine and walked two.

Outerbridge gave up two runs in the first and one in the third but got stronger as the game went on, setting the Presidents down in order in four innings.

North's lone run came in the fifth when Outerbridge reached on Quincy's only error and scored on McGlame's triple to deep center. With only one out, North was in a good spot but Conti struck out Cilly Connelly and got Peter Tufts on a pop-up.

Ted Shionis led off the sixth with a double but was stranded as Conti retired the next three hitters. In the seventh Outerbridge led off with a single, moved to second when Quincy's Tom Logan knocked down Connelly's hard drive and threw to Conti for first for a big out.

MIKE DONOVAN of Quincy batted .281 and played six different positions for the Curry College baseball team this season. He played right field, left field, second base, third base, catcher and pitcher.

Barbara Webster's Quincy girls played Brockton yesterday (Wednesday), will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin today at 3:30 and will meet North Quincy Monday at 3:30, both games at Faxon Field.

Kathy Thornton was the winning pitcher Monday and, having pitched every victory, improved her record to 7-3.

Chris Cucinattia went three-for-five and drove in two runs, Andrea Griffin was two-for-four with two RBI and Colleen Phillips was two-for-four with an RBI.

Last week Quincy defeated Latin Academy, 12-5, with Cucinattia driving in two runs with two hits, stealing three bases and scoring three runs.

Griffin had three hits and an RBI. Terry Duggan had two hits, scored three runs and drove in one, and Debbie Herron had two hits, two runs scored and an RBI.

Thornton pitched four innings and got the win. Kathy Keeley finished up, giving up six hits and striking out three.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated North Quincy, 4-2, scoring all its runs in the sixth inning.
